POETICAL

· HEAVEN. BY E. L. BULWER. Is Heaven a place where pearly streams Glide over silver sand? Like childhood's rosy dazzling dreams Of some fairy land? Is Heaven a clime where diamond dews Glitter on fadeless flowers. And mirth and music ring around? Ah no ! not such, not such is Heaven ! Surpassing fur all these ; Such cannot be the guerdon given Man's weary soul to please. For saint and sinner here below Such vain to be, have proved ; And the pure spirit will despite Whate'er the sense hath loved. There we shall dwell with Sire and Son.

And with the Mother Maid, And with the Holy Spirit Gas, In glory like arrayed; And not to one created thing, Shall our embrace be given ; But all our joy shall be in God, For only God is Heaven.

THE SPRING SONG OF A GLAD HEART

BY CAROLINE MAY. And why should I be grave and sad, And wear a mournful look. When nature teacheth joy to me, From out her flower wrought book ? When she telleth me to sing aloud, And sings herself to show How music ought, in sweet spring-time, From every thing to flow. Hark ! how the birds are earoling From the boughs of every tree ! As if each drop of morning dew Was a fount of melody. Hark ! how the bees are murmuring Over the garden bowers, Bearing upon their gauze-like,wings Sweet gifts from all the flowers. Hark ! how the ever restless wings Are singing all about, Now whispering low, like tales of love, Then bursting with a shout ! Hark ! how glad sounds float everywhere The stainless ether through-And tell me, when all nature sings, Why should not I sing too? Look on the blossoms of those tree How sunshine smileth bright; And how each blade of young, green grass, Seems laughing in the light ; Look, how the newly opened leaves Quiver and gleam and dance, As if they were in ecstacies, At the merry Spring's first glance. Look, how the swift breeze springs to meet The waves upon the bay, And how they toss their foam on high, As they wrestle in their play; Look, how the white and fleecy clouds Sail smiling o'er the blue ; And tell me, when all nature smiles, Why should not I smile too? The spirit of the blessed spring Bids me to look up, and see How she spreadeth beauty everywhere On lake, and lawn, and lea, And so I look-obeying quick Her care-dispelling voice , And as I look, I dearly love, And as I love, rejoice.

A Western Woman -A correspondent of a Detroit paper describes a western woman, whose feats of industry will doubtless be regarded as fabulous by many delicate ladies. It seems that during the past winter and spring, her husband having gone to California, besides taking care of five children, the eldest a girl twelve years of age, and her eldest boy only five years old, the youngest an infant at the breast, she has woven seven hundred yards of satinet and shawls, made eight hundred pounds of maple sugar, cut and drawn from the forest all the wood the family needed during the winter, and chopped the same at the door, attended to the milling and trading fifteen miles from home, with an ox team, driving it herself, and taking all the care of them and her six cows and eleven sheep when at home. Above all. she is only about 35 years of age, very modest and unassuming, and has no idea that she has accomplished any thing more than any industrious woman may, with ordinary diligence and good health. How in the world can the husband of such a wife need to go to California in search of wealth ?

The End Coming .- The Boston papers report that on Tuesday Miss Abby Folcom was "foreibly and ignominiously dragged from the abolition meeting at Cochituate Hall, and taken to the police office, where, after a brief duress, she was liberated through the humanity of the captain of the night police." And at whose instigation does the reader suppose this was done? By the very clique, Garrison & Co., with whom " Miss Abby" has so industriously labored and perambulated. We shall have some hope of the lady, but of the small party we can only write, "a house divided," &c. &c. [Com. Advertiser.

Breach of Promise of Marriage .- Fifty four and Twenty four.

Sergeant Shee moved in the Court of Ex. chequer lately, for a new trial in the case of Adams vs. Gibbs, tried at Maidstone, before SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, Chief Justice Wilde, on the ground of misdirection and excessive damages, Mr. Gibbs, a farmer, aged fifty four, in marriage. All the preliminaries were arranged, wedding dresses bought, and even the wedding breakfast order. ed when the defendant suddenly set off to Liv. erpool, and subsequently to America. Sergeant Shee contended that the damages, £800, were excessive. The defendant was ready to pay handsomely for his refusal to marry the plaintiff, but £800 was far too much. What loss teresting correspondence, sentimental courtship, sell no broken heart, or anything of that sort .--(Laughter.) What had been the loss of this young lady? She had lost a husband of fifiy. four. Why, what had a man of fifiy four to do with a young wife twenty-lour ? Nothing at all. She would be much better without him .-(Laughter.) Sir F. Pollock-lt is very well for you, Brother Shee, who are under fifty, to way that ; but I can assure you that men far advanced beyond that age, sometimes think differently. (lumense laughter.) Judgement deferred.
