Arrest of a Notorious "Astrologist."

How Some People are Harbored.—On Friday last the police of Pittsburg arrested an "Astrologist" called Madame Willis, with several aliases.

The Dauphin of France.—A Marvelous Story.

The following statement appeared in the London Herald, of May 17: There are stranger things that fiction barely dares to venture upon.

Editorial Code of Honor.

A short time ago the editors of Pennsylvania held a convention for the purpose of taking some action in regard to matters pertaining to the welfare of the profession.

Neutralizing Poisons.

A general reader sends the following prescription to the Pittsburg Gazette: "A poison of any conceivable description and degree of potency, which has been intentionally or accidentally swallowed, may be rendered instantly harmless, by swallowing two gills of sweet oil."

Very Emphatic.

The Charleston Mercury says, "We shall sustain no man, of whatever party, clique, creed, or section, who shall stand upon the platform of Douglas's principles, though he should be nominated by twenty Democratic Conventions."

Effects of Riffled Cannon at Montebello.

Detailed information which has been received from the seat of war relative to the slight artillery action near Valenza, in which the rifled four-pounders were first brought into action, has afforded great satisfaction to military men.

Robbery and Attempt to Murder at Wilmington.

We learn from the Wilmington papers that on Thursday morning last two men, Lewis Kiple and Geo. Williams, were arrested for breaking into the grocery store of Mr. Geo. Myers.

Two Letters Found by the Police.

Two letters were found by the police one of which was from a female in South Carolina, who had written $5 in order that the "astrologist" might see her extraordinary powers.
