WORMS! WORMS!!

Startling Facts.

Hundreds of children and adults are lost yearly with worms, when some other cause has been supposed to be the true one. It is admitted by all doctors that scarce a man, woman or child exists but what are sooner or later troubled with worms, and in hundreds of cases, said to relate, a supposed fever, scurvy, cold, or some other ailment carries off the flowers of the human family—while in truth they die of Worms! and these could have been eradicated in a day, by the use of a bottle of Kolmstock's Vermifuge, at the cost of a quarter of a dollar! How sickening the thought that these things should be—and who can ever forgive themselves for not trying this Worm Exterminator, when they knew that even if the case was not worms, this remedy could not by any possibility do hurt—but always good as a purgative—let the disease be what it may. How important then to use it, and who will dare take the responsibility to do without it? Let every parent that is not a brute, ask themselves this question in truth and soberness.

Mr. J. C. Ringold had a child very sick for near two weeks, and attended by a physician, without relief, when Kolmstock's Vermifuge was given, and next day more than forty worms were passed, when the child recovered rapidly.

A child of a widow woman, living near the Manhattan Water Works, had dwindled for a month, till near skeleton, with great dryness of the mouth, and itching of the nose. A humane lady, who called to provide for the family, sent immediately for Kolmstock's Vermifuge, which brought away great quantities of worms for two or three days, and the child grew better at once, and regained its full strength in less than a month.

Several children in a highly respectable family in Broadway had worms to a frightful extent, and were all cured rapidly with this Vermifuge. In some of the best families in the neighborhood of St. John's Park, it has been extensively used, from the circumstance of having eradicated a large quantity of worms, after all other remedies had failed, which was very extensively known in that part of the city.

A family in New Jersey saved several children by the use of it. One, a girl of eight years of age, had become exceedingly emaciated before the Vermifuge was given. The next day three large worms were dislodged, and the left off the Vermifuge, when she became again worse, and had resort to the Vermifuge that finally brought away an incredible quantity of worms, and the cure was complete, and she gained her health rapidly.

A physician of standing, had doctored a family of children some weeks, without being able to restore but one out of the seven to health. He had the liberality to send for Kolmstock's Vermifuge, and cured the rest with it in less than a week.

Numerous cases of other complaints were supposed to exist, and the persons treated for fever, &c., but finally a trial of this Vermifuge discovered the true cause of the sickness, by bringing away almost an innumerable quantity of worms, large and small, and the persons recovered with great despatch. Instances of this kind might be cited to an immense extent, but it is useless, one trial for 25 cents will show any one with astonishment the certain effects of this Vermifuge.

Caution.—Never buy this article unless it have "Dr. Kolmstock's Vermifuge" handsomely engraved on the outside label, and the fac simile of Comstock & Co.

LAST HOURS OF SIR WALTER RALEIGH.

The close of the life of Sir Walter Raleigh was as extraordinary as many parts of his varied history; the promptitude and sprightliness of his genius, his carelessness of life, and the equanimity of his great spirit in quitting the world, can only be paralleled by a few other heroes and sages. Raleigh was both! But it is not simply his dignified yet active conduct on the scaffold, nor his admirable speech on that occasion, circumstances by which many great men are judged, when their energies are excited for a moment to set so great a part, before the eyes of the world assembled at their feet, it is not these only which claim our notice.

We may pause with admiration on the real grandeur of Raleigh's character, not from a single circumstance, however great, but from a tissue of continued little incidents, which occurred from the moment of his condemnation till he laid his head on the block. Raleigh was a man of such mark, that he deeply engaged the attention of his contemporaries; and to this we owe the preservation of several interesting particulars of what he did and what he said, which have entered into his life; but all has not been told in the published narratives. Contemporary writers in their letters have set down every fresh incident, and eagerly caught up his sense, his wit, and what is more delightful, his marks of the natural cheerfulness of his invariable presence of mind; nor could those have arisen from any affection or parade, for we shall see that they served him even in his last tender farewell to his lady, and on many unprepared occasions.

I have drawn together in a short compass all the facts which my researches have furnished, not omitting those which are known, concerning the feelings and conduct of Raleigh at these solid moments of his life: to have preserved only the new, would have been to mutilate the statue, and to injure the whole by an imperfect view. Raleigh one morning was taken out of his bed, in a fit of fever, and unexpectedly hurried not to his trial, but to a sentence of death. The story is well known. Yet pleading with "a voice grown weak by sickness and age he had at that instant on him," he used every means to avert his fate; he did, therefore, value the life he could so easily part with. His judges there, at least respected their state criminal, and they addressed him in a tone far different from that which he had fifteen years before listened to from Coke, Yelverton, the Attorney General, said "Sir Walter Raleigh had been as a star at which the world have gazed; but stars may fall when they trouble the sphere where they shine," and the Lord Chief Justice noticed Raleigh's great work: "I know that you have been valiant and wise," and I doubt not but you retain both these virtues, for now you shall have occasion to use them. Your work is an admirable work; I would give you counsel, but I know you can apply unto yourself far better than I am able to give you." But the Judge ended with saying, "execution is granted." It was striking Raleigh with ruses! The heroic rage felt as if listening to fame from the voice of death.

ed to the Sheriff, "This is a sharp medicine but a sound cure for all diseases," and kissing it laid it down. Another writer has said "This is that, that will cure all sorrows." After this he went to three several corners of the scaffold, and kneeling down desired all the people to pray for him, and recited a long prayer to himself. When he began to fit himself for the block, he first laid himself down to try how the block fitted him; after rising up, the executioner knelt down to ask his forgiveness, which Raleigh with an embrace gave, but entreated him not to strike till he gave a token by lifting up his hand, and then fear not, but strike home! When he laid down his head to receive the stroke, the executioner desired him to lay his face towards the east. "It was no great matter which way a man's head stood so that his heart lay right," said Raleigh; but these were not his last words. He was once more to speak in this world with the same intrepidity he had lived in it, for, having lain some minutes on the block in prayer, he gave the signal; but the executioner, either unmindful, or in fear, failed to strike, and Raleigh, after once or twice putting forth his hands, was compelled to ask him, "Why dost thou not strike? Strike! man! In two blows he was beheaded; but from the first, his body never shrunk from the spot, by any decomposition of his posture, which, like his mind, was immovable. Thus died this glorious and gallant Cavalier, of whom Osborne says, "His death was managed by him with so high and religious a resolution, as if a Roman had acted a Christian, or rather a Christian a Roman."

After having read the preceding article, we are astonished at the greatness, and the variable nature of this extraordinary man, and his happy genius. With Gibbon, who once meditated to write his life, we may pause, and pronounce "his character ambiguous; but shall not hesitate to decide that Raleigh knew better how to die than to live. "His glorious hours," says a contemporary, "were his arraignment and execution; but never will be forgotten the intermediate years of his lettered imprisonment; the imprisonment of the learned may sometimes be their happiest leisure."

George the fourth's Domestic Habits

He usually received me at from ten to eleven o'clock in his bed. He chatted with me for half an hour or an hour, and was generally very agreeable, although now and then irritable. He was not strictly attentive to facts but embellished all his stories to render them more amusing, so that it would not answer always to repeat his sayings of others. When ill, the King would never allow that it had been caused by his own imprudence. One morning his tongue was white, and he was much heated. "By G—d," said he, "it is very extraordinary that I should be thus heated, for I lived very abstemiously, and went to bed in good time. I must have some beaux de vie, sir." When we went out of the room, W— said, "You must not professionally set upon what his Majesty said; he was drinking marsh-mallows at two o'clock this morning." He was a good judge of the medicine which would best suit him. (This is a strong admission for a medical authority.) He bore enormous doses of opiates—one hundred drops of laudanum, for instance. In bleeding also, I have known from twenty to twenty-five ounces taken from him several times, (probably on that very account.) The King was irregular in his times for eating and drinking. "Bring me cold chicken," he would say at eleven before he rose. "Yes, sire," "Bring it, and give me a goblet of soda-water." Soon after he ate again, and at dinner largely; but he did not in general drink much at dinner, unless tempted by the society of men that he liked. He suffered much from rheumatism and gout, but the colchicum relieved him. One morning, when he had rheumatism in his hip, and there was a doubt about the propriety of giving him colchicum, he said, "Gentlemen, I have borne your half measures long enough to please you—now I will please myself, and take colchicum," which he did, and was soon relieved, &c.—Life of Sir Ashley Cooper.

U. STATES SHIP DELAWARE.

The Boston Advertiser publishes the following dated Rio de Janeiro, United States Ship Delaware, Jan 23, 1843:

"We have just returned from Montevideo, where neither officers nor men were allowed to go on shore, except on business. The place is under martial law. All who are able to bear arms, whether natives or strangers, are mustered every day, in the several districts, in expectation of an attack from the Buenos Ayreans. But we were in no want of amusement while there; spent much of our time in fishing. The River La Plata is famed for the abundance and delicious flavour of its fish. Numerous species of sea fowl are also seen in the Rio; some of monstrous size. In coming out, we caught with hook and line an Albetros. You will wonder and laugh at the idea of the sons of Neptune fowling with fishing tackle. The following is the mode of procedure: A piece of pork, concealed in the book, is towed over the stern of the ship; the tempting morsel is soon espied by the bird; and forthwith, disappears. But alas, "there hangs a tale." The bird is drawn in, and for a while seems to dispel the audacity, on board a

WHO WILL GO BALD?

Worms! The Balm of Columbia for the Hair. FROM Comstock & Co.—Its positive qualities are as follows:—1st. For infants, keeps the hair from falling out, and causes a luxuriant growth of hair.—2d. For ladies after childbirth, restores the skin to its natural strength and prevents the falling out of the hair.—3d. For any person recovering from any debility the same effect is produced. 4th. In infancy till a good growth is started, the hair is preserved by attention to the latest period of life.—5th. It frees the head from dandruff, strengthens the roots, imparts health and color to the circulation, and prevents the hair from changing color or getting gray.—6th. It causes the hair to curl beautifully when done up at a later night.

No individual should ever be made without it. Children who have by any means contracted vermin in the head, are immediately and safely cured of them by its use. It is infallible.

I had been bald about five years—no more hair on the top of my head than on the back of my neck, and my head covered with a thick scurf. In this situation about the 10th of August last, I began using the Balm of Columbia, from Comstock & Co. Since which, I have used two and half bottles of the Balm, which has fully restored my hair, and freed my head entirely from scurf. My head is now covered with fine, flowing hair—which any one may see by calling on me, at Stamford, Connecticut.

one-of-us. The specimen of Alouatta which we obtained, was a young one; but the largest of the feathered tribe I had ever seen. It measured nine feet, from tip to tip of the wings. I am told that in more southern latitudes they measure from 15 to 20 feet. Cape Pigeons were constantly flying around us. They are beautiful birds. The regular tints of black and white seem to have been touched by the hand of an artist. They are, indeed, touched by that Great Artist, the Creator of all things.

"During our stay at Montevideo, we were visited by a pompero. To describe this hurricane would be impossible, and I will not attempt it. At the mouth of the river we encountered a gale, the most severe we have ever yet experienced. I could not have believed there was such power in the wind. When the blow came up, which was very sudden we had nearly all sail set. The first breeze it gave us tore our foresail and two other sails entirely into ribbons, which flew before the wind. Our ship creened so as to dip the muzzles of the main deck guns in the water. A awful indeed was the scene.—To me, destruction seemed inevitable. Our Commander, cool and collected, gave his orders clearly and promptly, and the men obeyed with alacrity. The ship was soon put under easy sail, and rode the "mountain waves" in safety.

"It is generally thought by those on shore that the discipline on board a man-of-war is cruel and tyrannical. This may be the case in some ships, but by no means so on board the Delaware. The kindness of Commodore Morris to the men who have, at different times been under his command, has endeared him to thousands of the poor sons of the ocean.

"Mr. Alden, the Chaplain, is a very kind and feeling man, and is much beloved by all on board. On the third day after we left Montevideo, a gloom was cast over our usually happy crew, by the sudden death of one of our boys, caused by falling from aloft. For a long time no one could be prevailed upon to board the ship. It is melancholy to contemplate the uncertainty of life. But a moment before the poor youth went into eternity, he was gay as any of the laughing crew around him. We buried him in the deep. No fond mother was there to drop a tear over her helpless child—no kind brother or sister saw him cast into his watery grave. Yet he left in friendship's heart an epitaph behind."

Death of the Hon. G. A. Waggaman.

The New Orleans papers of the 24th ultimo announce the death of the Hon. George A. Waggaman, from wounds received some time ago in a duel.

The New Orleans Bee of March 24th, says: The Hon. George A. Waggaman expired yesterday at a quarter past one o'clock. This result was anticipated soon after his duel, and for the last three days was quite certain, as mortification had begun its work of death. From a post mortem examination of the body it was discovered that the femoral artery had been completely severed, as declared by his attending surgeon when he received the wound.

The deceased was made aware of his approaching dissolution several days ago. He met his destiny with composure and firmness, and breathed his last surrounded by his wife, children, and a number of his friends.

FROM MEXICO.

The United schooner Dolphin, from Vera Cruz, touched at the Southeast Pass on the 22d of March. The news is given briefly by the New Orleans papers.

Tranquility prevailed throughout Mexico. President Santa Anna had left his farm near Vera Cruz, in order to be present at the adoption of the new Constitution in the Capital.

Information had reached Vera Cruz of the recapture of one hundred and eleven of the Texian prisoners, and that the Mexicans were close up with the remainder.

It is said that Santa Anna has sent agents to Houston to treat for peace between Mexico and Texas.

The Mexican army is said to be very numerous.

The official letters from the Mexican commander near Campechy speak in a confident tone of the immediate success of the enterprise; and the Vera Cruz papers record the frequent departure of reinforcements to the besiegers, which they believe renders the fall of Campechy absolutely certain.

From Florida.—Cap. J. R. Vinton,

with his Company of the 5d Regiment United States Artillery, recently stationed at St. Augustine, in Florida, arrived at Savannah on Tuesday last in the steamer General Taylor, and immediately proceeded to Augusta, to be stationed at the Arsenal near that city. Lieutenant Hammond and Bragg are attached to the company.

The St. Augustine News of the 25th ultimo, mentions the return of a party of gentlemen from an expedition to Lake Worth, (situated immediately in the rear of what is laid down on the army maps at Boca Raton), some eight or ten miles south of Jupiter Inlet, who represent the lands in that section of country as being very rich indeed. Frost, they say, has never been known there. The sweet potatoes, sugar cane, and pease planted by the Indians are as green and as fresh as they generally are in the months of June or July; and the sugar cane which they found growing in the Indian old fields measured from six and a half to seven inches in circumference and from twenty to twenty-two feet in length, and was filled with juice of a superior quality.

Boring for an Office.—The Philadelphia Forum tells the following:

"Do you know Judge Blythe's?" said a customer home-borer to a perfect stranger yesterday, on Sander's's steps.

"Yes," was the reply.

"I wish you would introduce me, then."

"I will," said the gentleman, "on one condition."

"What is it?"

"Get some one to introduce you to me."
