The Condition of the Country.
VIEW OF THE HON. JOHN M. BUTTS.
CONGRESSIONAL SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

For the first twelve years after the formation of our government, its administration was in the hands of the Federalists and John Adams, the chief. In the year 1800 a revolution in the politics of the country occurred, chiefly through the activity and energy of Andrew Jackson, who was elected President of the United States.

Never was there a more disgraceful occurrence recorded in the page of history for so ignominious a result than that which has been achieved by the Federalists and the Unionists. They were not only defeated, but they were expelled from the halls of Congress.
