

DEEPEST ARTESIAN WELL IN THE WORLD.

We were fortunate enough to direct our steps towards Belcher's immense sugar refinery on Saturday last, for the purpose of making some observations of the great Artesian well, which is now being bored at that place. Fortunately, we say, for we never spent an hour more to our interest and profit than the one employed in witnessing the operation of the digging, and in learning the history and progress of the work.

This well was commenced about six years ago by Mr. Belcher, his object being to secure for the purposes of his large refinery a supply of pure water. For six months the operations were continued by him, and reached a depth of some two hundred feet below the surface, when it was found necessary to employ the agency of steam with suitable machinery.

Since the application of steam the work has progressed steadily and perseveringly until the present time, when the incalculable depth of ninety-four hundred feet has been reached. This is said to be the deepest Artesian well in the world.

We are anxious that the enterprise may soon be consummated, and yet our curiosity induces us to an expression of the wish that the drill may still penetrate many, many feet more toward the unknown regions below.—Poly. Globe.

become famous. There is no calculating when the desired vein of water may be reached, but when it shall be tapped, there is every reason to believe that the force of the stream upward will be immense.

Suppose that the vein may have its fountain head (and there is no extravagance in the hypothesis) somewhere in the peaks of the Rocky Mountains at the altitude of one thousand feet, and by a dip of the strata of rocks between which it is contained, it lies twenty-five hundred feet below the surface of the ground at this point of the earth's surface—then on the principle that water must find its level, or that the stream will rise as high as the fountain, the water will burst forth with a force sufficient to carry it to the height of a thousand feet, excepting, of course, the diminished force that would be induced by the friction of the stream against the sides of the bore—though still the great pressure of the earth at the depth of twenty-five hundred feet would equal, or perhaps, more than counterbalance the impediment of friction.

We are anxious that the enterprise may soon be consummated, and yet our curiosity induces us to an expression of the wish that the drill may still penetrate many, many feet more toward the unknown regions below.—Poly. Globe.

MISS DIX.

When this Lady, so well known as a practical philanthropist in behalf of the insane, went to Europe, Mr. Collins provided her with a State Room, free of charge for her own exclusive use, and would take no pay.

With the passage money returned to her, she immediately paid the first year's premium on the insurance of her life for $1,000, which sum she wished to secure, and did so before sailing to the Insane Asylum at Trenton. A communication to the New York papers describing the incident referred to, adds:—“Mr. Collins was so fond of her when she arrived, and she approached to tender her thanks, but taking her hands in his with an emotion that did him honor, he said: ‘The nation, which it can never pay, and of which I, as an individual, am only too happy to be privileged to make my sense of—’

Miss Dix could reply only with tears, for as was evident to all who saw her, her nervous system is completely prostrated. Could we expect it to be otherwise, in view of her immense labors and her grievances? In sixteen States, this delicate woman has had the satisfaction to see Asylums for the Insane established under her influence?

Starting Accident at a Theatre.—Monday evening last says the Baltimore Sun, at the Holliday street Theatre, during the performance of the first play, the dress of Miss Ellen Moran took fire as she passed the footlights, and being of light gauze the alarm from the house was scarcely given before the flames seemed to envelop her person. She rushed hastily from the stage, before more than a passing effort could be made to extinguish the blaze, and the last view which the audience had of her person, was enwrapped in a sheet of flame. Prince Albert is to go on a visit to the Empress—so also is the King of Belgium.

The Monitor publishes the official account of the fall of Bonaparte, but it discloses nothing new.

A report was circulated on the Paris Journal that Sweden and Denmark were on the point of signing a treaty of alliance with the Western Powers, but the report was considered very doubtful.

A Blunt had completed the reorganization of the Ministry of the Interior, Captain Payson, inventor of the Paix-han gun, is dead.

Brown.—The resignation of the ministry had not been accepted—the cause of the temporariness unknown.

Spain.—The United Republican Club had been closed by order of the Government of the National Guards ordered to arrest the members if they persisted in assembling. Several smaller clubs had also been dispersed.

Madrid was profoundly tranquil. All the provincial Juntas had been suppressed.

The government had published the despatch of the previous ministry, showing a total of thirty million dollars, the revenue of Cuba mortgaged for two years and all the extra resources of the Kingdom pledged.

Espartans had raised a temporary loan of two millions of dollars on the Havana customs and bank security.

A decree has appeared confirming the property of Queen Christina. Under cover of this measure she had left Madrid for Portugal, with the sanction of the government, where she will embark for Italy or France. Much of her wealth is safely invested in foreign securities.

Many of the citizens of Rappahannock barely escaped with their lives in the general melee that ensued.

The militia were finally ordered out, arms placed in their hands, and orders given to clear the streets.

This brought the rioters to their senses, and they quitted the first appearance of some regiments of cavalry presented much misfortune.

During a continued restlessness and the white plumes of Arragon was impaled.

Several of the shrimps have been arrested, and it is hoped the people of Rappahannock will make out to them the extreem penalty due to their crimes.—W.H. Commercial.

Terror Stems from Savannah.—Middleton's Property Destroyed.—On Friday last the city of Savannah, Georgia, was visited by the most destructive hurricane which has been experienced there for many years. It has proved a complete destruction of all property and possessions of individuals and families. The houses, vessels, and boats were blown up and washed away.

The fight commenced in streets, and was generally general, sticks, clubs, and all sorts of weapons were used, and a magistrate named Braxton Eastham, was knocked down several times, his head out, and several of his teeth knocked out.

The militia were finally ordered out, arms placed in their hands, and orders given to clear the streets.

This brought the rioters to their senses, and they quitted the first appearance of some regiments of cavalry presented much misfortune.

Terrible Storm at Savannah.—Middleton's Property Destroyed.—On Friday last the city of Savannah, Georgia, was visited by the most destructive hurricane which has been experienced there for many years. It has proved a complete destruction of all property and possessions of individuals and families. The houses, vessels, and boats were blown up and washed away.

The storm commenced in the forenoon, and continued in the afternoon with violence and tempests of wind, rain, and lightning.

It extended almost over the entire state, and it is believed that the entire coast of the Atlantic ocean has been affected.

Several persons have been killed, and others maimed.

The houses, vessels, and boats were blown up and washed away.
