GOV. MOREHEAD'S FACTORY, &c. TO THE EDITORS OF THE OBSERVER. Having occasion to go to Virginia recently, I passed through Leesville, and soon came to what is called the Leesville Factory, belonging to Gov. J. M. Morehead.

These tried in the severe ordeal of public and private life, he is known to possess the integrity of a Cato; a man of brain of great practical intellect; identified with almost every honorable and liberal pursuit of the country, and having devoted the best of his life and services to the improvement, both public and private, of the State.

AN AFRICAN WILD ANIMAL. GARDNER REVIEW, April 21, 1859. Having been for the last four years hunting in the immense wilds of Central Western Africa, and having had many times the opportunity of hunting other than the formidable animal, the Troglodytes Gorilla, or African Chimpanzee, Nigra and Nigra, and having met with many and killed a few, I have tried to study, to the best of my ability, its habits, manner of living, and other peculiarities.

SOLFERRINO. From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce. By EUGENE MERRILL. A summer's moon in drawing over the dark landscape, and through the Tyrol's Alps, the moonbeams slowly break.

From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce. By EUGENE MERRILL. A summer's moon in drawing over the dark landscape, and through the Tyrol's Alps, the moonbeams slowly break.

The Clay Family—An old letter, written in 1848, by the late Rev. Porter Clay, then preaching at Alam, Ill., gives the following facts in regard to the origin of the Clay family.

My father, as you have heard, was a clergyman of the Baptist denomination. He died in early life, leaving seven children—four sons and three daughters; all of whom died without children, with the exception of Henry and myself.

Discovery of Golden Ingot, Gold, &c., in Indian Tomb. Much excitement has been occasioned at Panama and on the Isthmus by the accidental opening of Indian graves in the Chiriqui district, and the discovery of the large quantities of golden images, gods, &c.

The letter goes on to say that agriculture is quite deserted, and that provisions, figures, clothing and tools would sell at a good market.

Fortunate Man—Private advice by the Africa announce that Capt. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, escaped without a wound at the battle of Solferino, although in his regiment (1st Chasseurs d'Afrique) one in four among the men, were either killed or wounded.
