Mr. Editor—In the Watchman of the 15th May, I notice a raw specimen of composition emanating from a disciple of the Eclectic school of ethics, over the signature of D. Would that he had added at least one vowel to the D so that we might have had some clue to the country whence he hails, and the dignity of his station; for I have heard of a certain prince whose name in more languages than one begins with D, and if this disciple in the school of ethics should be he, I would beg to be excused from entering into a controversy with him on any subject. But I will venture a few remarks on the sentiments of D in relation to Temperance and other things, be the consequences what they may. "I would not willingly object to any society which has for its professed object one so laudable as the extermination of drunkenness, &c., but I do think that it is overstepping the modesty of truth to say that the Order has effected what the Church was unable to accomplish."

MEETING OF THE RAIL ROAD DIRECTORS. We give in this paper the Report of the Chief Engineer on the survey of the Central Rail Road; it is lengthy, but the public, all along the line of the road especially, will read it, and every thing else in relation to the scheme, with interest. To have consulted our own feelings the space it occupies would have been otherwise filled. We learn that stockholders will be permitted to take contracts to double the amount of their stock; and that nine cents per cubic yard was the minimum bid for excavations, and nine to sixteen for removing the earth.

ROWAN AND DAVIE BRIDGE. This bridge, now in the course of construction across the South Yadkin River, a short distance below Fisher's shoals, has reached a point which gives assurance of its speedy completion. Mr. Boyd, the contractor informs us that all the timbers are now on the ground and ready to be raised to their places. He proposes to commence the elevation on Monday week, and hopes by the 4th July next to have it so far on as to admit of passage. We have conversed with several persons—one or two of the commissioners—and they speak in terms of entire satisfaction as to the work. We think Davie and Rowan should celebrate the next 4th of July on this Bridge. In years gone by their interests were one, Davie is the daughter of Rowan but she long since left the paternal roof and set up for herself. What says she to meeting her mother on this middle ground to spend day as she was wont to do? A barbarian dipper—Davie is "some" at that!—preaches from some of her, and our own, diligent young men, and a general shaking of hands, besides renewing former feelings and associations, might ultimately end in the projection of a Plank Road, to connect the two counties.

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS. We had an interesting Temperance meeting here on Monday evening last at the Methodist Church. It was called without any previous arrangement having been made. The Sons assembled without gala, and in all respects the meeting resembled an old fashioned Temperance assemblage. The congregation was addressed by Rev. A. D. Montgomery, Daniel Coleman and L. Blackmer, Esqrs, in the order in which they are named. We can not discriminate between the merits of these gentlemen, all of which are off-hand, for they were all good, inventive, spirited and interesting. There was also a public meeting and addresses at Charlotte, last week. We understand that the Court-House was crowded almost to its utmost capacity. L. Blackmer and James W. Osborne, Esqrs, each delivered a speech.

The Next Presidency.—A gentleman Knoxville, Tennessee, writing to the editor of the Raleigh Register, proposes the names of Millard Fillmore and Wm. Graham, for President and Vice President. The Register comments on the suggestion truthfully and beautifully as follows: "With such a ticket, then, for the President and Vice Presidency presented to the people North Carolina—with the COMPROMISE watchword—and with the armor of the virtuous and the Union buckled on us—swamp from our borders like stubble before a wind tornado. With such a ticket, with such a view, and with such hearts, a victory—not of arms, but of the whole Country—would be ours."

At the Charleston convention Mr. Badger of the Hornet's Nest, said: "The fathers were South Carolinians; he himself was a Virginian by birth, and he was now half-way back in his pilgrimage to the Mecca of his fathers. He returned to the Convention that the moment North Carolina acted, she would touch the hearts of the young men of North Carolina from the mountain to the sea."

Very likely! We think we know of one Mecklenburg who will run backwards on the Blue Ridge to find a convenient place on which to hang his coat and cravat. He will then bolt (?) for the seaboard, and native young men of North Carolina, as he passes, what aid they can of argumentum ad pusterendum as an evidence of the correctness of his course,

For the Watchman. Mr. Editor—In the Watchman of the 15th May, I notice a raw specimen of composition emanating from a disciple of the Eclectic school of ethics, over the signature of D. Would that he had added at least one vowel to the D so that we might have had some clue to the country whence he hails, and the dignity of his station; for I have heard of a certain prince whose name in more languages than one begins with D, and if this disciple in the school of ethics should be he, I would beg to be excused from entering into a controversy with him on any subject. But I will venture a few remarks on the sentiments of D in relation to Temperance and other things, be the consequences what they may. "I would not willingly object to any society which has for its professed object one so laudable as the extermination of drunkenness, &c., but I do think that it is overstepping the modesty of truth to say that the Order has effected what the Church was unable to accomplish."

logue, must be encouraged to hold on to that lest if he forsakes that all the others will swarm around him and take full possession. But I do not profess to be a theologian. I am one of those who conscientiously believe that the use of intoxicating drinks leads to the perpetration of all the catalogue of crimes which D has enumerated, and which he thinks the Sons of Temperance ought to smother with blows as well as intemperance, or desert to him from any efforts against any evil lest they thereby wake up a whole host of evils in its place. "Drunkenness in D's estimation appears to be a very small matter. It is a gut, a straw. Now, if D will point out a vice which has done more injury to the world than intemperance, I will give him my vote for a professorship in that school of which he professes to be a disciple."

IVORY DAGUERRETYPES. Something new under the Sun BY WEEKS & GRIFFIN. HAVING been detained by the practice of this new discovery some weeks in Greensborough, longer than we anticipated, we hope to be in Salisbury in a week or two. The IVORY DAGUERRETYPES are the plainest and most distinct pictures ever made, having a most beautiful strain color, and ground, which does not act as a mirror like the old style, but most closely resembles ivory. The chemical process is entirely different from the ordinary daguerretype, and the discovery made use of, is a discovery original with us. The following unsolicited notice from the Greensboro Patriot, is a just tribute to the merits of the new discovery: "SUPERIOR DAGUERRETYPES." "It has been the prime fault of all the daguerretype pictures we have heretofore seen, that the background presents a glossy appearance, disagreeable to the eye, and rendering the picture difficult to be seen distinctly except in certain points of view. But within the last few days we have seen several specimens of a great improvement in this particular, as practiced by Dr. Weeks, who has been for nearly three months pursuing the art in this place. He is producing pictures with the background deadened to a creamy or pearl-like appearance, the glossy or reflecting quality of which is almost entirely destroyed. The consequence is, that the picture itself stands out, well defined in outline, and almost as distinct in appearance as if printed on white paper or ivory." [May 22, 1851—3]
