The English and Austrian Consuls had arrived at New York on the 16th having been ordered out of the Confederate States by its authorities.

FROM VICKSBURG.

Reports from Vicksburg are up to the 10th instant. It is reported that Federal lines are contracting. Kirby Smith, with 6,000 men, came up the White River, making a demonstration against the Louisiana side. Federal troops at Milliken's Bend were being reinforced.

FROM PORT HUDSON.

Oryza, June 16, via Mobile, June 19.

An officer just arrived from Port Hudson reports that all is safe and the army in good spirits. They have provisions sufficient for three months. The enemy have made 27 assaults and lost five thousand men. Our loss is only three hundred.

LATER FROM PORT HUDSON.

Jackson, June 17, via Montgomery, June 19.

A courier just arrived from Port Hudson with dispatches states that Gen. Johnston reports his troops are in fine condition and spirits. Banks' force, estimated at 20,000, have abandoned the idea of carrying the place by storm and had gone to Chicksaw. Official dispatches from Milliken's Bend state that our attack on that place did not succeed. The enemy had three lines of works. They were driven out of the two first but made a desperate stand at the third, and with the assistance of gunboats they repulsed our forces. Nothing is positively known outside of official circles, as regards the movements of Kirby Smith. Advice from Memphis state that transports with wounded are still arriving at that city from Vicksburg.

Another Brilliant Exploit—Capture of the Steam Tug Boston—Burling of the Bark Lennox and Texas.

A party of our daring marines started to get a steambot; the party was under the command of Captain James Duke. After experiencing rather hard fare in the marshes of the Mississippi for some days, they discovered the steambot towing the ship Jenny Lind, loaded with rice, up to New Orleans. This was some three miles from the pass a 'Oute light-house. The brave fellows hailed the ship, and a line was thrown out to them; they were in an open boat. On getting aboard of the Boston, the Confederates made a very pretty display of revolvers, when the captain of the ship remarked, "I told you they were d—b—b—b." It was too late; the fastings were instantly cut, and our men were in possession of the steamer. In coming round at sea, they met the bark Lennox, from New York, loaded with assorted cargo, principally stores, to which they helped themselves, and retaining the captain and mate as prisoners, and sent the passengers and crew ashore; they then set fire to her, completely destroying the vessel. This took place yesterday (Wednesday). There were about forty on the Lennox. About an hour afterwards they came up with the bark Texas, also from New York. They did not take anything from her but the captain and mate—the balance they sent ashore. The Texas was then set on fire, and burning splendidly when she was left. There are about seventeen prisoners on board of the Boston. The Boston arrived at Fort Morgan this morning about 2 o'clock, and at the wharf at 11 o'clock. She is a staunch tug—runs about twelve knots an hour, and is a propeller. In the Mississippi river the Confederates were for some time within speaking distance of the U. S. man-of-war Portsmouth, 16 guns, and about half an hour previous to their capturing the Boston a gunboat had passed up within gun shot of our men. This prize will prove very valuable to the captors—and shows what daring can accomplish in the way of a little private enterprise. The Boston was cheered all along our front as she came in, the Confederate flag over the gun-turret—Mobile Advertiser.

BLANK DEEDS, FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

From the 4th North Carolina.

CAMP NEAR CULPEPPER, VA., June 7th, 1863.

Under circumstances the most unfavorable that can be imagined, I will briefly and hastily inform you of our whereabouts and how we happened to get here. On last Thursday morning, the 4th instant, at half past one o'clock, we were aroused from our profound sleep, not by rattling drums, but quietly, and told to make our way towards Guinea's Station as speedily and as noiselessly as possible. It was vain for us to grant and growl, or complain of broken rest, or anything of the sort, but knapsacks were bundled up in a twinkling, slung on our shoulders and away we went. At daylight we were near the station, and leaning on our rifles, we pushed ahead for Spotsylvania Court House. As the sun ascended the heat became oppressive, and the dust insufferable. But at 3 P. M. we arrived at our company ground, one and a half miles west of the above mentioned Court House, having traveled about sixteen miles. After taking a cold water bath we lay down for a night's rest with sore joints and aching bones. The next morning we were aroused as the stars ceased to shine, fell into line, and marched in dust and heat worse than the day before, with a rest of ten minutes in every hour, until 4 o'clock, P. M. We were moving in the direction of Culpepper, and at night found that we had marched about eighteen miles that day, and through a country mostly level, sandy, not exceedingly fertile, but overflown with pretty girls who stood along the roadside and enthusiastically cheered us. Of course we had to play occasionally for them, and once a squad of them generously donated to the band a basket of peas, biscuits, and boiled ham. We are called "Tar Heels," and I am proud of the appellation—North Carolina heels, from their adhesive properties, are always put to the most important tests in battle, they stick or advance; but I am not sure but by standards would have thought our fingers tarred as well as our heels if they had seen the good things getting out of that basket. It was emptied in the twinkling of a cat's tail. So, so, we had no time to parley, and away we went in a cloud of dust, mouching at our first fall of delicacies, and as money as monkeys with red apples. At night we encamped in a cluster of underbrush, and near about creek. Half an hour after arms were stacked hundreds of men were in bathing—it is equal to a night's rest. Many feet were swollen and blistered, and every muscle in our bodies was aching from the effects of our unusual exertion; but after the refreshing bath our nerves were rejuvenated, our spirits revived, and at dark we stretched ourselves on the ground, grateful to God for the little shower that was then falling. The following morning (yesterday) we were up and off at four o'clock. The little rain that fell last night had laid the dust, and made fine walking. We drove rapidly for five miles, when we were very unexpectedly turned into camp to await further orders. Some movement of the enemy caused this, but no matter what brought it about, we got to rest our tired limbs. We remained in that beautiful forest until an hour before day this morning (Sunday) when we took up our line of march anew—two hours brought us to the Rapidan river, but it was no obstacle, we pitched in and waded across it as though it had been a spring branch. It was about 100 yards wide, and on an average knee deep. Once across, we traveled on without any detour save the usual rest of ten minutes every hour, and at 1 P. M. passed through Culpepper, (town) three miles north of which we are now encamped, having traveled fully eighteen miles to day. We have recovered from the soreness felt at first, and are now in good plight to travel. The men march remarkably well, not a straggler is to be seen, and so much cheerfulness I have never before seen on a march. I hear but little complaint of sickness, everybody is eager to see what is up. The campaign is open in earnest, and until its closing my readers need not be surprised at any thing they hear. Something important is in the wind—I know but little of it, and dare not tell that which I do know. But my opportunities for mailing continue the same as now, you shall not lack for information after things have happened—it would not be prudent to tell them before. This country is a perfect ruin—both armies are trying now, and have been for the last twelve months to make the destruction complete, and they have well nigh succeeded. The enemy is in strong force beyond the Rappahannock, half a day's march from us. A battle is expected to open hourly.
