THE CAROLINA WATCHMAN.

BRUNER & JAMES, Editors & Proprietors. NEW SERIES, NUMBER 18, OF VOLUME 1.

SALISBURY, N. C., AUGUST 31, 1844.

SHORT CHAPTER ON THE TARIFF.

It is estimated that it requires over one million of foreigners to manufacture the foreign articles annually consumed in the United States.

LEUT. FREMONT'S EXPEDITION.

We find the following notice of this expedition, just returned to St. Louis, in the Daily Missouriian: "The party, it will be remembered, left this city on the 18th of May, 1843—very nearly three months ago—by the latter part of that month they had passed the western boundary of Missouri and launched out into the Prairies."

POWER TO LIVE OR DIE.

The most singular instance of the power of the will over the functions of the body, and taken altogether, perhaps the most remarkable case on record, being supported by the testimony of unquestionable authority, is related by Dr. Cheyne, in his "English Malady."

The Shark and the Gold Spectacles.

The narrator once sailed on board a ship, he said, in which there was a very near-sighted passenger, who always wore a pair of gold spectacles. He had forgotten to provide himself with a second pair, before he left, and being a man of nervous temperament, he was perpetually worrying himself with the idea that by some accident or other he should lose the only ones he had during the voyage, and thus be left for sometime in a most unpleasant predicament, not being able to see a yard before him without the assistance of glasses.

Do you ask who is this madman who can forget so quickly a moral peril?

Learn then, friend, that this man is thyself. The dragon of the stream, is the ever open abyss of death. The camel represents the sorrows of life. The two mice who are gnawing at the roots of the shrub, are day and night, and in this situation the fruit of pleasure attracts you.

EXTRACTS FROM AN ADDRESS.

Delivered by R. M. HARRISON, of Washington City, before the Mass Meeting in Hagerstown, Maryland. It is pleasant at all times, fellow citizens, to retire from the din and bustle of a metropolis to the solitude of the distant mountains; there is something in their silent recesses and lofty heights that soothes, expands, and elevates the heart of man; but just at this time it is really relieving to turn away the weary eyes from the dull and gloomy scenes of Washington, and rest them upon your verdant hills and valleys, and upon the bright and beaming countenances of your free and happy yeomanry.

Ludicrous Transmutations of Names.

The following amusing story is told by Mr. Livingston, in his admirable answer to Mr. Jefferson's defence of his conduct to Mr. L. for ousting him from the possession of the famous butte at New Orleans, purchased by Mr. Livingston from Gravier. It is intended to show how, by translations and re-translations, a troublesome word may be made to mean any thing.

From the Richmond Whig, of August 17th.

Tyler's Last Card. We have heard it mysteriously hinted that Tyler had yet a last card to play—some new thunder which even Locofocoism could not steal from him, as it did that of Texas, and which would prove annihilative of everybody's pretensions to the Presidency but his own.

An Awful Situation.

A thrilling adventure lately happened to a bridal party, visiting the Mammoth Cave, Kentucky. The party consisted of the bride and groom, the bridesmaid, the brother of the groom, and guide. After entering the cave, and traversing that portion most frequented, which occupied many hours, a violent storm arose, accompanied by heavy showers of rain.

Arkansas Insects.

The last Arkansas Traveller tells a good story of a citizen of that State who, while on board a steamer on the Mississippi, was asked by a gentleman "whether the raising of stock in Arkansas was attended by much difficulty or expense?" "Oh, yes, stranger,—they suffer much from insects." "Insects! Why, what kind of insects pray?" "Why—bears, tatamounds, wolves, and such like insects." The stranger stopped farther inquiry, nor did he deem it necessary to explain to the Arkansas some passages in Goldsmith's Natural History.

The Louisiana Senators Sustained.

One of the most important features of the late whig triumph in Louisiana, is that the course of the enlightened and independent Whig Senators from that State on the Texas Question has been thoroughly sustained by their constituents and the people at large. They both voted against the Treaty of Annexation; and the letter of Mr. Alexander Barrow in opposition to it was one of the best reasoned, and most influential documents which the discussion of this question called forth.

A Persecuted man: new mode of Courtship.

A Mr. Casey who lives 'out West' recently testified in Court that the widow Manning who was desperately in love with him, "not only asked him to marry her, but when he refused she followed him and eluded bricks at him and played various games of that sort." Poor Mr. Casey!

EASTERN PARABLE.

A man was travelling in Syria, leading his camel by the bridle. Suddenly the animal is seized with a panic of fear—he raises himself with impetuosity, foams and bounds in a manner so horrible that his master abandons him in anguish and tries to save himself. He perceived at some distance from the road a deep stream, and as he still heard the fearful neighings of the camel, he sought a refuge there and fell over the precipice. But a shrub held him up. He clung to it with both hands, and cast on every side his anxious eyes. Above him is the terrible camel, of which he does not lose sight for a moment.

Temper.

The first & most important female quality is sweetness of temper. Heaven did not give to the female sex insinuation and persuasion, in order to be surly; it did not make them weak, in order to be imperious; it did not give them a sweet voice, in order to be employed in scolding; nor did it provide them with delicate features, in order to be disfigured with anger.

The Sabbath.

It is getting to be fashionable with the steamers, rail cars, passage boats, &c., to observe the Sabbath. The fashion has been growing on us for some years; and as it is a good fashion, and altogether in accordance with the spirit of the age, it will undoubtedly become universal. Lines just commencing may now very safely begin right. It would be easier and more reputable to anticipate the fashion a little, than to be driven by it when it becomes irresistible.

A Testotal Whig Town.

The village of Bloomingburg, Fayette county, Ohio, containing several hundred inhabitants, with several churches, stores, mechanics' shops, and taverns, has none—not one Locofoco in it. What is equally creditable, there is not in the town or its neighborhood a dram-shop, doggery, grocery, tavern, or any other place where intoxicating drink can be had as a beverage! And, scarcely less creditable, there may be seen in the several parts of this town three tall ash flag poles from which float banners inscribed "Clay and Freminghams," "Harry of the West," "Pick your boys; go it boys 500 majority for Fayette."

Plate—Another Specimen of War—The siege of SARAGOSSA.

Saragossa, says Vaughan, possessed very slender resources to sustain a siege. Its fortifications consisted merely of mud walls; it was destitute of heavy artillery, and without troops that could undertake sorties. The Aragonese did what they could to place their troops in a state of defence. They tore down the awnings from their windows, and formed them into sacks, which they filled with sand, and piled up before every gate in the form of a battery, digging round each of them a deep trench.

Devil's Wages.

It is an extraordinary fact that the moment they lose their footing in a stream, they turn over and can make no effort to prevent themselves from being drowned.

The Queen and the Jeweller.

The following is the copy of a note sent by Ann, Queen of James I, to George Heriot, the wealthy Jeweller:—"Ane present of the Queen, George Heriot, I earnestly desire your present the send me tua hundred pounds, with all expedition, because I maun hest me away present."

A new Article of Export.

One hundred hales North River hay have been purchased in New York for shipment to Great Britain. This says the Shipping List, is we believe the first shipment of hay ever made to Great Britain from this country. To France parcels have been sent occasionally for a year or two past.
