He was arrested by the Virginians, brought here and discharged to return to Georgia.

1000 men were present at the meeting. Mr. Gilmer—When we read the documents from the North, showing with what clarity they are preparing for war, we readily notice in preparing to meet our enemies. If we must come, there never had, three things essential to the successful prosecution of the war: these are money, men and arms of offence. Recently the soldiers must be well provided for in arms, food and clothing, and finally the State must have money to meet its obligations we depend on manufacture systems.

In order that the line of these systems may be provided, every man who is engaged in some business, especially commanding his personal attention, will be called to duty, and directed to furnish a certain amount of time for the service of the country. We must be well provided for in arms, food and clothing, and finally the State must have money to meet its obligations we depend on manufacture systems.

In order that we may have enough of bread stuff for the support of the army, and our families, let every man, and woman too, remove their yards, and all the ground and land they may have from cultivated. Let us, however, and in case of necessity labor in the field, so as to give a good account of ourselves. However, the soldiers must be well provided for in arms, food and clothing, and finally the State must have money to meet its obligations we depend on manufacture systems.
