right is to argue against the very foundation to make this unexpected nomination. It was in North Carolina put together. This A TERRIBLE CRIME -- CRIMINALS principle of all popular government. It is re proclaimed in the free soil papers of the North, tained in the front rank of our own Declaration | that none of "Capt, Scott's men," that is, none of Rights, and in that of every other State in of those who answered Capt. Scott's questions the Union, that in the concerns of this life, all in favor of the Compromise and the fugitive power and sovereignty reside in the PEOPLE .- law, could get the nomination. And so it has They can alter their government when they turned out. Cass and Buchanan, and Douglas. please, whenever indeed the happiness and and Marcy, and Houston, and Lane, and Dickprosperity of the larger number imperiously inson, and Dallas, &c., all answered that they demand a change. . Herein they are the sole would sustain these measures. And they are rulers and sole judges. No limit has been set to their authority but that which the ALMIGHTY NOT ANSWER AT ALL; -and Pierce is nomihas imposed that they shall exercise it in justice and equity. This may be denounced, but it is the doctrine of free American Institutions. It is the doctrine of the Revolution. IT IS THE REPUBLICAN DOCTRINE OF THIS COUNTRY!"

Again: "But these objections pass a sentence of condemnation on the Declaration of Independence, and the principles of the American Revolution, and when we deny this right of a majority of the People to remodel their government, it leads to the much more monstrous conclusion, that a minority-that one man-may perpetuate the most intolerable system of tyranny over the rights of the majoritymay usurp all the powers of the government and leave the majority with no rights, but to practice the virtues of tame and quiet subjects. The People cannot fail to reprobate a principle of opposition that leads us to such conclusions. Sovereignity, a power which binds all others, yet it is restricted by no other, and bound by no forms, must reside somewhere. In this country it is lodged with a majority of the People."

Such were the opinions entertained and published by the "Ex-Minister" in 1833. Did his association with the dilapidated monarchy of Spain alter his views, and drive him to those doctrines which he has recently put forth, and which, if ever sanctioned and carried out, will in the language of his address, lead to "the most intolerable system of tyranny over the rights of the majority, and to the usurpation of all the powers of government" by the minority? A fit leader he of the loco-Constitution through the Legislature, foco Party, and a most admirable expounder of Democratic doctrines! Satan sent out to preach morality!

> But we will not pursue this subject any farther for the present. We do not know in truth, so far as the "Ex Minister to unfortunate Spain" is concerned, whether the play is worth the candle. He thought proper to make an uncalled for attack on Mr. KERR before that gentleman had an opportunity to give his opinions to the public, when he had no chance to answer the misrepresentations contained in that attack. The poisoned chalice has been commended to the lips of the "Ex Minister." His own battery has been turned upon him, with powerful effect. His tergiversations have been exposed. His inconsistencies have been laid bare. His selfish mania for office-his cormorant appetite for place, to the exclusion of every body else, young and old, has been held up to public odium. If he thinks he can gain anything in such a controversy, he may go on his way rejoicing.

These gave way gradually to Douglas, who, after enjoying the prospect for a brief space, fell to rise no more. All the other nags, to use a sporting phrase, were 'no where.' Marcy, Butler, Houston, Lane, Dickinson, Dodge, and Weller, all had a few friends, from 1 to 27, but no one of them ever got above the latter figure.

Gen. Pierce has been in buth Houses of Congress, we believe, where he made no fig. ure. He was afterwards appointed by Mr. Polk, Brigadier General in the Mexican war. What he did there, (if any thing,) does not at this moment occur to our mind, though we shall doubtless hear enough of it in a few days. We cannot of course say whether he will prove a strong candidate or a weak one. One thing is very certain, he was strong with his party .-If he should prove to have popularity, it will be of a negative kind, we suppose, -not such as Polk's, however, for he was "Young Hickorry," the neighbor, and friend, and designated candidate of "Old Hickory." More than this: The Convention steadily refused to adopt any Platform of principles until after the candidate was nominated. Mr. Dobbin, it will be seen, made a speech in favor of the platform first, and the candidate afterwards the candidate to suit the platform; not the platform to suit the candidate. But his voice was unheeded. He was rather too honest for the times. The Committee was ready to report the platform, but the Convention would not hear it!

We write in great haste; and have compil ed with as much care as time and space would allow, an account of the proceedings of the convention, up to Friday night, to which we refer. The closing scenes are not yet receiv. ed-the fact of the nomination having come by Telegraph.
