EULALIE.

BY H. & CORNWELL. Blue-birds linger here awhile. O'er this sacred grassy pile, Sing your sweetest song to me; 'Tis the grave of EULALIE!

Roses while around her grave Sweetly bloom and gently wave; Let your silent language be: " We will bloom for EULALIE !"

Streamlet, chanting at her feet Mournful music, sad and sweet, Wake her not, she dreams of me, 'Neath the yew tree, EULALIE!

EULALIE, but yesternight, Came-a spirit veiled in white! I knew it could be none but thee, Bride of Death! lost EULALIE!

Angels, guard her with your wings, Shield her from unholy things, Bid her dream love dreams of me Till I come! sleep EULALIE!

RURAL LIFE.

This primeval employment of man is the most healthful of all occupation-healthful for the body, the mind, and the soul .-What other pursuit by which men obtain honest bread affords such vigourous training for the physical powers, such various and extensive ranges of mental exrecises?

And where may the moral nature of man be preserved unsullied from vice, and grow, and expand more than amid rural scenes and beneath the purest air of hea-

The farmer's life is not scratch, scratch with the pen-rap, rap, with the hammer -nor an everlasting unpacking and repacking of the products of another's labor. He walks forth under the open sky, his broad acres spread out beneath his feet? the blue concave sunlit or starlit, or shrouded in clouds, is still above him, health claims him as her favorite child and the glerious sun love to kiss a cheek that is not ashamed to wear the ruddy imprint of such affection. Nature's own inimitable music of babbling brooks, birds, breezes, or rustling foliage, enters his ear on its glad mission to his heart. He listens to instructive voices continually speaking from the universe around him. His eye gathers truth from unwritten pages of wisdom everywhere open before him.-Each day, each month, season after season, year after year, these teachings are given to him infinite variety and endless in extent.

When towards the close of a sultry day the summer's blessing come pouring down, and as in the beautiful poertry of the sacred volume, "the trees of the field clap their hands," and the valleys covered with corn, shout for joy, the farmer retiring from his labors to the friendly shelter of his cottage roof, improves his leisure hours with the treasures of written wisdom .-So too, while his field are sleeping beneath frost and snow what profession affords more available opportunities for self culture? Where was the lyric poetry composed that makes Scotland prouder of her Burns than of all her ancient race of warlike kings? Was it not between the handles of the Mossgeil plough?

The Carthage Murder. - We understand that the two negroes who were arrested on suspicion of having murdered the Rev. Mr. McNabb, have confessed their guilt.

The discovery of their bloody clothes led to the confession. The knife and stick were found where they stated, with $220 in money. The two men charge a negro woman, also belonging to Mr. McNabb. as having instigated them to commit the horrid deed. The three are in jail. They assign no cause for the murder, but admit that they were kindly treated, and never punished by Mr. McNabb,-Fay. Ob.

Those Guns .- We have not yet told our readers at a distance that our city was, two days ago, and the country around it, resounding to the thundering voices of the big bull dogs of Secession-the large cannon, just finished for South Carolina, at the Tredegar Ironworks. They were trying them, all that day, under the inspection (as we heard) of a Maj. Gardnerthe officer who was to receive them.

We do not know how far the warlike peal of these deep-throated engines of destruction was heard across the quiet county of Chesterfield; nor how it sounded to the loyal ears of those good inhabitants on either shore, who have heard, of late from Judge Caskie, about Peaceful Secession. To us, the 24 pounders did not, we confess, have the most peaceful of sounds. Nor, so far as we could learn, had the huge-mouthed Paixhan guns, meant for ship-board, no doubt, nor the great bombmortars, that are to bear the Long Toms company to the land of Disunion, a much more pacific look-at least, not to the eyes of such as do not see every thing through the Calhoun glasses .-Richmond Whig.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.-We learn that two counterfeit $50 Notes on the Fayetteville Branch of the Bank of the State of North Carolina were seen in this town last week .-They are counterfeits of an older plate than that now used by the Bank, and are both admirably done, so far as the engraving, paper, &c. are concerned. One of the notes, signed Dun. Cameron. Pres't., is well calculated to deceive, requiring care to detect the counterfeit. The other, signed G. F. Mordecai, Pres't, is filled up badly, the signatures coarsely executed, and the imposture palpable to any eye. This Branch has not issued any bill of $50 of the old plate signed by Mr. Mordecai .- Fay. Ob.

Freedom of the Press .- Just dissolve this Union, if you please, and see how long the press will be free, and how long speech will be free. Tyrants will step in, and a free press will be unknown. Our fathers did a job when they rigged up this Union as it stands, and by taking it to pieces, we shall be like Simple Simon, who "ripped open the bellows to see where the wind lay."-Florida Republican.

A WONDERFUL TALE OF TEXAS.

Every one in Eastern or Middle Texas knows Billey Trippet-and a better fellow lives not on this side of the Rocky Mountains-not withstanding he meets occasionally with hair breadth escapes and many strange adventures, which he sometimes relates by way of beguiling the tedious no one for a moment doubts his veracity.

Once on a time Billy and two companions set out to the Trinity river on surveying excursion; in their eagerness to procure good lands, they got down the line designated for the Indians' hunting ground. and returning to the settlement much earlier than was anticipated. On being questioned as to their early return, Billy gives the following account of their adventures:

We pursued our course." said he, "to the neighborhood of three forks of the Trin ity-made several fine surveys-all the time keeping an eye for mill sites, good springs of pure water, and now and then passing over the prairies, to see if any Indians were near: and finally came to the conclusion that the Indians had left the diggins and felt pretty safe, though wolves, bears, panthers and catamounts were in abundance; but this was a kind of game that gave us no uneasiness, but only a little sport. We one evening had surveyed a fine tract of land on the bank of the Trinity, night coming on apace we concluded to pitch tent, and drew up near the bank of the river in a huge cane brake; selected the trunk of a fallen tree, kindled a fire against it, stuck our tomahawks in the log, staked our ponies out and commenced cooking. We had killed a fine bear that day, and had a quarter up before the fire roasting, teakettle on to make coffee, and the fire full of ash cakes. All things going on well, we lolled on our blankets, and got out the flask and took a nip or too. us over the coffee kettle and ground the ash cakes to powder; we sprang to our Board of Trustees as the Principal. Mr. Everhart has under the log to prevent it from rolling, which he accomplished in double quick to be near it. We retreated to a safe distop of his voice, "Snake!" and sure enough, that which had been taken for a log, was a snake. But the matter did'nt end here, he began to hump his back and hiss worse than a Mississippi steamer; the fire made him sick; he began to vomit and discharged two large living buffaloes, a bear. and some other small game; he then made a tremendous effort and threw up a canoe weeks. with six living Indians, all with rifles in hand. We were completely surprised; the Indians brought their rifles to a present, and we vamosed. This is what brought us in before we expected.

Telegraph Water Carrier

HIS is a new and very useful invention for the purpose of raising and conveying water either from springs or wells, for domestic uses. It is also useful for raising ores from mines, or any similar purpose. It accomplishes the same amount of labor in less than half the time required by any other machine, with half the amount of labor. With this simple contrivance a bucket can be sent to a spring at the distance of three hundred yards and returned with water in three minutes time. It is simple in its construction, durable, and not easily to get out of repair,

The undersigned having purchased the patent right for the counties of Rowan, Cabarrus and Mecklenburg, in this State, will be pleased to sell individual rights to such as may need them. Letters addressed to him at Salisbury, N. C., will receive punctual attention. A. H. CRESS.

Salisbury, July 10, 1851 N. B. All persons having in use the Telegraph Water Carrier in use in the above named counties, are requested to call and see the subscriber as he does not wish to have any unpleasant controversy with any one.
