

Agricultural Matters.

From the American Silk Grower, for August, MORUS MULTICAULIS AND WHITE MULBERRY.

A gentleman in the vicinity of Baltimore, divided a parcel of young silk worms just hatched at the same time and from the same lot of eggs, into three parcels. The first to be fed on the native mulberry, the second on the moretti, and the third on Morus Multicaulis. A lady had the superintendence of the whole; and she bestowed the same attention to each parcel. They were all fed at the same time, kept side by side in the same room, (of course all exposed to exactly the same variations of temperature.) In their progress, those fed on the native mulberry were evidently unhealthy; those fed on the moretti were not much over half as large as those fed on the Morus Multicaulis at the third age, but were healthy. During the fourth age those fed on the moretti advanced considerably towards equality with those fed on the Multicaulis, but never came up to them. Unfortunately those fed on the native mulberry were destroyed, and the experiment with them ceased in the fourth age. The other two parcels completed their cocoons. We took up a small handful of the moretti cocoons, without any selection and we ghed them, and found their weight to be 336 grains; the same number of Multicaulis cocoons, taken in the same way without selection weighed 420 grains. We then cut the cocoons and took out the chrysalis, and all foreign matter, and weighed the silk fibre alone. The moretti silk weighed exactly 50 grains, and the Multicauls 66 grains. Showing a difference of 25 per cent in favor of the Multicaulis in the cocoons, and within a very small fraction of last, a negro man by the name of the same per centage in the clear fibre. The experiment was tried expressly for the purpose of ascertaining whether there was any difference in the quantity of silk produced by the different kinds of mulberry, by one, too, very favorably inclined towards the moretti mulberry. The moretti is the best variety of the white mulberry and is the parent of the Alpine, the latter having been produced from the seed of the former

The Newcastle County Silk Company are about to establish a filatere in Wilmington, Del. where they will give the highest price for cocoons and reeled silk, made in the State. - American Silk Grower.

Mr. Gates of Germantown, has taken out a patent right for the manufacture of morus mulinaulis cigare, and he has already re ceived an order for 10,000 of the cigars .-16.

SUGAR BEET.

There is now growing in this district of country, a considerable quantity of the sugar beet-many of our farmers being de termined to test their value at least as food for caule. We have not, however, heard of any preparation for the manufacture of sugar; but we trust the subject will be doly taken into consideration, and at least a sale, on the 5th of October next, theoretical knowledge of the business acquired. All it wants is a start-and having received this, the sugar manufacture will soon become sufficiently extensive to make us independent of other countries, for this necessary article of domestic comfort.-Germantown Telegraph.

A good method of killing the chrysalis, is to place the cocoons beneath glass in a hot bed, and the work is quickly done. Those who have tried it are perfectly satisfied with the ease and expedition with which it is accomplished — 1b.

Short horned Cattle - Never think of buying short horned or Durham Cattle, until you are prepared to keep them well. They need an abundance of fresh pasture, and therefore to be frequently changed from one pasture to another in succession, and plenty of food and good shelters in the winter. Thus provided for they are valuable stock. But neglected in these respects, they are little better than native cattle. - Franklin Farmer.

Instruction for cooking salt pork in the Best manner .- First slice, and then freshen by boiling two or three minutes; then take it out, and cover the slices with flour, then place them in the pan for frying with all the flour that will adhere to them. Try it; and if you like the dish serve it up to your neighbors." - Gennesse Farmer.

The above process does very well, but the following we think much better:-Take one fresh egg, beat it, and half a gell of late firm.

sweet milk, and a sufficient quantity of flour to make a good batter; freshen and fry the pork, as usual; then dip the pieces in the batter, which will of course adhere, replace them in the fat, and after a little more frying, a light and delicate cake will enclose the meat and thus constitute a dish for a middle size family, which will tempt the palate of the most fastidious. Try it ladies -American Silk Grower.

Farming .- When the farming interest is depressed, every other interest suffers a proportion; and it is just as necessary to keep that interest in sound, healthy and flourishing condition, as it is to keep open and free the spring of existence itself. One of the best means of effecting this desirable object, is to make farming popular, and not to associate it with the idea of unpaid or involuntary work of the hand .- Times.

Remedy for hard times-more ploughing on land banks and less discounting in paper banks .-- N. E. Farmer

AGRICULTURAL HYMN.

Great God of Eden! 'Twas thy band That first clad earth in bloom, And shed upon a smiling land Nature's first rich perfume. Fresh from thy glance the flowers sprang,

Kissed by the sun's first rays-While plain and hill and valley rang With life and joy and praise, God of the clouds! Thy hand can ope

The fountains of the sky, And on the expectant thirsty crop Pour down the rich supply, The farmer, when the seed time's o'er Joys in the mercies given : Thinks on thy promised harvest's store And, smiling, looks to heaven.

he is about twenty-five or thirty years of age, he is a bright mulatto, about five feet eight or ten inches high, he stoops a little when walking, steps quick, has a downcast look, he is a lit tle blink-eyed, knockneed, and is a very plausi ble fellow. I bought said negro from Mr An drew Drew, of Salisbury, North Carolina, some time in November last, from which place, he brought Simeon. It is probable he will try to go back to Salisbury, as he says his mother lives there. When he left, he had on a green broad cloth frock coat, a checked shirt, satinet pantaloons and vest, a new straw hat, and a pair of vankee made boots. Whenever he stops, he pro bably will attempt to get employment in some public house as a waiter, or in some stable as ost ler, as he has been accustomed to such work since he belonged to me. I will pay for his ap prehension and delivery to me in Hamburg C., the above reward, or TWENTY FIVE DOLLARS if lodged in any Jul in this State (South Carolina.) or North Carolina.
