BE YE KINDLY AFFECTIONATE, ONE TO ANOTHER.

BY LINDA.

LITTLE CHILDREN: Have you ever thought what a pleasant abode this world might be, were all of its inhabitants kind and loving to each other? I wonder if any who read this little piece, are ever angry or unkind to the members of their family, or to their schoolmates? I hope not very often, for 'tis sure to cause a sadness, which perhaps you may never know till the dear one who has suffered from your unkindness, has passed away forever; then will you not deeply feel, were that dear one only beside you, how gentle would be your very action. So if you wish to be as happy with those whom God hath given, as is possible for you to be this side of Heaven, then love and cherish them; for believe me, I tell you from experience, when parent, sister, brother, or friend leaves you, for an eternal home, it will be sweetly soothing, to know and feel, that while they were your companions here, they received from you, none but gentle words, and loving smiles. While you are affectionate to those with whom you daily associate, should there come to you, some of God's suffering poor, who have not been so highly favored as yourselves, to these too, be kind, and minister to their wants; remembering, 'those who give to the poor, lend to the Lord.' If you have but a small share of this world's wealth, give cheerfully of that little, for God loveth a cheerful giver. Think of the gift of that poor widow of whom we read in the Bible; her mite was more acceptable than larger gifts which were presented by wealthy persons. Why was this? Because of her penury, she gave that which she needed for the comforts of life; while others bestowed only so much as they could conveniently spare.—Be kind and forgiving to every one with whom you may chance to associate. The hand of affection can best wipe away the falling tear, and heal the wounds of a bleeding heart; so again I entreat you, be not cold and selfish, but kindly, affectionate, and you'll be happy here; inexpressibly happy in Heaven.

ON DOING GOOD.

A Sunday-school teacher was one afternoon talking with his children about doing good to others, and he said that all those who sincerely loved Jesus Christ would be sure to try and do some good in the world. One of his boys made a remark, he hoped they should do some good when they were grown up. "Ah," said the teacher, "that will not be enough; you must begin while you are young, and I have to request that each child will be able to tell me by next Sunday that he has been trying to do some good in the course of the week; mind, I shall be sure to ask you next Sunday."

The boys sat thinking a little, and the teacher repeated his request.

The next Sunday came, nor did the teacher forget to ask each boy what good he had done. Little John Smith, said, "I went last week every morning to fetch a pitcher of water for old Dame Brown, who lives in our house."

Teacher. Well, my little man, that was right; there is a boy yonder laughing at you. I suspect he has done so good at all. Samuel Jenkins, what good have you done? On hearing this, his laugh was turned into a blush, and all that he could at last say was, that he had been to his day-school. "Yes, you have, part of the week," said his teacher; "but I have heard of your

to go a blind's meeting. O, Samuel, Samuel, you great boy, I did not expect you would be able to say you had done any good during the last week."

William Jones said he had read the Bible to a blind man, for which he was commended.

The teacher then inquired of the other boys what they had done; and I am happy to say that many of them were able to give a good account. The following are some of the attempts they had made: to read the Bible to a sick woman; to visit school-fellow in the hospital; to distribute some tracts, to read to a blind father; to teach younger brothers and sisters; to subscribe for a large Bible for a grandmother; and all these were done without neglecting their common duties at home and school.

The teacher said, "I am glad to find that most of you have been trying to do something for the good of others. Our Heavenly Father is always doing good, even to the unthankful. He gives us life, and health, and all other blessings, not only for ourselves, but that we may help others. We deserve to lose all our mercies, because we do not improve them as we should. Let us constantly strive to be like the blessed Saviour, who 'went about doing good,' and who made it His meat and drink to do the will of His heavenly Father. While I rejoice in the good you, my boys, have done I was rather sorry to hear two or three mentioning what they had done in rather a boasting manner. My dear children, should we live long lives in the service of God, we must say at the end of them, we are but unprofitable servants; we have done only what was our duty, and have indeed fallen short of its full demands. Can we ever repay the love of Christ, who left His Father's throne to come down to this world, to save such sinners as we are, by suffering and dying for us? Oh may the love of Christ constrain us to live to His glory, and may we every day show that we have learned of Christ to do good to others."

A Good Example.—The Governor of Alabama has issued a Circular calling upon the women of that State to make socks for the 50,000 men she has in the field and who cannot be clothed with the small sum allowed them for that purpose, whilst everything is so high. He says that those who cannot afford to furnish them gratuitously, will be paid at the rate of fifty cents per pair for heavy cotton, and 75 cents for good wolen socks; and appoints places for their delivery. Contributions to companies (not to individuals) will be forwarded free of cost to the donors.

Speed the good work! Let not our noble soldiers suffer for anything men or women can supply to them. Let the ladies of North Carolina remember that she has twice as many men in the field now as at this time last year, and that they are necessarily less amply provided with clothing after a year's service than then. Fay, Observer.

Funny.—Brigadier Gen'l Robert Toombs of the army, has publicly denounced Major Gen'l. Daniel H. Hill, also of the army, as "a coward and liar." This is a good joke!—Gen. Daniel H. Hill—Bethel Hill—a coward! Daniel H. Hill, the Presbyterian Elder, whose piety has been hitherto unimpeached—a liar! And all because the said General Hill declared that in his opinion Toombs "had taken the field too late and left it too early," at the battle of Malvern Hill; and because, when Toombs challenged Elder Hill to fight him a duel therefor, Elder Hill replied that "he would not make himself a party to a course of conduct forbidden alike by duty and the laws which they had both sworn to observe."

If either of the two Generals be "a coward and liar," which we will not pretend to say, the public can scarcely be at a loss to decide which is the man.—Fay, Observer.

Stuart's Spoils.—The Central Presbyterian (Richmond) says that there is now a captured letter of General Pope's to General McClellan, in the office of our Secretary of War, in which he informs him that of the 60,000 soldiers in his army, 20,000 were, last week, in such a state of disaffection, that they could not be trusted in a fight.
