POETICAL

A SIMILITUDE ...... SY R. A. WILMOTT. In Thalaba-thrice wond'rous tale !-Before the Arabian's weary eye, With nectar-fruit was seen to sail The green bird through the lonely sky. So Hope-carth's bird of paradise-To sad, foot-bleeding pilgrim brings From green sun-garden in the skies The grape of promise on its wings.

And though time's ploughshare, rudely driven, Sweet thoughts-heart's violets-may destroy Fresh blossoms, nursed by dew of heaven. Spring up to fill our breast with joy.

Over the ruins of youth's dream, Seeds, dropt by unseen fingers fall; To grow on Faith's awakening gleam, Like flowers along a mouldering wall.

WHEN FORTUNE BEAMS. When fortune beams around you, When hearts with pleasure leap And hopes and joys surround you-Forget not those who weep ! When friendship's smile invites you-To bless and to be blest : When every charm delights you-Oh, think of the distressed ! When golden gales betide you-Forget not those who need ! When pleasures cup seems endless, Oh prove it without end ; By being to the friendless In every hour a friend !

THE CITY OF ROME. of what was formerly covered with buildings is now cal- started, and ran off at his greatest speed on his " back track." tivated This is particularly the case with much of the southeast part within the city walls and east and south of the Capitoline Hill. Bad air (malaria) is said to be the cause of the desertion of this part of the city. The ancient hills are still to be found, but are by no means so prominent as they once were, on account of the vallies having been filled up by the rubbish constantly accumulating. In this way the place of the ancient forum has been filled up at least fifteen feet. The land of the Tarpeian rock is so much filled up that the modern traveller is prone to think that it would be far from certain death to be thrown from its top. It is not, as formerly, seventy-five feet high, with heaps of rocks below. / In the northeast part are extensive gardens, and on the west side of them are the residences of the English and Americans. The palace of the Pope is near the centre of the city. The Church of St. Peter is on the west side ; it is 750 feet long, and $50 wide, and will hold $52,000 people. It cost $50,000,000. The statue of St. Peter stands not far distant. It was formerly a statue of Jupiter, and was changed by one of the early Popes into that of the spostle by some mysterious power, without changing its material substance in the least ; which gave rise to the remark of the wag, that it was formerly the statue of Jupiter, and it is that of Jew-Peter still. The report that the great toe of this statue has been entirely worn away by the lips of the Catholics is not exactly true.-It is a Protestant slander. Yet it is true that the repeated kisses of the faithful for hundreds of years have worn it away considerably. No Catholic passes it without stopping to kiss it. To see poor ignorant people do so, that is bad enough ; but to see men of learning and science, and of cultivated minds, like the Pope and Cardinals, constantly approaching this image with all reverence, and wiping this toe with their handkerchiefs, kins it, wipe it again, and go on their way, is quite beyond endurance. One can have no patience with them. Dr. Baird.

Therefore must all the people seize arms and support the army, that thus united the victory of the freedom of Europe may be won. Fly then united with the army to arms, every citizen of the land, and the victory is

ANECDOTES OF THE GREY FOX.

The following anecdotes, from ' Audubou's Quadrupeds of America,' may interest our read-

Shortly after the railroad from Charleston to Hamburgh, S. C., had been constructed, the rails for a portion of the distance having been from the ground, supported by strong posts, we observed a fox which was hard pressed by a pack of hounds mounting the rails, upon which he ran several hundred yards; the dogs were unable to pursue him, and he thus crossed a deep cypress swamp over which the railroad was in this singular manner carried, and made his escape on the opposite side.

The late Benjamin C. Yancy, Esq., an em. inent lawyer, who in his youth was very fond of fox-hunting, relates the following. A fox had been pursued, near his residence in Edge. field, several times, but the hounds always lost the track at a place where there is a foot path leading down a steep hill. He, therefore, de. termined to conceal himself near this declivity the next time the fox was started, in order to discover his mode of baffling the dogs at this place. The animal was accordingly put up many bayous and ponds in the woods, but at length came running over the brow of the hill along the path, stopped suddenly and spread himself flat and motionless on the ground; the Rome is still where it has been for more than 2600 hounds come down the hill in pursuit at a dashyears; it is upon the Tiber, sixteen miles from its mouth, ing pace, and the whole pack passed and did which runs South through the western part of the city, not stop till they were at the hottom of the hill. and then turns west, and continues that course to its As soon as the immediate danger was over, outlet, where it is some three hundred feet wide. Much the fox, casting a furitive glance around him.

AFFECTING INCIDENT.

An old man, residing in this city, formerly in the British Naval service, who had lost a hand in an action on a man of war, being entitled to a pension from a British government, lately went to Toranto, Canada, to receive it. He returned yesterday morning. When he reached his domicil he found the door locked and the house deserted. His heart sank within him; for he had endured the pangs of a painful presentiment that the fatal epidemic would smile his family in his absence, and now his fears seemed too surely realized. Recovering somewhat from the stupor of his sudden grief tral, and in great abundance.' he made inquiry in the neighborhood, and learned that his son and daughter had fallen under the hand of the relentless destroyer, and that the residue of his family had been borne away, ill of cholera, by some kind Samaritans, to some Hospital. With a heavy heart, saddened by the known loss of two children, and weighed down with almost crushing forebodings regarding the remaining ones of his loved family, he set out to seek them. After an anxious canvass he had the joy to find them all-his wife and three children-well/cared for, in the temporary Hospital established by the good people of the First Ward, and rapidly regain. ing their health. A friend who witnessed the meeting of the warm hearted old tar with the remnant of his broken family, represents the scene as indiscribably pathetic and touching, exhibiting, as it did, the mingled emotions, in their highest form, of development, of joy and grief. The old man's gratitude to the conductors of

AN ALLIGATOR STORY. The following is a strange account of a Lake full of alligators in the East Indies, taken from the Anglo Indian paper "We made an excursion lately to what is here called the Muggar Tank, a lake of alligators, which lies in a small and beautifully situated grove of trees, surrounded by a range of low hills, about nine miles from Kurrachee. After having breakfasted, we proceeded to the spot where these hideous monsters were congregated. They are held sacred by the natives of the country, and are regularly selves. lain upon timbers at a considerable height fed by the contributions of devotees. The tank is more like an overflown meadow than a lake, having deep channels intersecting each other, and is literally alive sion Hotel. with these huge "muggars," some basking on the knolls and ridges, others floating on the surface of the deeper water.

They were of all sizes, from a foot or two to twenty or twenty-five feet in length, and bulky in proportion. Having purchased a kid, and cut it up on the banks, there was a universal opening of their capacious jaws, which they kept distended in expectation of having a piece of flesh thrown into them, and are too lazy to make any further demonstration. The native keeper who feeds them then began calling to them, when they came one by one lazily along, and, waddling on to and chased, and at first led the hounds through the shore, each took what was given to him. The rapidity with which the poor kid vanished, head and heels, was truly this country, viz : astonishing. They know the keeper quite him drop it by striking him over the snout with his stick. Their jaws are certainly dreadful claptraps, and the crash they duce taken in exchange for furniture make when brought together is horrible.

crushing the bones even of the head of their prey like so much mush. It is probable, setting aside motives of superstition, that the inhabitants now find it necessary to feed these voracious monsters, for, were the supplies to be stopped, they would become dangerous neighbors. In fact, they do at times pick up and devour a stray child left on the banks by accident or design. There are here three hot springs, one of which supplies the tank, and is of a temperature of about sixty six degrees. The two others have a temperature of one hundred and eighty degrees. The water issues from the rock as pure as crys-

Kossuth's Appeal to the Hungarian People.

The following is the substance of Kossuth's last appeal to the Hungarians furnished by the Frankfort correspondent of the Newark Daily Advertiser. It will give some idea of the character the war is likely to as-

Qur Fatherland is in danger ! Citizens ! to arms ! to

If we thought ourselves able, by ordinary means, to save the country, we would not cry out it is in danger. If we were at the head of a cowardly, childish nation, ready rather to fall than defend itself, we would not order the alarm bells to ring through the whole land. But as we know that the people of our country are a manly race, resolved to defend themselves to the last against Godless oppression, we lay all unworthy concealment of our position aside, and call out openly, that the country is in danger ! Because we know that the people are able to defend themselves and the country, we lay open the danger in all as magnitude, calling upon every citizen in the name of God's country, to look it in the face, and seize arms to meet it.

We will neither flatter nor discourage, but we declare openly, that unless the whole nation rise up to defend itself to the last drop of its blood, all the noble blood shed already is in vain, and our country will fall, the Russian knout then ruling over an enslaved people, on the ground where the ashes of our ancestors repose

We, therefore, here in fulfilment of our duty, communicate to all the inhabitants of Hungary, that the Austrian Emperor has let loose upon us the barbarous hordes of Russia, that a Russian army of 46,000 men has broken into our country from Gallicia, and marched continually forward, that Russian forces have also entered Transvivanial against whom our troops are struggling, and that finally, although our fall would be followed by the enslavement of the people of all Europe, we can expect no foreign assistance, as the people that sympathise with us, are kept down by their rulers, and gaze only in cu ab silence on our struggle.

We have nothing to rest our hopes upon but a rightcous God and our own force. If we do not use our own forde, God will also forsake us.

IMPORTANCE OF COOKERY.

It is a curious fact, that during the war in Spain, some forty years since, when the French and English armies were alike suffering from the scantiness of provisions, the French soldiers kept up their strength much better than the English, solely because they put such food as they could get to much better account. The English soldier would take up the lump of meat, and broil it on the coals till this province, in 1784." a good part of it was burned almost to a cinder, though even then part of the remainder was probably raw. The French soldiers, on the contrary, would club two or three together, and stew their bits of meat with bread and such to a savory and wholesome dish. So great was the difference between these two ways, in their effect on the strength and health of the soldiers, that it was remarked that a French army would live in a country in which an Eng. lish army would starve .- [Family Economist.

The St. Andrews (N. B.) Standard contains the following extraordinary obituarv notice:

" Died, at St. Stephen's, on the 21st of July, Mrs. Elizabeth Dodd, aged one hundred and eleven years.

"In the death of this aged person is a volume of history lost. Living in great retirement, the relict of a forgotten age, few knew the stories she could tell of the brave old days. Born on board a British ship of the line in the Bay of Biscay, cradled on the broad Atlantic, her father killed fighting the battles of George I, she was cast an orphan on the shores of New Perfumery, Soaps, and Fancy Articles of every descrip-York. Thence carried to St. Augustine, her youth was passed in the South. Here she married and settled on the banks of the Alabama. On the outbreak of the war between France, Spain and England, she and other settlers were made prison- and warranted to perform well. ers and taken to New Ofleans. After two years she was transferred to the Spaniards and taken to the Castle of Vera Cruz, where she remained until its capture by the British in 1761. She was then relieved and taken to New York. During the first American war she followed her husband through the principal campaigns, and was at many of the hardest fought battles-at Monmouth, White Plains, Yorktown, &c. At the close of the American war she came with the Loyalists to

Distressing Accident .- It is seldom that we read of a more distressing accident than the following, which is recorded by herbs and vegetables as they could collect, in. the Danville (Va.) Register as having occurred in Pittsvlvania county a few days

The wife and two sons of Mr. Adams were sick of chills and fevers; and the physician, having occasion to administer quinine, of which he happened to have none on hand, sent to Lynchburg for a supply, but failed to receive it at the appointed time. Expressing his regret at his disappointment in the presence of a lady whose deceased husband was a physician, he was informed by her that he could supply him with the needed medicine, and thereupon brought a small vial labelled "quipine," and containing a substance In the first place, it is almost a sure remedy very like that article, which, indeed, after in the case of cholic. We, the free elected government of Hungary, call upon the people in the name of God and the Country, to rise up in arms, ordering, in virtue of her powers and duty, a general crusade of the people against the enemy, to be declared from every pulpit and from every town-house of the country, and made known by the continual ringing of bells; every healthy man under forty-eight years of age to take arms, whatever he can get hold of, an axe, scythe, or hook, if no better to be had ;-notice to be given of the approach of the enemy by the ringing of bells, and that preparation be made to resist or harass him, but particularly to destroy all forage and food, quitating and setting fire even to villages ;- the priest to seize the cross, and lead the people in the name of religion and liberty.

One great effort is only necessary, and the country is furever saved.
