Mr. Pope had his machine at work and on exhibition here last Monday, and the novelty of the thing attracted qui'e a crowd to witness the working of it. The world's poet has expessed the opinion that some men are born great, some achieve greatness and some have i eloquent pulpit oratory, can attest. And his is the eloquence of simplicity. The plain directness of his Biblical expositions, couched in terms that everybody readily comprehends, goes pointedly and protrodingly to the hearts of his
