Prem on! there's no such word as fail! Press swiftly on! the good is near-Aspend the mountain! breast the gale Look upward, onward-never fear !

Why should'st thou faint? Heaven smiles above Though storm and vapor intervene; The sun shines on, whose name is Love, Serenely o'er life's shadowed scene.

Press on! surmount the rocky steeps-Climb boldly o'er the torrent's arch-He fails alone who feebly creeps, He wins who dares the heroes march. Be thou a hero! let thy might Tramp on eternal snows its way, And through the chon walls of Night Hew down a passage unto day. Press on! if once and twice thy feet Slip back and stumble, harder try;

From him who never dreads to meet Danger and Death, they're sure to fly. To coward ranks the bullet speeds, While on their breast who never quail, Gleams, guardian of chivatric deeds,

Bright courage like a coat of mail. Press on! if Fortune play thee false To-day, to-morrow she'll be true ; Whom now she sinks she now exalts, Taking old gifts and granting new. The wisdom of the present hour

Makes us for follies past and gone-To weakness strength succeeds, and power From frailty springs-press on ! press on ! Press on! what though upon the ground Thy love has been poured out like rain? That happiness is always found

The aweetest which is born of pain. Oft mid the forest's deepest glooms And in the dreariest desert blooms A never-dying rose for thee. Therefore, press on ! and reach the goal

And gain the prize and wear the crown ; Faint por! for to the steadfast soul Come wealth and honor and renown-To thine own self be true, and keep Thy mind from sloth, thy heart from soil; Press on ! and thou shalt surely reap An heavenly harvest for thy toil !

From the Republican. "WILL I ALWAYS LOVE YOU?" ANSWERED.

Religion is like the firmament; the more one searches it the more stars are seen ; it is like the sea ; the more one views it the more boundless it appears. To learn is to practise, to think is the deed, knowledge is the means, and wisdom the end.

If a jewel be gennine, care not who says it is not. Rather choose to chastise thy desires than to be chastised on account of them.

A ship should not be made to depend on one anchor, nor life on one hope.

Never condomn a friend unheard, or without letting him know his accuser, or his crime-Let thy discourse about God be renewed each day rather than thy meals. The wrath of an ape and the threat of a flatterer should be regarded alike

We should stretch neither our legs nor hopes beyond The more a man knows, the less he is apt to talkdiscretion allays his heat, and makes him coolly deliberate what and where it is fit to speak.

A VULGAR HABIT. with pain among students of Colleges, in their recitation rooms, and in other situations in the presence of their instructors, is their disrespectful mode of sitting. I mean sitting with their feet lifted up, on the top of an opposite bench or chair, and stretched out in the majesterial manner of a master among his menials, or of a boon companion lounging among his equals. No truly well bred person ever allows himself to sit in this manner in the presence of his superiors, or even of his equals, unless they are his daily and hourly associates, Would not any young man who had enjoyed a training above the grossly vulgar, be shocked to see an attitude of this kind assumed by any one in a decent circle in a parlor? Surely in the presence of his official superiors he ought to be quite as particular. I lay claim to no special delicacy or refine. ment in my early training: but truth requires me to say, that such as it was, if I had ever been seen to sit in the presence of my parents; or of decent company, as I have often seen members of College sitting in the presence of their instructors, I should have met with a prompt and severe rebuke,"

Dr. Miller's Letters to his Sons.

The aim of education should be to teach us rather how to think, than what to think; rather to improve our minds, so as to enable us to think for ourselves, than to load the memory with the thoughts of other men. Cato said, "the best way to keep good acts in memory, is to refresh them with new.
