Marshall, spare that dog, touch not a single hair, the words may be long from out his muddy hair. O! when was a pup, so frisky and so plump, he leaped me with milk from a cup, when hungry—at a jump. And then his funny tricks, so funny in their place, so full of caustic lies, upon your hands and face. You will surely be his prey. O! do not kill him dead, he wags his tail, and begs for life—in a lead. Gage the nut, and stop that low sound, and I'll be ready to do it. He is your child's pet, companion of his joy; you will not kill him yet, and then those long, long days, No, Marshall, spare that dog; touch not a single hair. O! put your "paw" up and go away from there.
