By Phillips & Staton, Att'ys.

Sept, 1, 1881.-6w.

"Have you been engaged for the summer night concerts?" inquired the Mayor, mildly. "No, sir; I have not. I never go your life?" "Yes, I believe I did once; but 2800,000 per year, he is regularly in-creasing it. His investment in the Newport Casino is an instance of his and were buried in the same grave. taught me a lesson, and it was there I was convinced that nature never intended me as a public singer." "How did it occur?" said "Well, it was a long while ago never make a grimace. "Well, I thought that song would just suit her taste exactly, and was in hopes that it would strike her in a 1 55 tender spot if I put the necessary amount of pathos in my voice when I climbed the high notes. I had two weeks to practice in, and each day went back in the woodshed and would howlaway, until the neighbors began to throw old temato cans over the back fence and tell me to go off and muzzle myself. During the time I was practicing I made a great many bitter enemies, and came near

"At last the night on which the concert was to take place rolled around, and the audience were all expectant. My time to sing came, 8 90 and gorgeous in a black suit, kid gloves and a big rose in my coat, I stepped forward and bowed as some one fired a boquet at me. A big Dutchman, in blue spectacles, had charge of the music, and as he ducked his head as a signal to start, and galloped off on one note, I stam peded on another, and if you ever saw a confused Dutchman pounding up and down piano keys trying to keep up he was the man. "He turned his head around and glared at me like a hyena, and I became frightened, and got faster and higher, while he sweated, pumped and pounded like a maniac, and even the audience got excited. During the second verse my voice went up as high as a tin fife, and the Dutch-55 man fainted and rolled from the piano stool, and I found myself standing before a whole houseful of people, and feeling like I was about to have the hysterics. That was the first and last time I ever sang at a concert." The Mayor looked sad when the clerk had finished, and then sighing a couple of times in a meaning sort of way, took his umbrella and left. to the kitchen swearing that his master was the devil, taking himself

James Gordon Bennett.

A correspondent of the Chicago Times writing from Newport, R. There resides near President a woman who had three children. A few days since she was preparing dinner and had the youngest child with her in the house. The other two children were sent by her to hunt some eggs. They were both young, and going out of the honse they saw a hollow through the classic portals of the court room in Houston, Texas; it invigorated the clerk to such an extent that he tilted his chair back and began warbling "Touch the harm gently, my sweet Louise." The sudden entrance of the Mayor abruptly terminated the song, and the clerk simmered down to a prolonged yawn with a sort of sheepish look on his denoting the court of the house they saw a hollow log in the yard.
