

the five surviving establishments, would be reduced to half wages; the various interests engaged in the subsistence, clothing and sheltering the manufacturing people, in supplying the materials required in the manufacture of the Glass and Glass articles, in conveying these materials to be manufactured, and transporting the manufactured articles to the point of consumption, would all be injured to the extent, proportionately, of the injury inflicted on the manufacturing establishments.

Such a result as this might be gratifying to the admirers of Mr. Walker's report, and the facts might be stated in an appendix to the next edition of that work, published under the auspices of the British House of Lords. To the true friends of American Industry, however, it is not probable that such results would be gratifying. The public at large using glass articles would get them no cheaper by being obliged to support foreign rather than domestic labor in procuring them, and no one single advantage would follow, except such as would accrue to foreign interests.

"The Cyane, from Peru, is also daily expected.

"There are now in port the frigate Saratoga, Com. Sloat, the Levant, Captain Page, and the Portsmouth, Capt. Montgomery; officers and crews are all in good health."

Letter from the Editor, dated

"WATERBOROUGH, March 12, 1846.

Mr. Leak, (or rather "Colonel" Leak,) has entered upon the canvass for Governor in earnest. He spent a good part of the week of Montgomery Superior Court, (a fortnight ago) at the Court House, and there sat at his elbow, as he was a candidate. This week he has spent here, electing members most assiduously, (but I think with no effect.) I never saw a Candidate for the House of Commons more active among the crowd in a Court yard, than he has been. Of course, no one will complain of this. I only mention it as an evidence that the system of canvassing, by making stump speeches in the various counties, is about to be so extended as to embrace what is commonly called "back-fighting." It remains to be seen whether it will make up in success for what it lacks in dignity.

Perhaps, as Mr. Leak is from this section of the State, and may not be generally known in other parts, it may be my duty to give my readers some idea of the gentleman who is thus selected, as the competitor of our present excellent and most capable Governor. I have long known Mr. Leak, and entertain for him personally none but kind feelings. I cannot, therefore, during the approaching canvass, be accused of setting down "ought in malice."

In the first place, let me remark, that Mr. Leak has no more claim to the title of "Colonel" than I have. This is the beginning of that system of humbug and fraud by which his party invariably attempted to gull the public. There was first "Colonel" Hoke, and then "Colonel" Polk, neither of whom, I imagine, had any better claim to military title than "Col." Leak; but the unexpected success of one of them, and the near approach to success of the other, have doubtless induced the party to think that there is some magic in the title—that the people can be gulled and humbugged by so very small and shallow a trick. It is right that I should say, that I am sure Mr. Leak had no hand in this humbug.

Mr. Leak is largely engaged in planting (his estate being almost entirely in S. Carolina.) He was educated for the legal profession, and practiced with moderate success for a few years. He was in the Legislature many years ago, and has frequently of late aspired to the same station, but his political opinions were odious to his neighbors, and he had not sufficient personal popularity to atone for them. His predominant trait is an insatiable ambition for public life and political distinction—the last effort to attain this object, (previous to the present,) being his application to Mr. Polk for the office of Consul at Havana. And now he is willing to accept the honor which was intended first for Fisher and then for Caldwell, and which has been tendered to him by many of our respectable individuals of the County of Anson, solemnly "conferred and organized" into a "Democratic meeting!"

Mr. Leak was once a United States Bank man. He is now of course opposed to such an institution. He was a Crawford man in opposition to Jackson, and others. He was next a Jackson man in opposition to Adams. He was then a Jackson and Barlow man in opposition to Adams and Van Buren. He was a White man in opposition to Van Buren. He was also a Whig whilst Mr. Calhoun was Whig; for he was and is a great admirer of Mr. Calhoun and has been a consistent opponent of Mr. Van Buren, except that whilst Mr. Van Buren was in the Presidential Chair, he supported the Administration.

In one respect at least the Whigs may congratulate themselves that Mr. Leak is the opponent of Gov. Graham; for he is a living illustration of the humbuggery of one of the most potent, if not one of the most true assertions of the stump orators of that party; viz: that the manufacturers, the "lords of the loom"—made the enormous dividends of 20 to 30 per cent, a year, by virtue of the odious black Whig Tariff, whilst the poor oppressed farmer could make but 1 or 2 per cent. Now it so happens that Mr. Leak is one of these "lords of the loom," and whilst he has grown rich as a farmer, or planter, his manufacturing capital, with all the aid of the tariff which he complains of so bitterly, has never paid him one cent of dividend for the six or eight years in which the Factory has been in operation! Of course he is precluded from preaching from the usual text of his party, about the tariff oppressions of the farmer, and bonnies to the manufacturer.

I have never heard Mr. Leak make a speech, and understand that whilst he is not by any means profound, he is quite fluent and plausible. The Whigs, recollecting how much more effective is sound than sense, among Mr. Leak's party, must not be guilty of the error of underestimating him. He will make prodigious efforts to be elected, in which he will be seconded by his party.—Fay. Observer.

UNION INSTITUTE.

Rev. B. CRAVEN, Principal.

THIS INSTITUTE is located in the North-West corner of Randolph county, N. C. Its healthy situation shields it from the prominent evils of a rural village Institution. The Institute is not denominational, but it has been well said that "the Bible has a prominent place in the UNION INSTITUTE." "When we say our students must not honorably, we mean what we say. The students attend daily lectures on the history and practical parts of the Bible, also regular Sabbath School. The course of instruction is inferior only to the University. The object of the Institute is to discipline the mind for the duty of life, to cultivate the moral powers, to instruct the young men of this country sufficiently for their profession, to give them a thorough Classical Education or to prepare them for any class in College." Occasional lectures are delivered by the Principal on Natural History, Geology, Chemistry and Natural Philosophy—also explanatory lectures on the particular duties of the classes. The first session commenced on the last Thursday of March and September, and continues five months. The number of Students during the past year was 95, for which patronage the Directors return their grateful acknowledgments to the public. There has been some difficulty in procuring board owing to the increased number of students, but arrangements have been made to accommodate any number. The literary character of the INSTITUTE is well known, having had change of the Institute four years, during which time it has arisen to its present prosperous condition. The Associates are well prepared for their station. The exceeding lowness of terms is not intended to disparage any other Institution, but to place the opportunity of acquiring a good education in reach of every young man in the country.
