Stars hang in the glassy brook, And Night's latest watch is told; The Shepherd leans upon his crook, And guards the tinkling fold; Yet often views, with wonder filled, (For he in starry lore is skilled.) Pleione's daughters, sad, yet pure, Orion, and bright Cynosure. Lo! his eye what visions meet, As if *Elokim appears,

Hark! it sounds, so lost, so sweet, He who hears scarce knows he hears : It is sky-born melody, The heavens shine one galaxy; Glory, trembling, fills the air, Angels veiled in light appear! Hand in hand, in circling wreath. They float midway earth and sky,

While clouds of rosy light beneath, Half shade them to the eye; Now brighter glow those clouds, and they Fade in liquid light away; Now, the excess of light withdrawn, On the dazzled eye they dawn. Soon the airy band unlinks, Gliding thence on dove-like wing,

Earthward one white scraph sinks, Whilst his fellow charists sing-"Glory to Thee, God on high! Monarch of the earth and sky, Who by us dost send to men Tidings of great joy-Amen." Whilst these voices ravish night, On a near hill's moonlight brow, Soft his stainless feet alight;

Thrice he waves an olive bough, As if audience he bespeaks; Then unto his youthful cheeks, From his side a trump applies, 'Till its echoes sweep the skies. Earth! wake all thy sons, and hear! Heaven's descending benison,-Henceforth shall Messiah's year, On its blissful circuit run; He, this day, at break of morn,

Shall, in Bethlehem, be born, Saviour, Father, King of Men, Glory be to God-Amen. Wherefore, Shepherds! stand and gaze, All the arial scene has fled; Morn now shoots her safron rays, Haste, the joyful message spread! Which, as your glad tongues impart, Shall light up each brother's heart,

"Come with us, and praise the Lord." *Elokim is the Hebrew for God.

From the Louisville Journal. SPRING .- BY J. R. BARRICK. The winter winds and storms are past, The surly blasts are blown, The voice of spring is heard at last, In blithe and joyous tone; The little streams, from frost set free, With gladdening music sing ; The South wind comes with songs of glee To welcome in the Spring. The heart or earth its foliage wide Unfolds like summer's rose; Through wood and stream a quickening tide Of life and beauty flows;

A. M. B.

The light of May is on the sky, Its sunshine on the wing, While winter's shades and shadows fly To welcome in the Spring. The flowers are gently springing up On hillside and on lawn,

The daisy and the buttercup Breathe in the balm of morn; The rills and brooks soft answer make The birds on soaring wing, The mingling strains of nature wake To welcome in the Spring.

I list me to the cheering song Of robin and the wren. The mocking bird and jocund throng Of warblers in the glen; The winds and zephyrs too rejoice,

While every living thing On earth outpours a grateful voice To welcome in the Spring.

SHE CLUNG TO HIM. She clung to him with woman's love. Like ivy to the oak; Whilst o'er his head, with crushing force, Earth's chilling tempest broke.

When the world looked cold on him, And blight hung o'er his name-She soothed his cares with woman's love, And bade him rise again. When care had furrowed o'er his face, And blended his young hours,

She wove among his crown of thorns A wreath of love's own flowers. And never did the wreath decay, Or one bright flow'ret wither;

For woman's tears e'er nourished them, That they might bloom forever. "Tis ever thus with woman's love, True till life's storms have passed,

And, like the vine around the tree, It braves then till the last.

A lady promised to give her maid five dollars as a marriage portion. The girl got married to a man of low stature, and her mistress, on seeing him, was surprised, and said: " Well. INFINITE DIVISIBILITY OF MATTER. It is generally admitted that the Snn has not diminished in size though it has poured forth its light and heat into the regions of space for nearly 6,000 years: it always appears of the same size; and its attraction on the planets is the same as formerly; which would be lessened if its quantity of matter was diminished in any considerable degree. Light and heat are called imponderable agents; but the fact that light suffers attraction and reflection like particles of matter, and is radiated in straight lines to vast distances, with almost incredible velocity, would seem to prove that it is material. The same would appear from some of the phenomena of heat.

Now the Planet Atlass, lately discovered, in the frontier of our system, is 3600,000,000 of miles from the Sun. That is the Radius of its orbit; double that and we will have the diameter; and multiply that sum by three, and we will have nearly the circumference of its orbit. Suppose this circle to revolve on its diameter, and we will describe a sphere, or globe, every part of whose surface is 3600,000,000 of miles from the Sun, in its centre. How much farther into the regions of space, the rays of our Sun travel, to meet the light of the fixed stars, we do not know, but we are sure that they fill every part of that hollow globe we have described. The body of the Sun, 883,000 miles in diameter; and the spaces occupied by the planets, and their satelites; and the shadows cast behind them, are so small, in comparison that they may all be rejected .-For about 6,000 years then the light and heat of our Great Luminary have been diffused through every part of a hollow sphere, whose diameter is 7200,000,000 of miles; and whose circumference is 21600,000,000 of miles; and all this without spending any perceptible portion of his matter, or diminishing in any degree his dignity of the Indian character. volume. Upon the assumption before made, that light is material, here is a demonstration of the infinite divisibility of matter!

For the Watchman.

Perhaps no single Act of the last Legislature has attracted such general attention among the mass of the people, as that, amending the Militia Laws. This Act it is well known, exempts all persons over 35 years of age from military duty except in time of invasion or insurrection. If the Legislature contemplated a gradual abandonment of the whole system of training and regimental organization in the passage of the Act referred to, the plan has certainly succeeded. It should be observed in the first place that a large number of those whose talents and station in life would qualify them for Military Officers were exempted from duty

Add to the above the large number whose age and experience would qualify them for Military Officers who are exempted by this Act,-and in many districts we have only a handfull of inexperienced men left. And if any should possess the talent, they would have but little inducement to desire to command a company. when most of those whose age, experience, and steady bearing, gave the company drill some air of reputability have left it; considering too that in former times the company musters were not more than ten steps above the ridiculous.

It is probable that as many men are liable to military duty between the ages of 30 and 35, as there were between the ages of 35 and 45, and those who are now within five years of the age which now exempt them, complain as much of the hardship of service as those whose fortune it was to be relieved by the late Act. ever complained in their day, so that we have not lessened the complaint; we have only changed the complainers. In one of our small Regiments containing but seven companies, and about four hundred men; not less than fifty persons availed themselves of the benefit of the Act at the first opportunity, and many more would have done so, had the notice been more general. The consequence has been that the old officers resigned, and there is scarcely a commission in the Regiment twelve months old. And in some instances it is with great difficulty that any one can be induced to accept a commission. And by the way, why should the Regimental Court Martial be taxed with the additional burden of discharging the exempts on their oath? It is well known that many of the duties of that body have never been discharged properly for want of time and from other causes.

It is evident that unless some change should be made at the next meeting of the Assembly, that the whole system will go down in a few years: and I would respectfully suggest that the Commanding Officer of each Regiment should bring the subject before his Court Martial for consideration, and let the result be sent up by their Representatives to the next Legislature or be spread before the public through the papers. CLARENCE.

> For the Watchman. A GREAT MISTAKE.

We frequently hear from the pulpit, and elsewhere statements with regard to the space that would be occupied on the globe by all the dead, at the general Resurrection; that there would not be room here for them all. But a few figures will show the contrary. Allow the present population of the globe to be 800,000,000; that it has always been the same; and that three generations die off in a century: at the end of 6,000 years ing to 144,000,000,000: The number of square miles in the State of North Carolina is put down at 50,000: this reduced to square yards will be 166,400,000,000.-So that, on the above supposition, that the population has always been the same as now, and will continue so to the end of 6,000 years from the creation, all that will have died can have a square yard to stand upon in this State; and have 22,400,000,000 square yards to VERITUS.

PURGATORY IS A HEATHEN NOTION. We find the following in Virgil's Eneid at the 739th ine. We quote from Dryden's Translation: " For this are various penances enjoined.

And some are hung to bleach upon the wind: Some plunged in waters, others plunged in fires, Till all the dregs are drained, and all the rust expires."

This is spoken of the souls in the lower world; and it shows that Pasists, Mahommedans, and some others who hold to such absurd notions, have borrowed them

A new Version of the Bible. - The Baptist Recorder publishes a call for a mass meeting at the Oliver St. Church, for the purpose of remonstrating against the proposition to publish a new edition of the Bible, containing among other things the substitution of the word immerse for baptize, in the othe English versions. Many of the most eminent-men of that denomination are opposed to the alteration, for after all it would be of no avail-the meaning of all disputed passages requiring to be settled, not by reference to translations, but to the original Greek and Hebrew.

We witnessed vesterday, in the Circuit Court of the United States, a very interesting scene. A Pawnee Indian was brought into Court, to be sworn as a witness to testify before the Grand Jury, in reference to two other Indians now confined in Jail, on a charge of murder. The but could speak the Caw language; thereupon two Caw Indians were introduced as interpreters, but unfortunately they could not speak English. It was therefore, found necessary to swear a half bred Indian, to interpret the oath, into the Caw language, and by the two Caw Indians it was to be interpreted to the witness .-But the Indians seemed to be so profound ly ignorant of the nature of an oath, that after several ineffectual attemps to make them comprehend the object of the proceeding, it was abandoned by the court.

Pawnee entered into conversation with the elder of the two Caws, and finally extended his hand which was accepted .--He then held out his hand to the younger Caw-a fine straight, athletic young man with bare and brawny arms and chest .-The young man indignantly refused the proffered hand with a gesture of contempt and with an air of offended dignity drew back from the Pawnee. We have rarely witnessed a more striking scene, or one which placed in bolder relief the haughty
