HANDSOME white and liver coloured Pointer DOG, called Rondo. He can be readily recognised by his having a naturally short tail, slightly crooked at the extremity; a very small portion off of one ear, a slight mark of a ecald no one shoulder, and marks on his hind legs where his dew claws were cut off

Rundo left me about 3 or 4 weeks ago, and supposed he would attempt to reach Wadeshorough, where he had been for some time previous to his leaving, but his not having returned to that place. I suppose he has taken up somewhere in the neighborhood. Any person returning said dog to me at this place, or to James L. EDUCATION OF D. UGHTERS To Mothers and Wives.

We have long been under the impression that in many cases in this country, a sad er for exists in the bringing up of daughters. Mothers forget, we fear, that they should be educated to fulfi! the responsible duties of mothers and wives; and thus rather qualife them to glitter in the half room or to are so essential to a good wife! How freon ntly is at the case, that the looks, dress and style of a young female are alluded to with exultation by her mother, as em racing all the elements souted to adara and beautifo the female character. How often too. do we see parents rejoicing to the fact that Miss B. or Miss C. has di zons of beauxthat scarcely a night goes by that three or four do not call- without paying the slightest attention to the character of those beaux. then means of livelihood, of their ability to render a gentle being who has been brought up with great tenderness and care, comfortable and happy. How often do we see these fair young beings permitted to firt. first with one and then another -- to select companions from the reckless and the dissolute, and thus become entangled in some remantie love-match, the end of which is anguish and despair. How often do we see fathers compelled to take their daughters home gain under such circumstances -while those who went forth from the famile fireside, glowing and blushing with health and hope, and youth and heanty, at the end of five years are the very wrecks of what they were but so short a period before George F. Davidson, Jesse Hobos, William It is always a bad sign to see a young lady ren down with heavy. These mere admir ers are, in nine cases out of ten, unsuited to be husbands, and flatter around the light of beauty in mere vanity, and with the object of bossting that they visit such and such

> Sensible men who are seeking for wives, do not desire to mingle with boys and fons in the pursuit, and soon become disgusted with the firemer and lightness of the co quette, or of the female who is const atle decorating the body but disregarding the mind. Besides, men of business, men chants manufacturers, and others cannot seek month after month, or year after year, in endeavoring to ascertain the disposition and tone of the lady they may fancy. I they find her involved to the girdy maze of fashion and folly, they will soon abandor the pursuit, and seek for a more quiet, reasomable and practical object of courtship There is another error to which we have once or twice adverted, but which cannot b alluded to too often. We refer to the false policy of parents who are in pour or moderate circumstances, in bringing up their children with expectations of offers of mar riage from those far beyond their station It too often happens that in such cases, the noor girls faile, year after vear, and are com pelled in the end, at the decease of those of whom they have heretoforce depended for support, to eke out an existence for themselves. How often have we heard young ladies, the daughters of respeciable mechanics or store-keepers, sne ring at the very possibility of their accepting the proffered hand of any but a merchant or professional character, or some such individual. This in all wrong-rade-ils wrong and fraight with ammense distress to hundreds and thousands. Fir better would it be for any female to marry a reputable, honest, and active tradesman, in a thriving business. than a doctor or a lawser, with little or no practice. Parents should pay more attention to these throgs, s well for themselves as for their children. We think it was Major Nosh, who once said, that he lived over egain a new life as each of his children grew apare, and proceeded . nwards to womanhood or manhood. If this doctrine he true, we should so educate our off-pring as to render them hap v. and thus to secure for ourselves, the reflected annshme that brightens their existence - Philadelphia Inquir in whom you should put implicit confidence.

" The mechanic, sit, is one of God's noblemen - What have the mechanics not done? Bave they not opened the secrechambers of the mighty deep, an extracted its treasures, and made the raging billows their highway, on which they ride at on a lamed steed? Are not the elements of fire and water charmed to the crank, and at the mechanic's bidding compelled to turn it? Have not mechanics opened the bowels of the earth, and made its products contribute to their wants? The forked lightding is their play-thing, and they ride triumpheat on the wings of the mighty winds. To the wise they are the flood gains of knowledge, and the kings and queens are decorated with their hands works. He who made the Universe was a great mechanic."

The Devil Killed -The Raleigh, (N C.) Rasp, gives the following account of a fellow being shot in Georgia lately, in the disguise of a devil :

The fellow disguised himself with a club ool, went to the house of an old lady. rich widow, called himself the devil, and frightened the family of the premises, took the ol lady's money and eloped. In the act of retreating, he was met a mile or two from the house by a man with a gun, who had been to attend a muster, and was returning home, who, too, had taken a little too much of the "critter." The man opon meeting him, retreated, levelled his gun, and demanded who comes there? " I am the Prince of Darkness, but it is not thee I am after Jesse Bradlock! I had but one or wa sabjects, and them I despatched to the lower regions." Jesse not being disposed to let his devilship pass, presented his gin and ordered him not to move. Satan commenced swelling, emitting smoke at the some time, and berning sulphur. Jesse not liking the smell of sulphur, fired, and laid his Satanie Majasty a corpse at his feet !--He then made his way to the house of the old lady, where he found the family in the greatest distress. Upon inquiry, he was told that the devil had been there, and they were compelled to fit to the woods for protection, or be carried off by him alive .-Jesse reformed them that he had just killed the devil.

They immediately took the road, and tracked him by the track of his club foot until they came up with the body, when they disrobed him of his garments, took off the club foot, recovered the money which he had stolen, washed his face, and serognized him se a man who had lived a geighbor to them for many years.
