Correspondent well written, and who is more concerned than women in this blight upon American civilization!

Tax "hoax" for this week have controlled the New York stock market.
The present prices of cotton show that several bears are at work on the cotton exchange. Thus it is that the bone and sinew of the land is used for the benefit of these money sharks.

There is so much talk of what may be expected when Hon. John W.
Daniel gets into the U. S. Senate that there is danger of his eloquence having the edge taken off it by over-anticipation. There are some orators in the Senate, but they appear to have been lost sight of in the glare of the new star from the South.

"Tomato Red" is the latest fashionable shade. Some people affect it for the hair, and it is already "got it on the list." It is popular with the fair sex, however, despite its humble origin.
And why not "tomato red" as well as "elephant's breath," "London smoke," "crushed strawberry," "mashed blueberry," etc? More euphonious titles might have been chosen, certainly, but they have the undeniable merit of being emphatically expressive.

JOSEPH PULTZER, editor and proprietor of the World, has been arrested in a suit for libel brought by Mayor Grace, of New York.

That paper has habitually disregarded the rights of character, and assailed men in public and private station plainly on account of the personal animosities of its editor. The best interests of society require that the cases shall be brought to a prompt trial, and that, if the plaintiff shall sustain his cause of action, judgment shall be given to the full extent of the demand.

The World claims to be a Democratic paper, but it is a traitor in the camp. It is now no more entitled to the confidence of the people than it was before it embarked in "wild western" journalism.

The Gateway of Our Winter Storms.
N. Y. Herald.
As the winter progresses the storms which enter the United States from the Pacific Ocean are beginning to take the anomalous route from southwest to northeast. Ordinarily they cross the continent on a track very nearly following the fortieth parallel, deviating more or less to the north or south of this line according to the distribution of barometric pressure. But during the presence of the large cold anti-cyclones in the trans Mississippi districts and the Northwest the cyclones are forced to enter the country from the southwest and thence to make their journey to the Atlantic by a less northerly track.

We had a striking illustration of this winter anomaly of American storm movements last week, and yesterday another example of it. The fact worthy of special note by all our Atlantic coastwise shipping interests. Before going to sea from Eastern port Atlantic shippers must will do well to count upon the continuance of the fine anti-cyclone weather they experience when leaving port, but to ascertain whether a storm is entering the Southwestern districts, and if so to look out for southeasterly to northeasterly gales as they sail north or south along the Atlantic coast.

By attention to this change in the tactics of our continental winter storms masters of coastwise shipping might avoid many dangerous gales.
European vessels when going out of our Eastern ports may also profit by this knowledge in prevailing the weather or they may expect between the American coast and the Newfoundland Banks

No More Bloody Shirt.
Mr. Frank Pixley, of California, was an ardent supporter of Mr. Blaine in the last campaign, but he now deprecates his leader's advice that the bloody shirt issue shall be continued. Mr. Pixley says it is an indisputable fact that carpetbag and negro government nearly ruined the South, and that prosperity returned with its overthrow. Never before, he says, were the people of the South, white and black, so prosperous as they now are. He wants this prosperous and satisfactory condition of affairs to be let alone. He speaks with decided emphasis on the subject, and says:
Expressing the opinions of an intelligent and patriotic class of northern loyal men, we say to Messrs. Blaine, Logan and Sherman that if we lived in South Carolina or Mississippi, where ignorance was in the voting ranks, we would not let it vote unless it voted our way. If during the coming session of Congress the Chinese of California could be lawfully clothed with the privileges of citizenship so that, if in a majority, they could make our laws, elect their magistrates to interpret them and their few executive officers to enforce them, we would see them driven by bayonets into the sea, annihilated and damned, before we would submit to the legal imposition which would imperil that which is dearer to us than the law.

It will not take many such utterances as this by northern and western republicans to show the republican leaders the political folly of attempting to revive the sectional issues. It would never win in any event, but such hot protests as this we have quoted will convince Blaine, Logan and Sherman that it is a dead issue, and then it will disappear forever from our politics.

Clubbing.
The local newspaper at this season of the year has innumerable propositions to club with other papers.
The circular letters sent out by these foreigners are gotten up most seduc-tively. You are told how you can double, frequently quintuple, your circulation, increase your advertising patronage and at least double your rates.

Papers whose ordinary subscription price is one dollar are offered to you at prices varying from seven-

A Farmer's Complaint.
On our fourth page we publish a very interesting address by Mr.
Willis R. Williams, Grand Master of the State Grange at its recent meeting in Rocky Mount. Every farmer—and for that matter every body else—should read it. Coming from the head of such a respectable body entitles it to careful consideration. The address itself will enchain attention.

Most of it the Southerner endorses for its sound doctrine which it would be well for all to adopt, especially a union of the farmers. The assumptions and deductions of our esteemed friend are open to criticism, and thus we undertake simply to further the end that the grangers have in view.

"In facts for farmers" we have this statement—
The farmer saves only 4 per cent. while the manufacturer makes 20 per cent. The farmer add 12 per cent to the wealth of the country, but save only 4 per cent. The manufacturer save all theirs.

Now here is a mistake in the use of the words "save" and "make."
The farmer or the miner can only make. Wealth is produced by the two classes, agriculturists and miners; all others do nothing more than to change the form of these productions.
The four per cent which the farmer is credited with making is really what he saved for himself. He has really added sixteen per cent to the country's wealth.

In accounting for the low price of commodities he excludes over production and assigns this cause: Some say that Protection is the cause of it yet England, where there is free trade, has the same poor, oppressed, half starved laborers, that we find in Germany which has Protection. The real cause and the only answer is, that the farmer alone is not organized; he of all classes stands aloof, disintegrated and discouraged.

Nor does he put much faith in the cause which some newspapers allege, over production, which he terms a "pangan's answer."
The evils complained of are caused by protection which makes over production a natural result. This protection should be credited to the farmer.
He is the controlling element in this country yet he allowed the protective statutes to be enacted. Like the grand master, we would wish to see the farmers organize. They must do so now if they would remedy the evils that are now so burdensome to them. Out of the goodness of their hearts they have allowed the manufacturer with his seductive argument for helping home, to have laws passed that only helped him. The farmer allowed the manufacturing classes to increase the prices of what they made without once considering that he was not being helped. Under the specious plea for building up home industries, he has allowed himself and brother agriculturists to be made nothing but hewer of wood and drawers of water for this very class, whose organization the Grand Master would have the farmers im-mulate. With our millions of acres of rich lands, the farmer must look to the whole world for a market. The United States is too small.

The farmer should organize to be let alone.

For this purpose, to remedy existing and growing evils the farmers should organize. Let them unite to make, in the vernacular, "every tub stand upon its own bottom," as the tiller of the soil has to do.

Let them put a stop to rail road consolidations, and protective tariffs, and then they will have all that any farmer wants—a fair show" with the agriculturist not the hinder-

The President's Message.
President Cleveland's message to Congress which he sent in Tuesday of last week is a very able, interesting and instructive State paper. It is very long almost an encyclopedia, entirely too lengthy for a weekly news paper to publish in full. We shall notice it in brief.

The message after touching upon the death of Vice President Hendricks takes up the public business by departments, State Treasury, War, Navy, Justice, Postoffice and Interior.
The reports of the seven secretaries are analyzed and such legislation is recommended as he "judges necessary or expedient" and he insists upon it. He concluded with certain recommendations common to all.

The review of the State department takes up almost one third of the message. The commercial treaties with Spain, the British West Indian and Dominican governments, negotiated under the preceding administration are "sat down upon" rather heavily. The reciprocity is not on one side and that side is not Uncle Sam's. Austria's refusal to receive Mr. Kelley whom the President last summer appointed minister to that country is given and commented on. The Executive thinks it would be unbecoming in the United States to accredit another, in as much as the nation sending the minister is or should be the judge of his qualifications and not the power to whom he is accredited. The "unflattering weakness" of our navy is such that "the nation that cannot resist aggression is constantly exposed to it and its foreign policy is of necessity weak."

He also will abstain from asking the sanction of the Senate to the international convention framed by the Congo Conference at Berlin, and disapproves the signature of that instrument by the delegates of the United States, as being an engagement imposing on the parties to it "the conservation of the territorial integrity of distant regions where we have no established interests or control."

He advises the organization of a joint commission by the United States and Great Britain to settle the fishing rights in dispute with the Dominion of Canada; avers that "all the power of this government should be exerted" to secure to Chinese residents "the protection of the treaties and the law" against outrage, but intimates willingness to occur in more stringent measures to shut out Chinese labor; protests against the anti-pork legislation of France, Germany and Austria; recommends amendment of the laws touching naturalization and domicile, and a reorganization of the American courts in Oriental countries, and favors international copyright.

As to the public business within the special purview of the Treasury Department the President estimates that the taxes to be raised under the existing laws will yield a surplus of seventy million dollars for the current fiscal year. This he deems to justify and demand a reduction of the revenue, and he recommends that it be made by an abatement of the customs duties "upon the imported necessaries of life." He is silent concerning all other projects for disposing of the surplus, including that recently advocated by Mr. Tilden in a letter to speaker Carlisle, of applying it to coast defenses. He is also silent on Secretary Lamar's federal aid to educational recommendation.
He does not commit himself to any defined tariff policy.

"The question of free trade," he thinks, "is not involved, nor is there now any occasion for the general discussion of the wisdom or expediency of a protective system."

On reforming the currency he is urgent, "nothing more important can claim the attention of Congress." He strongly and wisely insists that "the authority to coin money given to Congress by the constitution, if it permits the purchase by the government of bullion for coinage in any event, does not justify such purchase and coinage to an extent beyond the amount needed for a sufficient circulating medium." Our country is "be-trotting in the silver field without an ally or friend." "The hoarding of gold has already begun," and we have been saved from collapse to a mono-metallic silver basis so far only "by the most careful management and unusual expedients, by a combination of fortunate conditions, and by a confident expectation that the course of the government in regard to silver coinage would be speedily changed by the action of Congress." "I recommend," says the President, "the suspension of the compulsory coinage of silver dollars directed by the law passed in February, 1878."

The last named of his recommendations is the Presidential succeesion about which he declares that "the present condition of the law is such as to require immediate amendment to affirm public anxiety."

He is still firmly convinced that the civil service law, competitive examinations for subordinate positions, is correct in principle, and hopes that we shall never again be permitted to the system which "distributes public positions purely as rewards for partisan service." And he doubts "whether our government could survive the strain of a continuance of this system."

Having treated at length the Pre-

I eat of FRED COOPER, I don't Cooper's
The old reliable
Cooper's Restaurant
I have been in the restaurant business
several years, and as all my patrons know,
I always keep the finest oysters in the market, and can serve them in any style.
All kinds of fresh meats every day.

If you have never been to see me COMER and I am sure you will go away satisfied as well as filled.

The Tobacco Yield.
From the early days of the colonies to the present time tobacco has been a leading product of American soil. Its production has nearly trebled in half a century and is still increasing. Fifty years ago the area in tobacco was less than 300,000 acres and the annual product about 210,000,000 pounds. Since 1880, or in five years, it is estimated that the acreage has increased to 700,000 and that the crop for the current year is near to 800,000,000 pounds. Until 1870 Virginia ranked first as a tobacco State. Now Kentucky has the lead, and produces over one-third of the total production of the United States. The late crop of that State is the largest ever raised, with the exception of that of 1877, which amounted to 181,484,000 pounds. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1885, the value of the exports of tobacco was $24,767,405.

The Vanderbilt Will.
The will of the late William H. Vanderbilt is an extraordinary document in some respects, apart from the vast sums mentioned in it. It indicates a strong desire which is common to many rich Americans, to leave behind him something that shall represent the Vanderbilt name. Yet he shows by his distribution of property that he appreciated the magnitude of the error which his father, the Commodore, committed in giving nearly the whole of his wealth

Clubbing.
The local newspaper at this season
