A Firm Bank.

The following lines were written by the celebrated Rowland Hill, more than a quarter of a century ago, at a period of great commercial distress in England, when the monied institutions of that country seemed to be in a state of collapse, and universal bankruptcy threatened the nation.—New York Christian Intelligencer, (Organ of the Dutch Reformed Church) Oct. 29.

I have a never failing bank
A more than golden store;
No earthly bank is half so rich;
How, then, can I be poor?

'Tis when my stock is spent and gone,
And I without a groat,
I'm glad to hasten to my bank
To beg a little note.

Sometimes my Banker smiling says,
"Why don't you oftner come
And when you draw a little note,
Why not a larger sum?"

Why live as beggards and poor?
Your bank maintains a plenty;
Why come and take a one-pound note,
When you may have a twenty?"

Yes twenty thousand, ten times told,
Is my unfailing source;
To spare; your Father hath had up
Secure in God His Son

Store there no Banker is so rich,
I have no cause to borrow;
I live upon my cash to-day,
And draw on him to-morrow.

I've been a thousand times in need,
And never was rejected:
Sometimes my Banker gives me more
Than asked or expected

Sometimes I tell a little proud,
I manages things to cover:
But, ah! before the day was gone,
I felt as poor as ever.

I know my bank can never fail,
Its funds are ever the same,
The firm "Three Persons in one God,"
Jehovah is the name.

Should all the banks of Britain break,
The Bank of England vanish,
Bring in your notes to Zion's bank,
You'll surely get your cash.

And if you have a little small note,
Or not to bring—in,
Come boldly to the Throne of Grace,
The Banker is within.

All forged notes will be refused,
Man's merits will be rejected:
There's not a single note will pass,
That God has not accepted

There's none but those beloved of God,
Redeemed by precious blood,
That ever had a note to bring—
These are the gifts of God.

Though thousands doubting, often say
They have no notes at all,
Because they feel the plague of sin,
So ruined by the fall

This bank is full of precious notes,
All signed, and sealed, and free,
Though many a ransomed soul may say,
"There is not one for me."

Base unbelief will lead the most
To say what is not true,
I tell all souls that fear they're lost,
These notes belong to you.

The Leper had a little note,
"Lord, if you will, you can:"
The Banker cashed the little note,
And healed the sickly man.

We read of one young man, indeed,
Whose riches did abound,
But in the Banker's book of grace
His name was never found

But see the wretched dying thief
Hung by the Banker's side;
He cried, "Dear Lord, remember me;"
He got his cash and died.

The Apprentice.

A young man whose father was in easy circumstances, was desirous of learning the printing business. His father consented, on condition that the son should board at home and pay weekly for his board, out of the avails of his special perquisites during his apprenticeship. The young man thought this rather hard, but when he was of age, and master of his trade, his father said: "Here, my son, is the money paid to me for board during your apprenticeship. I never intended to keep it, but have retained it for your use, and with it I give you as much more as will enable you to commence your business."

The wisdom of the old man was apparent to the son, for while his fellows had contracted bad habits in the expenditure of similar perquisites, and were now penniless and in vice, he was enabled to commence his business respectably; and he now stands at the head of the publishers in this country, while most of his former companions are poor, vicious and degraded.

Prevention of Injury from the Turnip Fly.—Mr. T. L. Thurlow, of Guilford, England, reports that in the beginning of July of last year, he drilled a nine acre field with half Mata-bagas, and half turnips. The fly took the whole of the turnips; not twelve remaining in the whole field, but left the Mata-bagas. He tested the turnip seed in pots and found it good. Thinking it necessary "to do something," he set off three equal plots in the field, and having filled a little hand dusting machine, made to take two drills at a time, he, while the dew was on the ground, had number one plot dusted with soot, number two with soot and lime in equal quantities, number three with lime. The total quantity in each case used for dusting was about three and a half bushels per acre. The result of the experiment was, that the fly left number one plot unmolested, but injured number two, and still further injured number three, taking about half the crop from it.

A DESIRABLE ARTICLE.

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican has been writing from Stockholm, Sweden, telling about a kind of Swedish stove worth the thinks of sensible people. The same form has been used for one hundred and fifty years without any material change. Says the writer:

"Only one fire a day is made in them, and then only a small quantity of birch wood is used. One of common size is capable of heating a room about 15 feet square, as well as you would desire it in the coldest weather. The ordinary wood burned is single sticks of birch, about eight inches in length, split into two Swedish, which is a little less than our cord.

We recommend this Swedish stove to the attention of some of our stove manufacturers. Speed of the Age.

Why is a chicken like a gossiping store? Because it contains hens and geese.

FRAGMENTS OF TIME.

Perhaps there is no gift of God which his creatures so thoughtlessly squander as the precious hours and days which make up existence. Many, who think and speak much of the value of time, do not hesitate to suffer to pass unimproved numerous shreds or fragments, which, when viewed in the aggregate, would be found to constitute a large portion of life, forgetful of the old adage that "spare minutes are the gold dust of time." Some one has well said, "Take care of the minutes, and the hours will take care of themselves." This truth was finely illustrated in the life of the eminent Cotton Mather, of whom it is said by his biographer, that his conscientious use of small portions of time extended even to that part necessarily consumed in the daily arrangement of his toilet, it having become a habit to occupy every such moment in considering some self-proposed question, either of morals or divinity. The great amount of good accomplished by his well-spent life should incite us to similar diligence in the use of the time at our disposal, remembering the solemn truth, that God will require a strict account at last of each moment of our earthly existence.

I am convinced that there is not an accountable being now living, no matter whether in the higher or lower walks of life, who might not, by redeeming time from unnecessary sleep, or unimportant occupation, materially add to the great work of glorifying God, each in the way best suited to the circumstances by which he is surrounded, and the talents with which God has endowed him. Did we oftener pause in our rounds of worldliness and vanity, and reflect how rapidly and surely these months and years are fleeting by, shortening our season of grace, and bearing us onward to the judgment-bar, methinks we would be awakened to a deeper sense of the importance of rightly employing every fragment of our allotted sojourn upon earth.

Were each heart thus deeply impressed with the responsibilities of life, with what solemn interest would the matter of personal salvation be regarded, and how would the trifles that now claim such undivided attention shrink into their proper insignificance, while a consciousness of the favor of God would add dignity and beauty to the performance of the humblest duties of life!

Iota.

Walk Humbly with Thy God.—It is the becoming demeanor of the creature, in the presence of his Creator, and more especially of the fallen creature. God is great, man is insignificant. God is holy, man is polluted. Not proudly in such a presence, for there is no ground for self-complacency; not independently, for in God alone we live and move and have our being. Humbly it should be, for we are very lowly in our origin, and very degenerate in our nature. There should be no pride of intelligence for this is imperfect and limited; nor of judgment, for this is fallible and deceitful; nor of person, for this is disordered and death-stricken; nor of heart, for this is an impure fountain, a receptacle of vile passions. Unless we walk humbly with God, we cannot walk with him at all; it is his own prescribed condition—he respecteth the lowly while he only knoweth the proud afar off.

When a sinner returns to God it must be humbly, and when he makes his appeal to God it must be in the same spirit. Repentance is a humiliation, and every subsequent act of piety must be imbued with the same lowly thoughts of ourselves. A proud, conceited, self-confident worshipper of God is an incongruity. In all situations of life and in all the duties of life, humbleness of mind is our most befitting qualification. Not only is there fitness in this frame of mind, but safety. Wherever we turn our eyes we see the wrecks of pride. No mariner can go out of the true place as an humble walker with God without stumbling and falling. It is so with the worldling, it is so with the Christian, it is especially so with the Christian minister. When he trusts to himself, when he prides himself on his talents, when he leans upon his own understanding, he takes away those feeble supports, and he totters and falls.

The Presbyterian.

Wholly Inexcusable.—Some of the Virginia banks seem to be doing all they can to make more severe the reckoning which the Legislature will soon have with them. The following, from the Fredericksburg News, exceeds anything of which we have yet heard. We call the attention of our Legislature to it; and in the name of the people, ask for a stern judgment:

"With pain and regret we record the following, which is without a parallel in our experience of public institutions:

A gentleman of Essex county, who had a note for $424.69 due yesterday at the Bank of Virginia in Fredericksburg, sent to his friend here, who offered $425 in Farmer's Bank and Virginia Bank notes to pay it. The bank refused to give thirty-one cents in specie in change and protested the note.

ANOTHER.—An industrious mechanic, a poor man, to whom time is money, sent 800 to this same specie paying Bank of Virginia to pay his note for $50 81. The bank refused to give him the change.—He asked to be allowed to deposit $50 to his credit and he to be charged to him. His request was refused.

Such are the benefits our "specie paying" banks afford the community. We have heard from merchants, mechanics and men of all occupations similar things of this. Cannot the patience of the Legislature find or make a remedy? Can any provocation justify such conduct in the banks?—Virginia Sentinel.

Protection Against the Bees in Georgia.—The Wilkes County Georgian Reporter says that the bees in the counties of Jackson and Walton are doing great mischief. Many have been killed dead in the woods, and many others caught by the fruit and carried home. A hunter recently found a large bee tree, and in order to get the honey, cut it down. The bees were so enraged that they stung the horses to death, and severely hurt the dogs. The hunter also received a number of stings, and was compelled to leave the honey in the woods.

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery of the Age.

DR KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures
EVERY KIND OF HUMOR.

From the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple

He has tried it in over 1100 cases, and never failed except in two cases, (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its virtue, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of Pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of Biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of Erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears or blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst cases of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the streets of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appears to me surprising; first that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846—second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April 1853, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day—in April, 1854, I sold over one thousand bottles per day.

Some of the wholesale Druggists who have been in the business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the shape of patent medicines was ever like it.—There is a unanimous praise of it from all quarters.

In all cases practice I always kept it strictly to myself—but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never suspected.

Several cases of epileptic fits—a disease which was always considered incurable, have been cured in a few bottles. Of what a remedy it will prove effectual in all cases of that awful malady—there are but few who have seen more of it than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys, &c., the discovery has done more good than any medicine ever known.

No change of diet ever necessary—eat the best you can get and enough of it.

Directions for Use—Adults one table spoonful per day.—Children over ten years desert spoonful—Children from nine to eight years, tea spoonful. A few drops once in the appropriate to all constitutions, too sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.
