

ed to have been accomplished, Mr. Jones, of Rowan, with an air and a tone of voice that signified "fun," enquired of the Chair, (Dr. Hill) if he could give the necessary information to satisfy certain enquiries which had been anxiously made in various parts of the house, viz: which county was the largest subscriber? Some had said it was Rowan, and some said Guilford. He said he should like to know with certainty. The President, who instantly fell into the spirit of the thing, looked down at a paper in his hand, and seemed to be counting, at length he announced as the opinion of the Chair "that there was a tie between Rowan and Guilford." Mr. J. said he thought that as Guilford was at home that she ought to take it out of a tie by going one more on the list of "the hundred men." After pausing for a while, and no one appearing on the side of Guilford, Mr. Jones said Rowan would herself decide the matter, whereupon Col. McCorkle, of Rowan, stepped forward and put down his name among the hundred. This produced considerable applause from the gallery and something of a stir among the Guilford men. At length they produced John Hunt & Co. (from the quaker region). The Guilford people had triumphed and a tremendous applause and cheering ensued, but this did not last long, for Mr. Torrence stepped forward and turned the laugh against Guilford. The Rowan delegation used this temporary ascendancy to jeer several of the other counties that had not come up to public expectation, especially Alamance and Orange; but ever and anon they would give Guilford a sly dig, wanting to know if they had run out of brave hearts, &c. &c. By this time a most animated scene was presented, Mr. Gilmer, Gov. Swain, Gov. Morehead, and Mr. Clemmons, in the best temper imaginable replied to Mr. Jones' taunts, and many pleasant and witty things were said, sometimes by these gentlemen and sometimes by a voice in the crowd. The President, Dr. Hill, himself humored the thing handsomely. In the mean time one subscription was made to the "hundred" from Rockingham and one from Orange. At length Guilford moved, and James W. Dink & Co. was announced! Jones was now loudly called for: at length he made his appearance, looking somewhat chaffed. He seemed about to "fess" as the Chapel Hill boys say, but we observed some one whisper to him, and in a moment he announced the name of "John M. Coffin." This put Rowan in the ascendant again, and then she did crow a little—talked about putting Guilford on the parish and letting her out to the lowest bidder: But the Quaker spirit was up and still another came in the person of "Simpson & Gibson," who announced that they made this subscription in compliance to the President (Mr. Graves.) Mr. Jones in behalf of the Rowan delegation responded, and admitted that they were exhausted. The graceful manner in which the last subscription had been made on the part of Guilford, he said "has disgraced us for the present of all hostility towards Guilford, and inclined us to a truce, but when we go home among our own people, and have our wives and mothers and girls to encourage us, we will try and let you Guilford people hear from us."

The seep was surely a rich one, and no one present could have failed to enjoy it. It was this affair that produced the following—
CARD.
The Delegation from the county of Rowan present their respects to the Delegation of Guilford, and will admit that, in last night's contest, for the ascendancy in subscriptions to the Rail Road, you did beat us a little: But you will remember that you contended on your own soil, and were cheered in the struggle with the smiles of fair ladies, and waving of white handkerchiefs. We were but thirty in number, attending with no view to such a competition: But we give you notice that the strife is not yet settled to our satisfaction. We wish you to consider it as about being renewed, each within our own bounds; and, when the subscriptions are summed-up, at the first meeting of the Stockholders, if you are ahead, we agree that the first Locomotive that traverses the line shall be inscribed with "Guilford"—If we shall, however, be ahead, we shall ask that it be named "Rowan."—And God speed us both!

ON THE APPROACHING SESSION.
The approaching session, the Thirty-first Congress, is already heralded by rumors and conjectures without number. The letters of Washington correspondents are published, in all parts of the Union, full of speculations as to the probable tenor of the President's Message. Then we have a continual succession of reports concerning changes in the Cabinet, with all the manifold variations of capricious gossip. The political complexion of the House; which is as yet undecided, gives rise to innumerable calculations. If the public mind is not excited by this time into a state of lively curiosity, it is not the fault of the newspapers.
The public mind, however, seems to possess itself with admirable composure. Within the political circle of aspirants and expectants, among those who resolve all public affairs into the disposal of offices and success or defeat of intrigues, and regard the Government mainly as a huge magazine of patronage—among that busy and anxious class there is no doubt a great deal of nervous agitation and restless disquietude. A general confidence, however, in the safety of the Republic, in the stability of the Union, in the honesty and capability of the Administration, has thus far preserved the great body of the people from uneasy excitement, and we are happy to indulge the hope that such confidence will continue.
That there are questions of serious moment awaiting the deliberations of Congress is very true. But it is equally true that agitation in advance is not likely to conduce to the satisfactory settlement of any of them. The people of this country, moreover, have met serious questions before, and they have generally found them more formidable at a distance than when encountered in reality. In many cases the country itself, in its rapid progress and unceasing developments, outgrows these questions before they come to those issues which are represented as so terrible. The nerves and the sinews of the young republican giant, too, are being too strong and hardy to be startled or strained at difficulties. A crisis now-a-days has to get itself settled as well as it can. At any rate, it must get out of the way and cease to interpose obstructions to the onward movement of the times.
The uncertainty that exists touching the political character of the House of Representatives involves really no very important matter, and perhaps upon the whole it is better that, in the absence of a decided preponderance of any special party, the deliberations of that body should for once be controlled by the party of the country. The Administration, depending for support upon the wisdom of its measures, and the high national spirit which we may be sure will mark its course, may come before any Congress and abide the result. If a factious opposition should obstruct it in its purposes of national good; if corrupt combinations should seek to embarrass it; if sectional fanaticism should strike at its comprehensive and patriotic policy, it will not be the first time that such arrays of factions have been exhibited to be rebuked.

IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.
We received the following letter by this day's mail, from a gentleman in Washington, who is in a position to speak understandingly of what he writes about, and one, moreover, not accustomed to put on paper, for print, the idle street rumors, or parlor whisperings in Washington.—The Southern Senator, whom he represents as rampant, is unquestionably, the redoubtable General Foote, of Mississippi. We knew he was rampant long ago, and, therefore, there is not much news about this part of our correspondent's letter.—
N. Y. Express.

Correspondence of the Express.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25th, 1849.
An influential Whig Senator from the South, informed me last evening that he had a doubt seven States would secede in case of the passage of the proviso.—There is more reality in the Southern move I fear than is suspected. Another influential Southern Senator whom I saw yesterday, is rampant, and some of the most cautious and reasonable of the North Carolina delegation talk forebodingly and despondingly. I have conversed with many other Southerners within the last two or three days, and begin to believe that there is trouble ahead of a potent character.
Yours
R.

The Southern Movement in New York.
The N. Y. correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger says:
The ominous outgivings of the Washington letter writers respecting the contemplated movement of the Southern members of Congress, incoherent and improbable as they may be, are not without an effect here. Most people are looking forward to a crisis. But none yet are bold enough to look at secession straight in the face. The rumor that seven of the slave States have resolved to secede, in the event of the passage of the proviso, has been repeated so often, within the few days past, and by men who are in a position to know what they are talking about that the public mind is made uneasy and excited. Who dares to calculate the mighty revolution our trade and commerce would have to undergo, in the event of such a calamity. This is the first consequence considered by men who deal in cotton and corn—their political interests are left to the masses, less under the influence of dollars and cents.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 23.
The Pacific Rail Road Project.—A large meeting of our citizens, favorable to the construction of a railroad to the Pacific, was held at the Court House last night.
Mr. Whitney addressed the meeting at some length, explaining his plan for building the proposed railroad, and was listened to with profound attention and interest.
Resolutions were adopted approving of Mr. Whitney's plan, and recommending its immediate adoption.

INCENDIARY ATTEMPT.
An attempt to fire the building occupied by Mr. Ellers and the Aurora office, is noticed in an article copied from that paper. We presume no one has the least idea that the incendiary had any design on that office. The object was plunder, we presume; and no living creature is dull enough to seek that among types or their proceeds.—Wil. Commercial.

A NEW LOAN.
The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia North American says, that the Secretary of the Treasury intends to recommend a loan of from fifteen to twenty millions of dollars, to meet the short-comings of the Treasury, and adds the following, respecting the tariff policy of the administration:
"The disclosure of this important fact furnishes an additional and urgent reason for an immediate modification of the existing tariff, looking to an increase of revenue; and unless there is a settled purpose on the part of the majorities in the two Houses to embarrass the administration by every device of party opposition, that question will be at once referred to the appropriate committee, and made the subject of thorough investigation."

SOCIETY IN PHILADELPHIA.
The Daily News states the estimated population of Philadelphia at the present time to be 350,000; or, in other words, 70,000 families. Of this number only 2,000 have a competency for support above manual labor; 20,000 depend upon mechanical and professional branches; and the residue of 47,000 is divided into two parts, viz: 30,000 who are desirous of laboring, and 17,000 who resort to illegitimate and criminal means for a livelihood. Of the latter class, 6,000 are supposed to be beggars; 4,000 who depend upon the offal of the streets and what they can collect from the kitchens of the wealthy; 3,000 who steal; 1,000 who starve for want of any kind of support; and 3,000 who follow a promiscuous livelihood. Such is the state of society in Philadelphia and the elements which compose it.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23, P. M.
Mr. Clay in the Herald Office.—The Hon. Henry Clay visited the office of the N. Y. Herald yesterday, to witness the modus operandi of printing. After an introduction to Mr. Bennett, he said he desired to see the machinery by which so much mischief had been done among us politicians, so that we may possibly find some plan to resist it. On reaching the Press Room Mr. Clay said, "This is the place where you forge your thunder."—Bennet replied: "This is Pluto's region." Mr. Clay left astonished, but was very much pleased.

A singular trial is progressing before the county court of Baltimore, being that of Messrs. Julia Levin, wife of the Hon. Lewis Levin, member of Congress from the second congressional district of Pennsylvania, charged with a violent assault upon a young man named Fite, the son of a wealthy merchant. The assault was committed on a public road leading from the city. Young Fite, riding in a buggy, passed the carriage of Mrs. Levin and looked in—expecting, as he says, to see one of the family with whom he was acquainted; but failing to recognise who was within, he drew up and allowed the carriage to pass again. Mrs. Levin, immediately taking his conduct as an assault, ordered her footman to seize the young man, which he did, and held him whilst she cowered him. The case is still progressing.

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTORY AND
WARE ROOMS, No 1, Eutaw Street, Baltimore.
THE undersigned calls the attention of the Ladies, Principals of Academies, Professors of Music, and private families of North Carolina, to the superior quality of his Pianos. For fifteen years have they been in use in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and have given entire satisfaction. He has sold within the last three months, in this State, twenty Pianos, and has proved to be superior in quality of tone and workmanship, to any purchased elsewhere. The climate and change of weather have no effect on these instruments, as they are almost entirely of cast iron. The manufacturer assures the public that they will do as well by writing to him as coming themselves or sending an agent to select an instrument. Respectfully,
