Of before a word be said ! Why should smiles sometimes repel us? Bright eyes turn our feelings cold? What is that which comes to tell us All that glitters is not gold?

Oh-no feature, plain or striking, But a power we cannot shun, Prompts our liking -or disliking, Ere acquaintance hath begun! Is it instinct-or some spirit

Which protects us-and controls Every impulse we inherit By some sympathy of souls? Is it instinct ?- is it nature ? Or some freak, or fault of chance,

Which our liking-or disliking-Limits to a single glance? Like presentiment of danger, Though the sky no shadow flings Or that inner sense, still stranger,

Of unseen-unuttered things! Is it?-oh, can no one tell me, No one show sufficient cause Why our likings - and dislikings -Have their own instinctive laws?

From the Louisville Courier. NEW VERSION OF WIDOW MACHREE. Och, Widow Machree, when cold weather comes on,

Och hone, Widow Machree, It isn't myself will be singing this song, Och hone, Widow Machree; For, sure as I live, this body I'll give

To the fishes that swim away down in the sea; And the sprat and the herrin shall come to my berrin, Och hone, Widow Machree. Och, Widow Machree, whin you hear of my fate,

Och hone, Widow Machree, The big tears may rowl down, but 'twill thin be too late Och hone, Widow Machree;

For even the whale, at the sight, will look pale, As with a heart full of pity her glares upon me-In the salt briny wave he will dig my cowld grave, Och hone, Widow Machree.

Och, Widow Machree, when you marry O'Flynn, Och hone, Widow Machree, And sit by the fire side a looking at him, Och hone, Widow Machree,

With a tear in your eye, and perhaps with a sigh, You'll remember that I loved you better than he; But the mermaids, poor man, will be atin me thin, Och hone, Widow Machree. Och, Widow Machree, don't be snoring so loud,

Och hone, Widow Machree, 'Tis awake you should be, and a making my shroud, Och hone, Widow Machree;

Have pity, I pray, and only jist say, That, at some future day, you will smile upon me, And bad luck to the fish that would make me his dish Och hone, Widow Machree.

For the Watchman. There is Death in the Cup.

THAT which intoxicates, whether in gin, rum, brandy wine, whiskey, beer or cider, is the same principle; and 's called alcohol, or spirits of wine. It may exist in different liquors, but still the intoxicating principle in all alcoholic drinks is the same kind of spirit. According to the experiments and analysis of the most careful chemists, the following degrees of alcohol are found in different intoxicating beverages of our own day: Per Cent.

Port Wine, average Roussillon. of six kinds, 23.48 Cape Madeira, Highest, 25.83 Sherry, av. of 4 kinds, 17.92 Lowest, 21.40 Claret, av. of 4 " Madeira, highest, 29.42 Do Muchat, Lowest, 19:34 Constantia, Calcavella, 18.10 Tent, Lisbon, 15.94 Sheraag. Malaga, 17.26 Tyracure, 18.49 Nice, Bucellas, Red Madeira, 18.40 Tokay, Malmsey, 16.40 Raisin Wine, Marcella, 25.87 Graps Wine, Ditto, 15.26 Current Wine, Red Champaigne, 11.30 Goosebery Wine, 11.64 White, 12.80 Elderwine, Cider & 11.55 Peery, Burgundy, Ditto 11.95 Stout, White Hermitage, 17.53 Ale, 12.82 Porter, Hock, 14.37 Brandy, 8.88 Rum, Palm Wine, 4.79 Hollands, Vin de Grave, 12.80 Scotch Whiskey, Frontignac, 12.79

For these analyses, the most genuine liquors were obtained, and as proof that the per centage may be depended upon. I have in my possession several other tables which differ but little from the one just given above. The difference between distillation and fermentation is, that by the application of heat the distiller obtains a larger quantity of spirit from the sacharine matter than does the brewer. Fermentation is necessary to precede SPRING AND SUMMER tract. In wines and beer you have a portion of the grape, or the neat hold in solution, but in ardent spirits, you have nothing but alcohol and water.

Gin, rum, brandy, whiskey, &c., when pure are nothing but alcohol and water; and the fiery spirit in each of them is obtained by heat and fermentation, from various sachanne substances. But in neither of these is there the least particle of nourishment. It is the aim of the distiller to convert every atom of the substance he distils into spirit. He has not the least idea of leaving any thing in the form of food for the stomach of his customer. An inflammatory, stimulating, poisonous liquid is all that he produces, and to obtain this, he destroys millions of bushels of wholesome grain. AN FI-BACHUS.

POWERFUL REASONING.

At a young men's debating society some where in Indiana, the question for discussion was, "Which is the greatest evil, a scolding wife or a smoking chimney." After the appointed disputants had concluded the debate, a spectator rose ane begged the privilege of making a few remarks on the occasion. Permission being granted, he delivered himself in this way: "Mr. President I've been almost mad a listening to the debate of these 'ere youngsters. They don't know nothing at all about the subject. What to they know about the evils of a scolding wife? Wait till they've had one for twenty years, and been hammered and slammed all the time, and wait till they've been scolded because the baby cried, because the fire would'nt burn, because the oven was two hot, because the cow kicked over the milk, because it rained, because the sun shined, because the hens did'nt lay, because butter would not come, because the old cat had kittens, because they came too soon to dinner, because they was one minute too late, because they did any thing else, no matter whether they could help it or not, -before they talk about the evils of a scolding wife; why Mr. President, I'd rather hear the clatter of hammers and stones on twenty tin pans and nine brass kettles, than a scolding wife. Yes sir-ree, I would; to my mind, Mr. President, a smoky chimney is no more to be compared to a scolding wife, than a little nigger is to a dark night."
