Or that the melody's sweet flower Within the radiant creature play'd, And those sweet wreathing arms of snow And white sylph feet the music made. Now gliding slow with dreamy grace, Her eyes beneath their lashes lost; Now motionless, with lifted face, And small hand on her bosom cross'd. And now with flashing eyes she springs, Her whole bright figure raised in air,

As if her soul had spread its wings And poised her one wild instant there ! She spoke not: but so richly fraught With language are her glance and smile That, when the curtain fell, I thought She had been talking all the while.

The next suggests its own music :-SHE LOVES HIM YET, She loves him yet! I know by the blush that rises Beneath her curls, That shadow her soul-lit cheek, She loves him yet ! Through all Love's sweet disguises In timid girls,

A blush will be sure to speak. But deeper signs Than the radiant blush of beauty, The maiden finds, Whenever his name is heard; Her young heart thrills, Forgetting herself-her duty-Her dark eye fills,

And her pulse with hope is stirr'd.

She loves him yet !-The flower the false one gave her, When last he came, Is still with her wild tears wet. She'll ne'er forget, Howe'er his faith may waver, Through grief and shame, Believe it, she loves him yet!

She will sing-she heeds no other: With all her wrongs " Her life on his love is set. Oh! doubt no more! She never can wed another : Till life be o'er, She loves-she loves him yet!

Her favorite songs

THE REQUIEM. The hand that swept the sounding lyre With more than mortal skift, The lightning eye, the heart of fire, The fervent lips are still. No more, in rapture or in woe, With melody to thrill, Ah! nevermore!

Oh! bring the flowers she cherish'd so, With eager child-like care : For o'er her grave they'll love to grow, And sigh their sorrow there; Ah me! no more their balmy glow May soothe her heart's despair, No! nevermore

But angel hands shall bring her balm For every grief she knew, And Heaven's soft harps her soul shall calm With music sweet and true; And teach to her the only charm Of Israel anew, For evermore!

Love's silver tyre she played so well, Lies shattered on her tomb; But still in air its music-spell Floats on through light and gloom, And in the hearts where soft they fell Her words of beauty bloom For evermore!

[From the Baltimore Clipper.] STANZAS.

As sweet Spring's early flowers droop and die, When blows the chilling northern wind, So all the dreams of youth must scattered lie When manhood's cares oppress the mind Youth's romantic visions all must perish, And bitter trials usurp their place, Leaving frail mementos that we cherish, In memory of those happy days. As o'er the path of life we onward go, And learn false man's duplicity, Stern reality checks the ardent flow Of youthful love and sympathy. Now by dear experience taught at last,

We shrink within ourselves, and pride Bids us quick forget the blighted past, And every pang of sorrow hide.

THE STRAWBERRY.

For the strawberry, the soil should be warm and light, containing an obvious predominance of sand. The sets should be planted about ten inches apart, each way .-Horse manure, fresh from the stable, and undeteriorated | says : by formentation, should be applied in liberal quantities " It is rarely we have been called upon to dirt. This should be done in October, when the leaves | these particulars. have fallen from the trees. By the ensuing spring, roots will have been formed and the limbs may be transplanted in the orchard. This, we think, is a new and valuable method for growing peach trees, requiring less time and trouble than any other plan. We trust that some of our horticultural friends will experiment upon it and report to us the CULTURE OF THE PLUM.-" An old digger," in the Horticulturist, says: Plum trees like a moist soil. I have found that covering the ground four inches deep with old spent tan bark, is a good way of preserving the moisture, and keeping the trees in health. I scatter fresh lime thickly over the surface of the tan every year as soon as the green fruit begins to fall. This kills every circulio that attempts to enter the ground. The tan prevents the weeds from growing, keeps the roots cool, and insures me a good crop of plums. I spread it as as far as the roots extend, and it wants renewing or adding to, once in three or four years.

MANURE FOR FRUIT TREES .- Dr. Kennicott, speaking of the fertile land of Northern Illinois, says: For fruit trees, especially the apple and quince, I have found barn-yard manure, half decayed chips, charcoal and ashes (mixed) serviceable. I have tried lime, but except on a small, peaty spot, without benefit. Mr. Dunlap says he has killed apple trees with ashes-perhaps he gave them too much. I have found them decidedly serviceable. Yard manure alone is not recommended for that region, and for peaches, plums and cherries, is considered positively injurious.

For the Watchman. A BACHANALIAN TEMPLE.

Messrs. Editors :- Peradventure it will no be uninteresting to some of your subscribers to peruse a description of what has frequently been witnessed by one whose province it is to watch the peculiar devotions of men.

In a small village, of no great characteristic importance, in the far famed "Palmetto State," may be seen, among other places worship, a spacious temple devoted to the service of Bachus. And although, in outward appearance, inferior perhaps, to that of Emessa in which the apostate Julian placed the statue of the pagan diety, yet its internal attractions are no less alluring, and its lusty attendants vie with each other to excel in their heart felt adorations.

bilities, of this deity, to view the punctuality with which his house is attended, the strict observance of its ordinances, and the deep interment "under one kind," reversing however, ters', Le Roy's, Leidy's blood, Jayne's sanative, Beck the mode of catholicism, is daily, and in many instances bourly, administered, and it is passing strange to see what a wonderful influence it exerts, invigorating the system, elevating the spirits, ruddifying the complexion, and producing a degree of imaginary felicity and self importance, altogether indescribable. The tem ple though not magnificent, is nevertheless commodious and comfortably constructed, and so far from being a " white sepulchre," exhibits, internally, a degree of taste and neatness admirably in keeping with the character and dignity of him to whose service it is dedicated. A delightful oder emanates from the interior, so very agreeable to the worshipers, that, like the two Esquimaux dogs at Chelsea, they stand hour after hour in front of the door, inhaling the exhilerating offluvia. The exercises begun with so much zeal in the morning, continue till late at night, without the slightest appearance of lassitude or inattention on the part of the members. It is indeed true, that some times after engaging in the morning service. and partaking pretty freely of the sacrament. "sub una specie," they are frequently overcome by the soothing influence of Somnus, but this only refreshes them for the more interest-

Vocal and instrumental music, of a rare specimen, constitute an important part of the temple service, and a kind of frisking motion of the body, adjusted to the measure of the tunes, is also extensively practiced, and gives a peculiar solemnity to the whole, that has the appear ance, at least, of being quite devotional. Occasionally, a member somewhat exhausted by repeated convolutionary movements, and a little vetiginous, from a too frequent reception of the sacrament, begins to reel, and finally falling on the ground, like the tamous dog at the theatre Marcellus, counterfeits himself dead. In due time however, resuscitation takes place, and turning up his eye, like a duck in a thunder storm, is not unfrequently surprised to find that the sun has already passed to the other side of creation. Women, who performed so conspicuous a part in the religious ceremonies of the ancient Bacchus, are, either by choice or coern god. What the result of these protracted exercises will be, I am hardly able to determine; the probability however is, that, as there exists a peculiar intimacy between the two deities, Bacchus and Pluto, the meeting will soon adjourn to the balmy regions of the latter, unless indeed, Esculapius should rise from the dead, and again defeat the expectations of this tar- Hats, Miles' dress Boots and Gaiters, China, Glass and tarean king.
