Toss not the branching trees so wildly high, Filling the forest with thy dreary sound : Without thy aid the hues of summer die, And the sear leaves fall scatter'd to the ground, Thou dost but hasten, needless'y unkind, The winter's task, thou meaning autumn wind ?

Sweep not through Ocean's caves with hollow roar, Driving our fair ships to some rock-bound strand! While the vex'd sea foams wrathful to the shore, The sailor's wife looks shuddering from the land, And widow'd hearts for many a year shall find Death in thy voice, thou mouning autumn wind !

Round our calm dwellings, when our hearts are gay, Roam not, oh howling Spirit of Despair ! As though thou wert a creature seeking prey, And where the land look'd richest, found it there. We have enough of memories unkind, Without thy voice, thou monning autumn wind Thee the sad mourner lists, and turns to weep, In the blank silence of her lonely home ; The sick man hears and starts from broken sleep. And the night-wanderer sighs-compell'd to roam While the poor shiver, for their huts unkind Bar thee not out, thou searching automn wind !

Back to the barren hill and lonely glen ! Here let the wandering of thy echoes cease; Sadly thou soundest to the hearts of men,-Hush, thy wild voice, and let the earth have peace Or, if no chain thy restless will can bind, Sweep through the desert, moaning autumn wind !

THE THREE VOICES.

What snith the past to thee ? Weep! Truth is departed ; Beauty hath died like the dream of a sleep, Love is faint-hearted ; Trifles of sense, the profoundly unreal, Scarce from our spirits God's holy ideal-So, as a funeral bell, slow and deep, So tolls the past to thee! Weep!

How speaks the present hour? .. Act. Walk, upward glancing ; So shall thy footsteps in glory be tracked. Slow, but advancing.

Scorn not the smallness of daily endeavor; Let the great meaning ennoble it ever; Droop not o'ex efforts expended in vain ; Work, as believing that labor is gain.

What doth the fature say ? Hope ! Turn thy face sunward! Look where the light fringes the far rising slope Day cometh onward.

Watch! Though so long be twilight delaying Let the first sunbcam arise on thee praying ; Fear not, for greater is God by thy side, Than armies of Satan against thee allied!

Character of a Young Ludy drawn from life. - Harriet is not a beauty, but in her presence beauties are contented with themselves. At first she scarcely appears pretty, but the more she is beheld, the more agreeable she appears. She gains where others loses. She is equalled by few in a sweet expression of countenance, and without dazzling the beholders slie interests them. She loves dress and is a good judge of it, despises finery, but dresses with a peculiar grace mixing simplicity with elegance. She covers her beauties so artfully as to give grace to the imagination. She prepares herself for managing the house of her father. Cookery is familiar to her, also price and quality of provisions; and she is a ready accountant. She holds cleanliness and neatness to be indispensible in a woman, and that a slattern is disgusting, especially if beautiful. The attention to external, does not make her overlook more internal duties. Harriet's understanding is solid, without being profound .-Her sensibility is too great for perfect equality of temper; but her sweetness renders that inequality harmless. She suffers with patience any wrong she is done, but is impatient to repair any wrong she has done, and does it so cordially as to make it appear meritorious. It she happen to disoblige a companion, her joys and caresses, when restored to favor, show the burthen that lay upon her. The love of virtue is her ruling passion: because it is the glory of the female sex; she loves it as the only road to happiness, misery being the sure attendant of a woman without a virtue. Of the absent she never talks but with circumspection, her female acquaintance especially. She has remarked, that what renders woman prone to detraction, is talking of their own sex, and that they are more equitable with respect to the men. Harriet never talks of women but to express the good she knows of them; of others she says nothing. Without much knowledge of the world, she is attentive, obliging and graceful in all she does. A good disposition does more for her than art in others.

PREPARATION OF COFFEE.

In Silliman's Journal we find a notice of a memoir on coffee by the distinguished French chemist, M. Payen. The results brought out by his chemical researches agree exactly with facts previously known in regard to this article. A great error in the prepartion of coffee is that it is burned too much, by which the liquid, when it is brought to the table, is deprived of its agreeable flavor, and has a bitter, unpleasant taste. The reason of this is shown:

"Coffee roasted only till it becomes slightly red, preserves the maximum of weight and aroma, but gives out less coloring matter. In this state, 100 pounds are found to have lost 15, but have increased to the bulk of 120 .- Roasted to a chestnut color, as is commonly done, the ume is from 140 to 150. This swelling of the grain depends upon the property which the nitrogenous matter deposited within the tissue has of puffing up remarkably when heated.

color is produced, and the grain is covered with a sort of glaze, the loss is 25 per cent., while the original quantity of nitrogen, 245 per cent, is reduced to 177, being a loss of one-fourth."

From the Richmond Times. THE NEW YORK DEMOCRACY.

The "Natural allies of the South" in New York, have involved themselves in a sea of troubles, by slurring over, without rejecting or approving, the Wilmot Proviso, at the Syracuse Convention. A bedlamite feud prevade the whole party. Presses are thundering out anathemas on each side, and their quarrels are only exacerbated by occasional lectures from the Washington Union, which, at last, has been constrained to indicate a leaning towards the side of the Ohio Hunkers, that faction being now apparently in predominance. The war comprising every description for gentlemen's and ladies' having waxed extremely violent in New York city, some of the prominent mainstays of the administration, such as Capt. Rynders and others of that ilk, called a grand assemblage of the city Democracy, for the purpose of restoring harmony and forcing the refractory Barnburners to give in adhesion to the proceedings of the Syracuse Convention. The meeting took place in the famous "Tammany Hall," Friday evening last, and we have a most laughable report of the proceedings in the Herald. The commercial Advertiser says:

"An uproarious time was expected; but the lookers on say that neither expectation nor any former experience could have prefigured such a pow wow as was presented. The elements of discord existing in the party laughed to scorn all the agencies, potent as they are, that have in former times been able to control the mass. and break in its refractory members; neither fair words, nor entreaties, nor stern rebukes, northreats, nor coaxing, had the slightest effect; and even divers "favorite sons" were metaphorically, if not physically, buffeted, hustled and badgered, by their affectionate fathers and brothers, with an unction that seemed to proclaim the existence of no small enjoyment in the exercise.

"The preliminary business of appointing a chairman, secretaries, &c., was gone through remarkable attend the reading of the prepared resolutions until the fifth was reached, being an approval of the nominations made at Syracuse. This was greeted as the signal for active operations by the dissentient party.' We have no room for the Herald's long account of the groans, the hissing, the hurras, the outeries, and fights that followed. Capt. Ryn. ders was conspicuous in all. The following brief extract from the report, will at once exhibit the great bone of contention, (the Proviso question,) and the character of the assemblage:

Mr Brady rises amid cheers and hisses. Mr. Harris-Will you hear Mr. Brady-No,' 'Yes,' 'No,' 'No,' 'No-o'-'Yes'-

Mr. Brady-Fellow citizens. 'Hurrah'-Cheers'-hisses-confusion. 'Go on Brady, loss is 20 per cent., while the increase in vol. | my boy'-"Where's the $36,000 ?' Cheers and

I say if there are any gentlemen in this room who desire to occupy this rostrum in preference to me, I shall be most happy to surrender it to them. (Cries of "no, no."-"Go on." "Yes, yes."

" Another lull, (we adopt the Commercial's condensed account,) and Mr. Brady finished his speech, not without an occasional interruption. But when the question was put, or rather proposed to be put, on the address and resolutions there came a whirlwind of uproar, to which all the preceding doings were mere zephyrs. We do not care to enlarge our quotations; it is enough to say that the rest was one continued scene of shoutings, groanings, hisses, fisticullings hustlings, rowdyism in general, and at last (this the Herald's resort asserts expressly) the meeting broke up, no questions having been tacounts from Berlin and Frankfort an- ken on address or resolutions.
