For the Watchman FOREST EMBLEMS.

Dedicated to Statesville Division, No. 159. BY RATE.

I will seek midst the trees of the forest an emblem, A "Son" in his strength and his glory resembling; I'll seek in the valley and roam by the mountain And search by the stream as it flows from the fountain; Nor feel, that the goal of my labor is won, Till I find a new type for the true-heated Son.

Shall it be the green willow by bright rivers weeping, And o'er its dark channel its long branches sweeping; While in its deep shade sweet flowers are springing, And birds in its branches their love songs are ringing! Ah no! the frail willow to summer breath trembling, find not the "Son" in his firmness resembling.

Shall it be the brave oak the wild winds resisting, In glory and strength for ages existing; And crowned every year with a chaplet of emerald And garments of verdure !- but both are ephemeral-All freshness, when to them soft zephyrs are sighing But yielding to winter and fading and dying.

Shall it be the Ilanthus from some eastern island Transplanted to flourish in valley or highland? With long spiral leaves to the blue dome outspreading, And thro' the spring air a dank odor shedding,-So ladened with poison and dampness its breath, That the sleeper but breathes it and slumbers in death

The Willow, the Oak and Ilanthus combine, And find all their virtues in you stately pine! Like the willow it moans as endowed with true feeling, When sighing South winds tho' its branches are stealing; Like the oak it is sturdy-unlike it 'tis found With a chaplet of glory eternally crowned!

And like the Ilanthus-and true to the line-Is the unbending trunk of the storm-beaten pine! You may rest 'neath its branches and sleep 'neath its

For its breath is the sweetest in forest or glade. But a chaplet of verdure is not its best part, For the pine of the wild wood is best at the heart ! My journey's accomplished the goal has been won, For the Pine is a type of the true-hearted " Son!"

But the daughters, the daughters, O what shall they be? What tree of the forest's an emblem of thee? You look to the "Sons" for aid in distress. To love and to cherish, support and to bless Then the Daughters shall be the frail graceful vine That clings in its trust to the brave mountain Pine! STATESVILLE, MAY 25, 1852.

Philadelphia. AMERICAN ORATOR'S OWN BOOK-18 A mo sheep, 50 cts. A manual of Extemporaneous Eloquence including a course of discipline for the faculties of Discrimination Arrangement and Oral Discussion, with practical exercises in Reading, Recitation and Declamatory Debate.

This Book is the production of an eminent member of the Legal Profession, distinguished for his chaste and elegant style of oratory, and was written for the use of those who were ambitious to cultivate the art of Extemporaneous Public Speaking, and by the same process of study acquire the no less important accomplishment of a fluent and elegant style of conversation.

In view of the high encomiums which have been bestowed upon this manual, the Publishers take pleasure in recommending this Book to the favorable notice of Parents and Teachers. Blair's Rhetoric, University Edition with Mills copious Questions and Analysis-Octavo sheep $2 00.

To speak or to write perspicuously and agreeably with purity, with grace and strength, are attainments of the utmost consequence to all who purpose, either by speech or writing to address the public. For without masters of these attainments no man can do justice to his own conceptions? but how rich soever he may be in knowledge and good sense, will be able to avail himself less of these than such as possess half his store but who can display what they possess with more propriety. Persons desirous of improving their style in composition, strengthening their conversational powers, or cultivating their taste for public speaking will find Blair's Rhetoric University Edition "THE BOOK."

-Octavo sheep $2 00. Whoever wishes to train himself to address the human judgment successfully, ought to make Locke, his bosom friend and constant companion. He introduces his reader to a most intimate acquaintance with the construction and constitution of the mind; unfolds every property which belongs to it; shows how alone the judgment can be approached or acted on; through what avenues, and with what degree of proof a man may calculate with certainty on its different degrees of assent; besides this Locke is auxiliary to the same process for which I have been so earnestly recommending the Mathematics, that is giving to the mind a fixed and rooted habit of clear, cogent, close, and irresistible rea-WM. There is happily blended in this work of Mr. Lyell, n an eminent degree, two qualities seldom found in the contributions to scientific knowledge, first an intimate acquaintance with the subject and its kindred branches of Science and Literary research, together with the power of communicating this information in language unsurpassed for elegance. Although this Book is designed for the use of Schools and Colleges, the easy familiar style in which it is written renders it a pleasing companion for the general reader.

aforementioned places. Brethren, with confidence of success, I appeal to your liberality in behalf of this enterprise, the importance of which has been fully established by the Grand Lodge, and the general concurrence of the Brethren throughout the State. While enough has already been done to encourage the hope of success, and evince its entire practicability, much yet remains to be done to render this success certain, and even to prosecute unremittingly the measures already commenced. And yet it is confidently believed, that the aid which you are able to render will be amply sufficient to accomplish all this, and that speedily. Upon your action then as Masons, depends the success of an enterprise which promises the richest benefits to the cause of Masonry and of humanity in general. Some of our Lodges have contributed promptly and nobly to this work, and we only ask your careful consideration of the subject, convinced as we are that nothing more is needed to secure your cordial co-operation in a favorable and early response to this appeal. Remember that in this as in every other social movement, harmony is its strength and support. I am Respectfully and Fraternally yours,
