Doctor Wm. EVANS'
SOOTHING SYRUP
For children Teething,
PREPARED BY HIMSELF.

To Mothers and Nurses.
THE passage of the teeth through the gums produces troublesome and dangerous symptoms. It is known by mothers that there is great irritation in the mouth and gums during this process. The gums swell, the secretion of saliva is increased, the child is seized with frequent and sudden fits of crying, watchings, starting in the sleep, and spasms of peculiar parts, the child shrieks with extreme violence, and thrusts its fingers into its mouth. If these precursory symptoms are not speedily alleviated, spasmodic convulsions universally supervene, and soon cause the dissolution of the infant. Mothers who have their little babes afflicted with these distressing symptoms, should apply Dr. William Evans's celebrated Soothing Syrup, which has preserved hundreds of infants when thought past recovery, from being suddenly attacked with that fatal maldy, convulsions.

POLITICAL,

From the Fayetteville Carolinian.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

The democracy of Northampton county held a meeting at Gaston, on the 6th instant. Among other patriotic resolutions adopted are the following. The people of Northampton have spoken the feelings of every democrat in North Carolina with respect to the treacherous course of Wm. H. Haywood, and of every true friend of his country with respect to James K. Polk and George M. Dallas:—

Resolved, That it is with mortification and regret, deep and unaffected, we heard of the desertion of William H. Haywood, Jr., in the hour of the great peril, and when it was not certain but that the result of the great Tariff contest was dependant upon his conduct; and we regard it a shameful dereliction of duty, deserving our unqualified censure and severest judgment; and we esteem such sickly sentimentality and delicate conscientiousness, by which it is assigned he was governed, unsuited in all public men for great and moving trials, and undeserving the reliance of a pure and just people engaged in the reformation of great national errors.

Resolved, That it is with feelings of pride we reflect on having assisted in the elevation to the two highest offices in the gift of the people, such steadfast and decided men as James K. Polk and George M. Dallas; and we hereby tender to them our congratulations at the successful propagation of democratic principles, and the increasing confidence of the people in their capability, honesty and fitness to carry them out in the administration of the General Government.

"Give me an honest fame, or give me none,"
Says Pope; but some politicians seem to have the same sort of ambition as the youth who fired the Ephesian dome, preferring infamy to no fame at all.

It is astonishing to see how people sometimes try to make a great noise about nothing, and lay blame where none ought to rest. A certain set in New Orleans are trying to raise a great excitement because the volunteers from Louisiana have been discharged; when it is proven by Gen. Taylor's letter that it was the desire of the volunteers themselves.

He says in a letter to the Adjutant General of the Army, dated Matamoras, July 22, 1846, that "a large number of those composing Gen. Smith's brigade had expressed a wish to return home at the end of three months." And again, he says: "I think very few of those volunteers will consent to be mustered for twelve months."
Gen. Gaines is the man to blame, if blame there must be; for he ought to have known that there was no law to muster men for more than three months.—ib.

More Rail Roads.—The citizens of Greenville, S. C., and all along there, are holding meetings for the purpose of continuing the rail road from Columbia to Greenville, S. C. Then the people of Asheville, N. C., are anxious that it should be continued on in that direction; and meetings are being held all about to accomplish this. Greenville is about 80 miles northwest of Columbia, S. C.; and Asheville is about 50 miles north of Greenville. We are glad to see the spirit moving.—ib.

William M. Price, formerly District Attorney in New York, committed suicide a few days since. Pecuniary embarrassments were the cause of this rash act.—Richmond Her.

The last Suicide.—The son of Judge Woodworth, of Albany, quite an accomplished and good looking young man, committed suicide, as is known, in the Tombs, not in consequence of any crime, but we apprehend from being tired literally of doing nothing. How true is the old adage, that idleness is the foundation of all evil. What is to become of our young men, graduates of Colleges, and sons of rich and respectable parents? They must enter upon the study of what is called a liberal profession—Law, Divinity, or Medicine—either of which is so overrun with graduates, that there is no employment for thousands of candidates, and they must be idle, and idleness leads to dissipation, and dissipation to destruction. Why not turn their attention to the mechanic arts? The pride of the mother and sisters—probably of the father—may be wounded at seeing their son and brother a mechanic. Why this false pride? A young man with a good education will make a much better and a more finished mechanic, than an illiterate person. A young man may lose his fortune, and become poor; but he can never lose his trade. Whatever changes there may be in his condition, he can, if sober and industrious, always earn a living. He may gamble away his money, but the labor of the hand, and the ingenuity of the head he cannot lose. Let wealthy parents show a good example, by placing well educated sons to learn some branch of a mechanic art—to render them independent, and to give them a controlling influence in the country.

New York Sun.

Another Arrest.—We learn from the Savannah papers of the 18th instant, that a man by the name of Samuel A. Hough, of South Carolina, was arrested in Savannah on the 14th instant, charged with having offered for sale to several persons a negro man, calling himself at one place Jacob, at another Mahon, and at a third Connor. He was committed to jail by Justice Raiford, to await the requisitions of the authorities of this State. The negro belongs to the estate of Charles Graves, of Charleston.—Farmer's Gaz.

Eppes, the Murderer.—The Richmond (Va.) Republican states that facts have recently come to light, which render it more than probable that previous to his murder of Adolphus Muir, Eppes had murdered his own son, his mother-in-law, and a drover. His mother-in-law died suddenly after taking a dose of medicine he administered to her—his son was reported to have accidentally shot himself whilst out gunning with his father—and the drover was never seen after going to Eppes's house to receive money for a drove of hogs. The son and mother-in-law both stood in the way of his obtaining possession of money, and a skull has since been found in a barn on his former premises, supposed to be that of the drover.

Dr. CHAMPION'S PILLS.

Verses composed by the Rev. T. W. Craven, of Wallton county, Georgia.
Hear, my friends, my thoughts in song;
My language's plain, and not too strong;
Truth, like its author, is the same,
When 'tis spoken should ne'er be blam'd.
Chill and Fever—the Southern plague—
Like men of war drew their death blade;
O'er the broad world, like armies, spread,
Strewing the earth with their fallen dead.

Like a Howard, CHAMPION ROSE,
Offering a balm for all those woes:—
The North, the South, the East and West,
May now from Chills and Fever rest.

Prouder trophies earth's not known,
Than by this Medicine's been shown:
Since such vic'try then is won,
The plaudits thou hast nobly done.

Never since man his Eden left,
Hath found a remedy so blest—
Never were praises better earned,
Than by him who disease upturn'd.

When the reign of prejudice is past,
And men from them the darkness cast;
Their children will exult to trace
The Doctor's name, his time, and place.

History will be search'd to know,
Where liv'd the man that bless'd us so;
Who the banner of health unfurl'd,
And sent a balm to bless the world.

None disbelieved more than I,
Till I the Medicine did try—
I now have seen enough to know,
It is the best the world can show.

These two lines that look so solemn,
Were just put here to fill the column.
