

Agricultural Matters.

From the Franklin Farmer.

MR. EDITOR:-The following rule fo measuring coro in bulk, is sent you onder the belief that it will prove useful to many Rule .- Having previously levelled the corn in the house, so that it will be of equa depth thro'out, ascertain the length, breadth. and depth of the bulk; multiply these dimensions together, and their product by 4 then cut off one figure from the right of the product. This will give the bushels and decimal bushels of shelled corn be required to ascertain the quantity of corn The be ears, substitute 8 for 4, and cut off one figure as before.

Example. - In a bulk of corn in the ears, 6 feet deep, there will be 316 bushels and 7.10ths of a bushel of shelled corn-633 bushels and 6 10ths of ear corn-as thus:

, N.	12 11	19 11
	132 6	132
	792	792
	688 6	16 8

The decimal 4 is used when the object is to find the quantity of shelled corn, because that decimal is half of 8, and it requires 2 bushels of ear corn to make one bushel of shelled corn. In using this rule half a busiles should be added for every 100. n account of the decimals.

A waggon load of corn can be calculated in the same way, by getting the average depth, where the bottom is not streight.

If every farmer would cut out this and keep it, it might be useful to him in the course of time.

From the Cultivator. LAWYERS AND FARMERS.

We perceive by the news journals, that there were about one hundred attorneys and councellors graduated or licensed, at May term of the Superior Court. Assuming this to be the aver age number graduated at each term, the terms being four in a year, and counting only the num ber of attorneys, the annual accession of this corps must be two hundred. And these two hundred lawyers are to live and grow rich, how? By any branch of productive industry? By adding to the wealth, the quiet and substantial enjoyments of society? We fear not They must live by their profession, honestly if they canbut they must live; and with the law making, law dispensing, and fee regulating powers virtoally in their own hands, is it to be wondered that litigation increases, that the delays of the law are multiplied, and the expenses of justice angmented? If one lawyer drains from the earn ing of labor, two or three thousand dollars a year, what amount of these earnings will it require to support, in legal style, ten thousand lawyers? The answer, by the role of three, would be twenty or thirty millions of dollars. Geo. Stevens, in his ingenious lecture upon heads, compares the law to fire or water : a very good servant but a hard master; very useful and pleasant in mod erate quantities, but extremely inconvenient and mischlevous when in excess. We have seep in the print shops, a caricature very illustrative of George Stephens's comparison-a portly well dressed gentleman going to law-and a meagre, ragged skeleton of a man who had been to law.

We are by no means disposed to blame the young gentlemen who are thus crowding to the temple of the law, for fame and fortune, however we may lament the fatuity which impels them on. Law is the great avenue to office, to wealth, to distinction, to fashion-by common consent. and the fond mistaken parents are generally as sanguine in their anticipations of honor and dis tinction as the sons. There are many eminent and distinguished lawyers, useful and worthy members of society, and there are a great many who are quite otherwise, whose wants, rather than their wishes, lead very much to the in crease of livigation; but who might here been useful members of the commonwealth, had they chosen a different and more suitable sphere of action. Now, if agriculture held the rank which legitimately belongs to it in the social scale-if it had schools of instruction combining the useful with the agreeable, it is not impossible that onehalf of those who are annually crowding and burthening the legal profession, would become eseful cultivators of the soil .- What a vast improvement this would effect, in a few years, in the condition of our state-in its agriculture, the basis of its wealth, the intellectual concondition if its inhabitants, and in their moral and econominal habits. Such schools, should they ever be established among us, either by the wisdom of the legislature, or the well directed effects of individual patriotism, would soon annually scatter over the state hundreds of young men distinguished alike for strength of, mind, vigor of constitution, and exemplary habits -These would carry with them a practical knowledge of the best modes of farming, the best im plements, the best breeds of animals; and each in h s future sphere of action, would become a living proof to those around him, of the practieability of improving our agriculture, and an example to them of good habits and good management. Wherever we find a good farmer, we see the benefits of its example in most of those around him, which diminishes as we recede. -Were the good farmers multiplied at four or eight hundred a year, as they might be through the influence of schools of practical and scientiflic agriculture, the advantages to the state would be incalculably great.

We are no agrarian in our opinions. We consider all professions open to free competition, and as useful, when limited in their sphere and number. If there is a priviledged class in our com munity it is the intelligent tillers of the soil :not that they are priviledged by law, or by popular favor-but that they are priviledged by their Creator, in the enjoyment of a greater share of temporal blessings, the natural result of sober, industrious and contented habits, than perhaps day of sale. any other class in the community. Our wish is to see them intelligent and independent, that they may enjoy the reward, and the state the benefit We ask from them no exclusive public encour agement or bounty; but merely some of the crumbs which fall from the public table, and which have heretofore, at least to some instances, been lavishly, if not wickedly squandered apon far less worthy objects. We wish to see agriculture brought forward from the shade, from the back ground, where it has been too long obscured and degra-ded by ignorance and service apathy; and see the public bounty, like the sun and the rains which fructify the earth and cause it to bring forth food for men, dispensed alike to all classes of the community.

END OF THE WORLD.

A Rev. Mr. Miller has been (and we believe still is) preaching in some parts of Massachusetts, and declaring his conviction, as the result of close calculation, that this world is to come to an end in about four years from this time. Some of the papers have recently stated that he had discovered an error in his calculations, and had therefore placed the time further abead; but Mr. Miller contradicts the report, and says be is more and more convinced that he is right, and that we shall see Christ coming in the clouds of Heaven, in all the glory of his Farther, somewhere about the year 1843.

Such calculations as these are absurd and wrong. True it becomes us all to be prepared measuring 12 feet long, 11 feet broad and for the coming of Christ at any moment, and far be it from us to encourage any one to postpone this preparation even till the year 1843; but of that day and that bour knoweth no man, no not the angels which are in heaven."-Christian Secetary.

> The screeching, screaming, drunkenness, vulgarity, and profauity, exhibited in Tummany Hall on the result of the election in this city, exceeds the power of description, and must have been deeply painful to the respectable men of the party sustaining the ticket. One of the radicals as a specimen of the manner of expression in the old Wigwam, cried out "Waiter, give that Whig a quart of Hell-fire!" Surely it is time for reform .- N. Y. Star.
