THE PROG.

Of all the things that live In woodland, marsh, or bog, That creeps the ground or flies the air, The funniest is the frog-The frog - the scientifickest

Of nature's handy-work-The frog that neither walks nor runs, But goes it with a jerk.

With pants and coat of bottle green, And yellow fancy vest. He plunges into mud and mire -

All in his Sunday best; When he sits down, he's standing up, As Paddy O'Kinn once said; And, for convenience sake, he wears His eye on top his head.

Above the "nasty deep;" You feel inclined to say old chap, Just "look before you leap!" You raise your cane to hit him, His ugly looking mug; But, ere you get it half way up,

As down he goes ker chug. He keeps about his native pond, And he ne'er goes on a spree, Nor gets "how-come-you-so," for a Cold water chap is he;

For earthly cares to get drunk He's not the silly fool, But, when they come, he gives a jump, And drowns 'em in the pool.

PHISCELLAND.

"A FINE CHANCE FOR GIRLS." A week or two ago we copied a paragraph, which has been going the rounds, stating that in the town of Alton, Illinois, with a population of 3,000, there were but twelve unmarried females, eleven of whom are engaged, and the twelfth is a widow who has had three husbands.

Now for the other side of the story. eceived a few days ago a letter from a subscriber, at this identical place, Alton, in the State of Illinois. And what does he say? Hear him:-

"Presuming, friend Hale, that some portion of the readers of your invaluable sheet in the good old " North State," would like to hear from the "Far West," say to them, that the "Sucker State" has been unusually sickly during the present season, but notwithstanding the extraordinary number of cases of bilious and congestive fevers, there have been comparatively few deaths. In the county in which I live, (Macoupin,) there are, at this time, two-thirds of the citizens who have had chills and fever; and in the counties adjacent, there is an equal degree of sickness. Could some of those discontented youngsters of old North Carolina, who are anxious to emigrate to the West, be in Illinois at this time, and see the palefaced, bloated-cheeked, sucker girls, and compare their present appearance with the bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked lasses of the good old North State, their migrating fever would cool off at once, and they would be willing and contented to remain at home and improve that glorious old State. My advice to them, is to remain at home, for though others' lands may be more fertile than theirs, there is no place equal to North Carolina for both general intelligence and social worth."

Juckson Monument. - At a large meet ing of the citizens of the City of Washing ton in the month of September last, prepa ratory steps were taken to obtain the means for the purpose of erecting a monument (" colloss il equesirian Statue, in imperishable bronze," at the seat of the Federal Government, to the memory of Gen'l Andrew Jackson. At that meeting a central committee of thirteen was appointed, for the purpose of organizing the necessary measures to raise by voluntary subscription the requisite sum. The committee have published an address, giving some reasons why such a monument should be erected and stating their plan of operations.

PROSPECTUS

Of the 'Congressional Union' and 'Appendix,' &c.

The undersigned respectfully inform the public, that, with the commencement of the approaching session of Congress, they will begin the publication of the "Congressional copy." The velocity of the said of the copy." Union" and "Appendix." The first will contain a full and accurate history of the national legislature. It will be compiled ies for $25 que RITCHIE & HEISS. with such care that every citizen who is interested in the public affairs will find it a complete sinopsis of their proceedings, and a ready book of reference upon all ques tions which come before them. The second, (the "Appendix,") contain every speech which is delivered in the House of Representatives and Senate during the session, reported at length by a full and able corps of congressional repor ters, and revised before publication by the authors, whenever it is requested. These two works will be strictly impartial, and are intended to be as interesting and useful to the man of business, and to the politician of the one party, as of the other.

It may be said, without exaggeration that the next session of Congress is desti to be one of the most important which has taken place since the foundation of the government. is the long session. It is the session which will develope the general plan of the present administration. Its measures will stamp the character of our institutions for years to come. Some of the most important questions which are connected with our foreign relations, or our domestic concerns, will be presented for their consideration. The final measure of ratifying the constitution of Texas, which is to consummate her admission into our Union, and the admission of her members into our public councils-every measure which affects the Oregon question -our relations with Mexico-as well as the final decision on the revived Zoll Verein treaty, -these, and other measures which are more or less connected with our foreign relations will come under the review of the approaching Congress. Most of the eminently important questions which relate to our internal concerns-the revision of the hest modes for preserving the public moneys-a variety of commercial measures-perhaps the best system for regulating the important interests of Texas - the Indian questions-the There is a whole volume of sound sense land question—best system for our navytion and experience of South and West. much of the time of Congress, and much of subcribers as follows: In addition to what he has stated, it is the attention of the people. In undertaking the tack, he knew he had maulation for the great West. All manner of ny difficulties to overcome, many lessons to learn, many sacrifices to encounter. He knew that amid the arduous cares of a new in crowds & caravans. It would not be too theatre, he could not at first do justice even to himself; but his zeal has never flagged. What enthusiasm and industry can effect, will be fully accomplished. Some errors he may have already committed. But upon one point, he can speak with great pleasure and with equal freedom. The men who are administering this government are men, anxious, as he believes, to do their duty, to serve their country, to carry out the pledges under which the President was elected, and the great principles of the party. So long as the administration is conducted in this spirit, and upon those principles, he is prepared to co-operate with the in the public service; and to give them as promised in his prospectus, "a fair, liberal, and efficient support."

We leel a deep sense of gratitude for the prompt manner in which our political friends, in every section of the country, have already come forward to sustain the "Uniou." May we not hope that our friends throughout the United States will continue to assist our labors, and prevail upon their friends to take some one edition of the "Union?"
