THE DESERTED WIFE.

44,443,171 BY J. G. PERCIVAL.

He come not-I have watched the moon go down, But yet he comes not : Once was it not so, He thinks not how these bitter tears do flow, The while he holds his riot in that town. Yet he will come and chide, and I shall weep ; And will wake my infant from its sleep, To blend its feeble wailing with my tears. Oh how I love a mother's watch to keep Over those sleeping eyes, that smile, which cheers My heart, though sunk in sorrow, fix'd and deep. I had a husband ohce, who loved me-now He ever wears a frown upon his brow, And feeds his passion on a wanton's lip, As bees, from laurel flowers, a poison sip, But yet I cannot hate-oh, there were hours When I could hang forever on his eye, And time, who stole with silent swiftness by Strew'd, as he harried on, his path with flowers. I loved him then-he loved me too? My heart Still finds his fondness kindle if he smile The memory of our love will ne'er depart, And though he often sting me with a dart. Venom'd and barb'd and waste upon the vile Caresses, which his babe and mine should share ; Though he should spurn me, I will calmly bear His madness-and should sickness come and lay Its paralyzing hand upon him, then I would with kindness, all my wrongs repay, Until the penitent should weep and say How injured and how faithful I have been !

THE CASS PARTY .- The New Orleans bulletin says : The present position of the Cass party reminds us of a story we once heard of a farmer, who one morning let his sheep out of the pen. Having put down the bars, the old man stood by to count them as they hopped over, and began, 'There goes one,'-'there goes two,'-'there goes three,'-'there goes old Ewe,'-'there goes a black one,'- there goes a whole heap,'-and, 'curse them, there they all go !"

"So it is with the Cass party. At first we could count the deserters-one, two, three; but it was soon ascertained that the bounds were broken-that the bars were down, and the 'old ewes' and the 'black ones' began hopping out very fast, followed so rapidly by 'whole heaps,' as to bid defiance to any attempts to keep count ; and soon poor Cass will have to exclaim, 'Curse them, there they all go !" "

It was truly a heart-warm rally, a cordial movement of the masses. All present seemed to acquire new confidence in the cause and in the prospect. The accounts of the recent State Convention and the immense Mass Meeting at Harrisburg, were listened to with the deepest interest. Pennsylvania is evidently rousing herself for the struggle. Her freemen are alive to the great stake involved, and will exert themselves to the utmost to secure a noble triumph as well in October as November next.

A SHAVE .- A Kentucky friend some years since reated to us the following anecdote, as having actually occurred in that State :

There was a roystering sort of a fellow named Peter Russell, but usually called Pete Russell, who owned a good deal of property, and therefore had a pecuniary responsibility, though he was always in want of money, and frequently in the hands of shavers.

On one occasion he went to a certain accommodating friend, to borrow two thousand dollars-" yes," said his friend, " Pete, I will lend you the two thousand dollars, and without interest too, if you will give your bill for the amount on London."

"Oh, no," replied Petes " I can't stand that. If I give you a bill on London, the cursed thing will be back on me here under protest, in four months at furthest, and then I must pay you the amount and twenty per cent. damages. "That's too deep a dig."

"Well," said Shylock," that is cutting it rather fat, I acknowledge, but I will tell you Pete, what I will do-I will take your bill on London for two thousand dollars, and pay you for it two thousand two hundred, and the two thousand dollars, and twenty per cent. damages, making together two thousand four hundred, which will leave me only two hundred dollars."

" Agreed," said Pete, " I am willing to stand that." So down they sat to prepare the documents.

" But, who the deuce shall I draw upon in London," said Pete, " I do not know a single soul there." " It is perfectly immaterial who you draw upon," said his friend. " So far as I am concerned, I am willing you should draw upon the town pump." " By Jove !" said Pete; " I have it-I'll draw upon my cousin, the Duke of Bedford.

It will be recollected that the family name of his Grace is Russell, and Pete was in the habit of boasting that he had descended from the same stock. So Pete " let two thousand dollars on his Grace of Bedford ; and received the stipulated amount of two thousand two hundred dallars. The bill, of course, had to be sent out to London, to be presented to his Grace, and regularly protestrd, in order to establish a legal claim upon the drawer. One morning it was accordingly found, with other docnments, on the table in the Duke's study, having been left for acceptance or payment.

" And who," said his Grace of Bedford, taking up the bill, and addressing his man of business, " is this Peter Russell, that is drawing on me for two thousand dollars ! I never heard of him before, and do not know by what nuthority he does so."

"I am equally ignorant, your Grace," said the homme d'affaires. "I know nothing of him."

Well," said his Grace, after musing a moment, " it is probable that he is some poor and distant branch of my family, who has wandered away off there to the wilds of Kentucky, and is in distress ; the amount is but a trifle ; let the bill be paid ;" and paid it was.

In the course of time Pete's friend got back two thousand dollars, less Bankers' commissions, and without some months previously.

It was a regular share, only the sharer became the late Colonel of the Virginia Regiment, to a "public festival" given by "the Democratic party of Jefferson in connexion with their brethren of the adjoining counties."

I thank you kindly, gentlemen, for the invitation and, however gratified I may feel at the greetings and "welcome home" of my fellow citizens, I am constrained to decline your polite invitation, as the festival seems to have in view the defeat of our old Chief-whom the enemies of our country could never defeat, whilst the soldiers who served under him are complimented with an invitation to the meeting.

I am, gentlemen, respectfully, Your obedient servant.

This letter affords ample evidence, if any when it comes back protested, you will have to refund were wanting, of the ground, and the only ground, on which Mr. Cass ever opposed the Wilmot proviso, and is in strict keeping with his speech. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19, 1847.

My Dear Sir-Your friend Doyle will be se. lected as a lieutenant, and I am glad we can to your recommendation.

I am pressed to death by business, or I would write you a longer letter. However, the newspapers give you a full account of our strange proceedings. We have not done much good : but they say it is darkest just before daylight, and I am inclined to think that our darkest hour has past. It seems to me that good is coming out of mischief. There is a more determined spirit to support the administration than I have seen heretofore.

It is now distinctly understood, and it will be the democratic sentiment throughout the country, that everything must give way to a vigorous prosecution of the war, and that no measures new Steamer must be proposed that will embarrass the administration.

The Wilmot Proviso will not pass the Senate. It would be death to the war-death to all hopes of getting an acre of territory-death to the administration, and death to the demointerest, for two thousand two hundred he had paid Pete cratic party. It was not so intended. It no doubt originated with proper feelings; but things sions have now come to such a pass, that its adoption

The meeting was addressed by Joseph R. Chandler, Governor Johnston, Ex-Governor Pennington, of New Jersey, Z. Collins Lee, and the Hon. W. Cost Johnston, and by several others.

Senator Dayton, of New Jersey, Col. W. F. Haskell, of Tennessee, and Senator Reverdy Johnson, of Maryland, who had been also expected, were detained away by unavoidable occurrences. The News says :

"It was the GREAT MEETING of the campaign thus far. The Saloon was crowded in every part. The movement was cordial, unanimous and enthusiastic. -The Young Men may well be proud of such a demonstration. Nothing superior in the way of numbers, zeal, interest and enthusiasm, is likely to take place before the name of Taylor was mentioned, it elicited a volley of cheers. The friends of Old Zack are beginning to show themselves, not by dozens and hundreds, but by thousands, and the puzzle will be, after the election, where all the votes came from.'

Our friend, from whom we had the story, said he never heard whether Pete ever renewed the operation. We can only add, that we have often wished we had such a cousin in London .- N. O. Bulletin.

A CAPITAL STORY.

Every body knows Bob Foster, of Franklin, a fellow of " infinite jest," of most exquisite humor, whose jokes art inimitable. Bob is a Democrat ; but he told us a noy the other day which he declared beat the telegraph all hollow, wonderful as that great agent of news is acknowledged to be. At the risk of "marring a curious tale in the telling," (for Bob's imitative manner of course is wanting) we may state that we received, in Louisburg, the news of Gen. Taylor's nomination on Friday afternoon, 9th June, and the gallant Whigs of that ancient town immediately fired in thundering salute on the oceasion. Bob was at home, somewhat over two miles from town, and, when he heard the first gun, but little dreamed of the cause. But he was attracted by the guinea-chickens ; they all flocked together at the report, and set up the song which spoke plainly in Bob's cars: It's old Zack ! It's old Zack ! It's old Zack | It's old Zack ! It's bld Zack ! And the peacock jumped up on the fence, stretchen his neck to listen awhile at the guineas, and then gave three cheers .- " Hurrah ! hurrah ! hurrah !" and this was repearted by them all every time the cannon fired. Bob says he thus knew, in utter defiance of the telegraph, that Gen. Taylor was nominated, and he is bound to vote for him .- N. C. Times.

It is distinctly avowed by the Southern members of Congress that they would not vote for any measures for the prosecution of the war, nor would they ratify any treaty, if this provision becomes a law. It will probably go back from the Senate to the House, where I hope the appropriation will pass without any proviso.

I am, with great respect, truly yours, LEWIS CASS.

Should not Southern men beware how they select a man for the Presidency whose tergiversation has been so open, so notorious, and so shameless, on such a question, in so short a space of time as lies between February and TOPRE STATES December of the same year ?

PRINCIPLE.

If any thing were wanting to convince us that the Locofoco party, (we mean the leaders,) were perfectly regardless of the issue of all those questions connected with slavery, save in so far as they may be convenient party weapons, it would be amply supplied by the course of the Locofoco Southern press, since Mr. Polk signed the Oregon bill. Nine months ago, Mr. Winthrop was denounced by the Union, the Enquirer, the Louisiana Courier, and the whole Southern Locofoco press, for inserting the Wilmot proviso in the Oregon bill of 1845.
