This Ballad, which appeared in some of the public newspapers in or before the year 1724, came from the pen of David Mallet, Esq., who in the edition of his poems, 3 vols., 1759, informs us that the plan was suggested by four verses of a ballad supposed to be now lost.

"These lines, says he, naked of ornament and simple as they are, struck my fancy ; and bringing fresh into my mind an unhappy adventure much talked of formerly, gave birth to the following poem, which was written many years ago."

The two introductory lines (and one or two others elsewhere) had originally more of the bal lad simplicity, viz :

"When all was wrapt in dark midnight, And all were fast asleep, &c.

Twas at the silent solemn hour, When night and morning meet; In glided Margaret's grimly ghost, And stood at William's feet.

Her face was like an April morn, Clad in a wintry cloud; And clay-cold was her lily hand. That held her sable shroud.

So shall the fairest face appear, When youth and years are flown : Such is the robe that kings must wear, When death has reft their crown.

Her bloom was like the spring flower, That sips the silver dew; The rose was budded in her cheek, Just opening to the view.

But love had, like the canker-worm. Consum'd her early prime; The rose grew pale, and left her cheek;

She dy'd before her time. "Awake!" she cry'd, 'thy true love calls, Come from her midnight grave; Now let thy pity hear the maid

Thy love refus'd to save. " This is the dark and dreary bout When injur'd ghosts complain;

Now yawning graves give up their dead,

To haunt the faithless swain. Bethink, thee, William, of thy fault. Thy pledge and broken oath; And give me back my maiden vow,

And give me back my troth. Why did you promise love to me. And not that promise keep? Why did you swear mine eyes were bright,

How could you say my face was fair. And yet that face forsake? How could you win my virgin heart, Yet leave that heart to break?

Yet leave those eyes to weep?

. Why did you say my lip was sweet. And made the scarlet pale? And why did I, young witless maid, Believe the flattering tale?

'That face, alas! no more is fair; These lips no longer red: Dark are my eyes, now clos'd in death, And every charm is fled.

The hungry worm my sister is; This winding sheet I wear: And cold and weary lasts our night, Till that last morn appear.

But hark! the cock has warn'd me hence A long and last adieu! Come see, false man, how low she lies, Who dy'd for love of you.'

The lark song loud; the morning smil'd With beams of rosy red: Pale William shook in ev'ry limb, And raving left his bed .

He hyed him to the fatal place Where Margaret's body lay: And stretch'd him on the grass-green tuif, That wrapt her breathless clay :

And thrice he call'd on Margaret's name, And thrice he wept full sore: Then laid his cheek to her cold grave,

And word spake never more.

In a late pub! ication entitled THE FRIENDS &c. Lond. 1773. 2 vols., 13 mo. (in the first vplume) is inserted a copy of the foregoing ballad, with very great variations, which the Editor of that work contends was the original; and that Mallet adopted it for his own, and altered it, as here given. But the superior beauty and simplicity of the present copy gives it so much the air of an original, that it will rather be believed that some transcriber altered it from Mallet's and adapted the lines to his own taste; than which nothing is more common in popular songs and ballads.

Mankind at the beginning of the fifteenth century had neither looked into heaven or earth, neither into the sea nor land, as has been done since; exchange, by giving the above a few conspicuthey had philosophy without experiment, math- ons insertions, and forwarding their respective ematics without instruments, geometry without papers scales, astronomy without demonstration : they made war without powder, shot, cannon, mortars nay, the mob made their bonfires without squibs or crackers; they went to sea without compass, and sailed without the needle; they viewed the stars without telescopes, and measured altitudes without barometers; learning had no printing presses, writing no paper, no ink ; the lover was forced to send his mistress a deal reader for a letter; and a billetdoux might be the size of an ordained trenches; they were clothed without manufactures, and their richest robes were the skins ly bound in embossed Morocco, with gilt edges of the most forbmidable monsters; they carried on their trade without books, and their correspond ence without posts; their merchants kept no accounts, their shop keepers no cash books ; they had surgery without anatomy, and physicians without materia medica; they gave emetics without ipecacuanha; and cured agues without bark.

A little church, with a little tower, and a little chancel, is like a man that is wise in his own conceit, there is more hope of the simplest and rudest structure being improved than of it.

To my late Patrons:

Containing a summary statement of the Statules and Common Law of this State, together with the Decisions of the Supreme Court, and all the most approved Forms and Precedents, relating to the office and duty of a Justice of the Peace, and other Public Officers, according to modern practice.

THE Subscribers having purchased of the Author, the whole edition of this valuable Work, now offer it for sale, to the Public. It is pronounced by those, competent to judge, one of the most valuable compilations of the kind ever published in the State, and absolutely indispen sable to the faithful discharge of official duty.

For convenience of reference, this work is divided into Chapters alphabetically arranged, corresponding precisely with those of the new Revised Statutes. Each Chapter consists of three departments: 1st, a summary of the Statute Law, briefly stated 2d, a concise statement of the points relating to the subject of the Chapter, so far as settled, either by the decisions of the Courts, or by the books of the highest authority on the Common Law, Sd, the Forms and Precedents, necessary for applying the subject mat ter of each chapter, accompanied with such Notes and observations as appear necessary to render the whole intelligible. This work will be found not only useful to every class of public Officers, but will prove a valuable source of information to the general reader, furnishing as it does a plain and intelligible digest of the Law, as understood and practiced in last, a negro man by the name of SIMEON, he is about twenty five or thirty years of age, he is a bright mulatto, about five feet eight or ten inches high, he stoops a little when walking, steps quick, has a downcast look, he is a lit tle olink-eyed, knockneed, and is a very plansi ble fellow. I bought said negro from Mr Andrew Drew, of Salisbury, North Carolina, some time in November last, from which place, he brought Simeon. It is probable he will try to go back to Salisbury, as he says his mother lives there When he left, he had on a green broad cloth frock coat, a checked shirt, satinet pantaluons and vest, a new straw hat, and a pair of vankee made boots. Whenever he stops, he probably will attempt to get employment in some public house as a waiter, or in some stable as ostler, as he has been accustomed to such work to its citizens, and those since he belonged to me. I will pay for his ap try. His office is the special and delivery to me in Hamburg. S.
