

Give me old wine—its choicest store,
Drawn from the shady vine,
Our vineyards shall produce no more
Such rare strong juice they gave of yore,
As sparkling lies within;
This was my grand-sire's chief delight,
When the day's chase was o'er,
Fill high! fill high! treasures delight,
Shall sparkle on our board to-night,
Though we should drink no more.

Give me old friends!—the tried, the true,
Who touched their backs with me,
And all my joys and sorrows knew,
As chance's gales the pilgrims blew,
Across the troubled sea;
Their memories are the same as mine—
Our love's through life shall last;
Bring on! bring on! your smiles to shine
Upon our old songs and wine,
Like sun-beams from the past!

A CHRISTMAS STORY

THE London News, says of the following, that it is one of the tenderest and most pathetic fancies Dickens has ever given forth:

Time was, when most of us, when Christmas Day, encircling all our limited world, like a magic ring, left nothing out for us to miss or seek; bound together all our home enjoyments, affections and hopes; grouped every thing and every one around the Christmas fire; and made the little picture shining in our bright young eyes, complete.

Time came, perhaps all too soon! when our thoughts overleaped that narrow boundary; when there was some one (very dear, we thought then) very beautiful, and absolutely perfect, wanting to the fulness of our happiness; when we were wanting too, (or we thought so, which did just as well.) at the Christmas hearth, by which some one sat; and when we interwove with every wreath and garland of our life, that some one's name.

That was the time for the bright visionary Christmas which have long arisen from us to show faintly, after summer rain, in the palest edges of the rainbow! That was the time for the beautified enjoyment of the things that were to be, and never were, and yet the things that were so real in our resolute hope that it would be hard to say, now, what realities achieved since have been stronger!

What! Did that Christmas never really come when we and the priceless pearl who was our young choice were received, of the happiest of totally impossible marriages, by the two united families previously at daggers drawn on our account? When brothers and sisters in law who had always been rather cool to us before our relationship was effected, perfectly doted on us, and when fathers and mothers overwhelmed us with unlimited inquiries? Was that Christmas dinner never really eaten, after which he arose, and generously and eloquently rendered honor to our late rival, present in the company, then and there exchanging friendship and forgiveness, and founding an attachment, not to be surpassed in Greek or Roman story, which subsisted until death? Has that same rival long ceased to care for that same priceless pearl, and married for money, and become uxorious? Above all do we really know, now, that we should probably have been miserable if we had won and worn the pearl, and that we are better without her?

That Christmas when we had recently achieved so much fame; when we had been carried in triumph some where for doing something great and good; when we had won an honored and ennobled name, and arrived and were received at home in a shower of tears of joy; is it possible that that Christmas has not come yet?

And is our life here, at the best, so constituted that, pausing as we advance at such a noticeable milestone on the track as the great birthday, we look back on the things that never were, as naturally and full as gravely as on the things that have been and are gone, or have been, and still are?—If it be so, and so it seems to be, must come to the conclusion, that life is little better than a dream, and little worth the loves and strivings that we crowd into it?

No! Far be such miscellaneous philosophy from us, dear reader, on Christmas Day! Nearer and closer to our hearts be the Christmas spirit, which is the spirit of active usefulness, perseverance, cheerful discharge of duty, kindness and forbearance! It is in the last virtues especially, that we are, or should be strengthened by the accomplished visions of our youth; for, who shall say, that they are not our teachers to that gently even with the impalpable nothings of the earth!

Therefore, as we grow older, let us be more thankful that the circle of our Christmas associations and of the lessons that the bringing, expands! Let us welcome every one of them, and summon them to take their places by the Christmas hearth.

Welcome old aspirations, glittering creatures of an audent fancy, to your places underneath the holly! We know you, and have not outlived you yet. Welcome old projects and old loves, however fleeting, to your nooks among the steadier lights that burn around us. Welcome, all that was ever real to our hearts; and for the earnestness that made you real, thanks to Heaven! Do we build no Christmas castles in the clouds now? Let our thoughts, fluttering like butterflies among these flowers of children, bear witness!

Before this boy, there stretches out a future, brighter than we ever looked on in our old romantic time, but bright with honor and with truth. Around this little head on which the sunny curls lie heaped, the graces sport as prettily, as airily as when there was no scythe within the reach of time to shear away the curls of our first love. Upon another girl's lap near it—placid but smiling bright—a quiet and contented little face, we see home faintly written. Shining from the word as rays shine from a star, we see how, when our grays are old, our eyes hope that ours are young, other hearts than ours are moved; how other ways are smoothed; how other happiness blooms, ripens, and weaves—no, not dreams, for other homes and other lands of children, not yet in being not for ages yet to be, arise, and bloom and ripen to the end of all!

Valuable Lands for Sale—4 or 5 Tracts.

I HAVE several small but valuable plantations on the waters of Hunting Creek, Iredell county, which I will sell on good terms. There is water power on one of these tracts sufficient for any purpose. Any one wishing either to purchase it or to invest capital as a partner in the erection of a Factory, or machinery of any description upon it, will give me a call soon. These lands are all within one day's travel of the Great Central Rail Road, in a healthy section of country. The above named water location is joining the Eagle Mills Manufacturing Company, and this place is now called South Troy; and there is a fair prospect for a Rail Road to Troy, or near there, leading via Mills and South Troy, or near there, leading via Mocksville, Hamptonville and Wilesboro; on towards Virginia and the mountains; when done, the rich provisions of those rich valleys will flow to Salisbury, and thus enrich the Great Central Rail Road. Then there will be a chance to speed all kinds of manufactured goods to a ready market. Come and help me build Paper Mills, Brass and Iron Foundries, Wood Mills, or any thing else you please. We can commence and build a Rail Road to Salisbury and then to the mountains, we can make the Iron here, either the T or U, Iron, and we can also build the Cars and Locomotives at Eagle Mills or South Troy. So let us look into this matter for our own advancement, and the credit of the State. ANDREW BAGGARLY, N. B. The citizens of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, are requested to consider the above. A. B. Eagle Mills, Iredell co., N. C., Sept. 23, 1852—21f
