The Senate Chamber has rarely present ed a scene of more solemn interest than that exhibited yesterday by the resignation of Judge White. The universal estima tion in which this venerable citizen is held by men of all parties-his long services, the unquestioned honor of his character, and his antique steranes of virtue, combine to make him at such a moment, the object a great and just interest. And well was this interest sustained by the able, eloquent and dignified document which he read to has rarely been a more solemn sacrifice upon the altar of party.

We understand that in a few moments after he left the floor, a committee from both Houses requested a copy of his letter to the Tennesee legislature for publication; and it was immediately determined by the the Members of both Houses to tender to him a public dinner, which, we understand, is to take place this week. From the excited state of the public mind, and the deep and general feeling of respect and admiration for Judge White, a numerous and enthusiastic meeting may be expected .-National Intelligencer.

President Lamar's administration is considered decidedly popular. In relation to the late movement of an allied force of Texians and Federalists in Mexico, a strong feeling of condemnation exists. Ross and his troops had been deeply censured for invading the Mexican territory. Ross himself had been stricken from the rolls, and the pay-rolls of his men cancelled for their desertion from their posts and disobedience
