Tutt's Pills

After eating persons of a bilious habit will derive great benefit by taking one of these pills. If you have been DRINKING TOO MUCH, they will promptly relieve the nausea, SICK HEADACHE, and nervousness which follows, restore the appetite and remove gloomy feelings. Elegantly sugar coated. Take No Substitute.

In Buenos Ayres they meet strikes by declaring martial law. The workmen's federation decided to start a strike on Monday the 9th inst., and Congress announced martial law for thirty days. This is a heroic measure but it prevents the outrages usually attendant upon strikes it will be justified.

It is said that Mr. Taft made a flying trip to the Philippines. Imagine the breadth of wing, from tip to tip required for the four-hundred pound Secretary.

Miss Lizzie Hyman, of Scotland Neck, is the guest of Miss Hester Powell.

E. L. Daughtidge Elected.

The State Agricultural Society has chosen E. L. Daughtidge, of this county, president for the next year. In honoring Mr. Daughtidge, the society has done itself much credit. If all the members of this society were as good farmers and broad gauged as Mr. Daughtidge, North Carolina would soon be covered with model farms.

The News and Observer has these true words to say about his selection: "The new president, Elisha L. Daughtidge, of Edgecombe, is one of the most successful farmers in Eastern North Carolina. He has shown progress in intelligent developments of the agricultural interests of the State. He has abundant common sense, has ripe judgment, is a man of affairs, and his selection is a most happy one. He comes from a county second to none in good farmers and he belongs to the best in that or any other county. He will keep up the present high standard of excellence."

Porto Rico Has Hopes

If any change is made in the tariff during the coming session of the Fifty-ninth Congress, the Porto Ricans hope to be able to secure the imposition of a duty on coffee, so that the product of their island will be favored in the best market for coffee which the world affords—the United States. Time and time again this suggestion has been made, the Porto Rican authorities urging that their industry should be given protection under the tariff so that it will not have to compete on a free-trade basis with the product of other large coffee-producing countries. From 1890 to 1904 the coffee crop of Porto Rico varied between about 12,000,000 pounds for a minimum and about 60,000,000 pounds for a maximum. The normal value of the crop ran all the way from $1,678,000 to more than $8,000,000. Exports of coffee from Porto Rico prior to our annexation of the island were heavier than they have been since, although all the government officials business as one of the most promising industries in the island. It is argued that practically all the supplies of the world impinge upon that port on coffee. That is true in Europe of Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Norway, Italy, Sweden, Portugal, Russia, Switzerland, Spain, and the United Kingdom, the tax running from more than 10 cents a pound down to these countries have a tax on coffee solely as a revenue measure, and it produces a substantial income. A tax on coffee in the United States would bring in a large amount of money, and, as we have said in the past, if there was a reduction in some of the highly protective schedules in the Dingley bill it would be no hardship to have any deficiency in the revenue that was thus caused made up, at least in part, by a tax on the great American beverage—a tax that would advance the cost of coffee to the consumer—but the great bulk of that advance would find its way into the coffers of the government and not into the pockets of those engaged in protected industries.—Boston Herald.

Fall of Trade Menus

are these lines from J. H. Simmons, of Casey, Ia. Think what might have resulted from his trip, had he not taken the medicine about which he writes: "I had a fearful cough, that disturbed my night's rest. I tried everything, but nothing would relieve it, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which completely cured me." Instantly relieves and permanently cures all throat and lung diseases; prevents grip and pneumonia. At Station & Zoeller's the druggists, guaranteed; 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A Government clerk in Panama has written that he would as soon live where he is as in Chicago. Nobody is surprised at this, but some men are very fond of extremes.

The United States pay the railroads $10,000,000 a year to carry their mail, merely transport mind you. Uncle Sam pays for the handling. Does not this sum strike you as excessive? A Government clerk in Panama has written that he would as soon live where he is as in Chicago. Nobody is surprised at this, but some men are very fond of extremes.

The promise of such men as Folk, La Follette, Jerome, Weaver, and Roosevelt and all that they represent is proof sufficient that the public conscience has been aroused. If it can only be kept awake long enough we may hope for better men and better things for the Republic.

A Small Fire.

About 1 o'clock Friday afternoon fire was discovered in 119 West Granville street next to Burnett's stables, occupied by some colored people.

The fire from unknown cause caught in the attic, filling the upper portion of the wooden structure with smoke.

Owing to the prompt action of two colored men, Jim Jones and Charley Cobb, the fire was extinguished by the time the fire companies arrived at the scene, and their arrival was very prompt.

These two men went into the attic, where but for a window about two feet square, they would have suffocated, and threw water, which was brought in buckets, until the last spark was out.

The damage done is trifling.

New Cure for Cancer

All surface cancers are now known to be curable, by Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Jas. Walters, of Danville, Va., writes: "I had a cancer on my lip for years, that seemed incurable, till Bucklen's Arnica Salve healed it, and now it is perfectly well." Guaranteed cure for cuts and burns. 25c at Station & Zoeller's drug store.

"Rowdy" and "Collegian" are fast becoming synonymous names. It required fifteen policemen to quell an outbreak of Yale students last week and they terrorized the town for two hours, capturing trolley cars and driving women into hysterics.

Prof. Brewer of the Sheffield Scientific School says, "If I were in the habit of kissing I should keep right on." Science endorses kissing and those who feared a kissing famine will draw a sigh of relief. The country and the city may feel assured that the lovely art will get into noxious or even distasteful habits. However, while this term theory is in the air we would advise temperance in kissing, especially with consumptive people and suggest the check and hand as possibly less destructive of peace and health than the lip.

"In time of peace be prepared for a fight," is evidently the policy of the nations of the world. Our country is not lacking in preparation. Owing to our overpowering strength in this hemisphere and the fact that three thousand miles of sea are a great barrier to our coast, there is little reason why we should fear any foe. Nevertheless, we are fortifying and building great ships. Our Chief of Ordnance says that no foreign power can enter any of the twenty five ports fortified under the direction of the Edict board and upon which $80,000,000 have been spent, unless they shall enter during a fog when it will be impossible for our gunners to take accurate aim. He therefore suggests further expenditures for torpedo and submarine defense and for the perfection of a system of fire control by which one expert marksman can aim and fire all the guns of a fortress at once.

With the appointment of a new Public Printer and the result of the investigation now being made by the Kepp Commission on the Government Printing Office, it is believed that there will be greater economy in the largest printing shop in the world. The quantity of exquisitely printed rubbish that has been turned out by the Government Printing Office in Washington is astounding. It numbers tens of thousands of libraries, and garbage dust in almost as many second hand book stores through out the length and breadth of the land. Agricultural reports, Patent Office reports, and Navy reports and Treasury Reports all prepared by people who did not know what to report or how to write and it is read by nobody. It is the opinion of experts that in wholesale extravagance in public printing, the Department of Agriculture is the worst offender but many officials in other departments get up publications just to display their names on the fly leaf. Mr. Landis refers to one Chief Clerk who had the form of the fly leaf changed eight times before it suited him, and gave him what he considered his desired prominence in literature. A few years ago Congress printed the annual report of the Daughters of the American Revolution. It cost the Government a large sum. The Chief Clerk of the State Department had a pamphlet printed at Government expense with the title "The Department of State and how it is run." Mr. Landis says there is no dishonesty in the Government Printing Office, but that it is simply extravagant. This would seem to be a distinction of words without a difference of effect. Extravagance with Government funds is dishonest. It is using the Government funds which come from the people for a purpose in which the people have no interest and from which they derive no benefit of it.

The President's Visit to State.

The trip of President Roosevelt through the South is one continued ovation. He is being received as becomes the Chief Magistrate of a great republic, and to this is added a heartiness due to the President's personality.

Wherever he is to stop whether to make a speech or only to say a few words, thousands greet him enthusiastically, and applaud his clear cut utterances to the echo.

To all his speeches there is a local coloring, but subjects of national importance are discussed by him.

In this State at Raleigh it was forest reserves, and the Appalachian reserve in particular, then federal regulation of railroads.

When his trip is over we expect that from Arkansas to Virginia will come a hearty second to the impromptu motion made at lunch on given him in Richmond. "I move we adopt President Roosevelt."

The limited space of the Southerner does not permit the publication of these speeches, excellent though they really are.

It is gratifying to feel that the President is enjoying his trip. At Charlotte, his last stop in the State, he said:

"I have enjoyed more than I can say passing through the great State today. I entered your borders a pretty good American, and I leave them a better American, and I have rejoiced in the symptoms of your abounding material prosperity. I am here in to keep the reign of justice alive in this country, so that we should above all things avoid the chance or ever being divided on the lines that separate one class or occupation from another. The man who would teach other wage workers or capitalist that the other is his foe is a bad citizen and a faithless American. We can afford to divide along lines that would represent honest difference of opinion, but we cannot afford to divide on the fundamental lines of cleavage that separate good citizens from bad citizens; and we must remember that if we intend to keep this republic in its position of leadership among the nations of mankind that we can never afford to deviate from the old American doctrine of treating each man according to his worth, as a man as paying heed not to whether he is rich or poor but to whether he is a decent citizen, or if he is a decent man in his domestic life, an honest man in his business—a man who in good faith tries to do his duty by his neighbor and by the State.

"And now my fellow citizens, remember there is no patent device by which you can achieve good citizenship. There is no patent device by which you can achieve good government. The good citizen is the man who is a good father and a good husband, the man who behaves himself (applause), the man whom you can trust in a trade and whom you are glad to have as a neighbor. He is the good citizen and the man the public confides in, and who does well in the State is the man who applies in dealing with his fellows in the mass just those same qualities that make good citizenship in the individual.

"And now I have got to say good-bye. I cannot tell you how I enjoyed my trip through this State, marred though it has been by the lamentable death that rendered the Governor unable to come with me and for which I feel profound regret and sympathy with the Governor.

"And now in saying bye I want to say to you men and women that I have been immensely impressed with North Carolina—with her agriculture, with her industries, but that the crop that I like best is the crop of children; (applause), and I congratulate North Carolina. I congratulate North Carolina on the fact that, to all appearances, the children seem to be all right in quantity and in quality. (More applause.)

Here the President held up a little girl in his arms saying "Here is the best product."

It is the general impression that Sena or Forker of Ohio has abandoned his role as "defender of the administration" and will henceforth appear for his clients the railroads of corporations, the wealthiest defendants that ever came before the bar of the people in the Senate Chamber.

Good Ground for Objection.

A man from the North who recently visited Washington became possessed of a desire to visit Mount Vernon. Boarding the electric train that runs from the capital to the home of Washington, via Alexandria, the visitor had comfortably ensconced himself in one of the rear seats of a compartment when the conductor tapped him on the shoulder saying:

"Excuse me, but this compartment is for colored men."

This was the Northerner's first experience in a "Jim Crow" car.

"Why," said he, surprised, "the seats forward are all occupied."

"Can't be that sir," was the reply. "You mustn't sit here."

The Northerner smiled.

"See here conductor," said he. "I'm from the North and haven't the prejudice of you people in the South. I don't mind sitting here with a negro."

"Maybe you don't," replied the conductor, "but the nigger might object."—Harper's Weekly.

September Weather.

September as reported by Col. Zoeller, was 32 degrees warmer than the average for 27 years, the average temperature for the month being 75.6. The highest temperature during the month was 95 on 20th and the lowest 50 on 27th.

Rain during the month fell to the amount of 3 inches, which was just .68 less than the average. The weather taken all in all, was delightful, there being only 8 rainy days. Fifteen days or half the month were clear, and the sky was without a cloud, six days were partly cloudy, and only 1 day the sun did not shine upon us at all.

In the Eastern portion of the State, the rainfall was greatest, and in the West least. At Currituck Inlet, the rain fell to the amount of 9.60 inches, while at Linville not a drop fell during the month and only .04 at Lincolnton, yet Linville had 13 partly cloudy days to 17 clear days, while Lincolnton had 27 perfectly fair days, and only 3 cloudy days.

No Paupers in Japan.

With all our high wages and boasted civilization, the fact remains that you will see more wretchedly poor in any of our great cities in a day than you will see in Japan in a lifetime. In other words, you will see no destitution in Japan. Though some are very poor, yet all seem to be well fed, clothed and housed and are invariably cheerful, and what is more surprising, invariably clean. There are no paupers in Japan and, therefore, no workhouses or poorhouses, though there are many hospitals where the sick are healed gratuitously. Practically every one can earn a living. Would that we could say the same.—Fall Mall Gazette.

Machine Shops Must Fly.

Robert and Jasper Sugg will make a New Year's present to the community with the beginning of 1906, by starting up the machine shops near the A. C. L. depot.

Both of these young gentlemen are practical machinists. This coupled with business ability and excellence of character should insure for them success from the beginning.

For a long time the need of these shops has been acutely felt, so while congratulating the messrs. Sugg for their enterprise, we would also bespeak for them a generous patronage by the public.

Forestry's Practical Value.

In a readable illustrated article on the forestry service in the Outlook's September magazine number, Mr. R. L. Black points out the folly of neglecting the science of forestry. "In America the time has come for the practice of forestry. While once the butt log of virgin timber only was worth the cost of cutting, now an equal price per foot is paid for second growth. Twenty years ago black, walnut was split for fence rails in Ohio; within a few years manufacturers were sending agents among the farmers offering wire fences to replace these same rails. White pine is being shipped to Maine, the "Pine Tree State"—coals brought to wasteful Newcastle. With the growth of industries, the consumption has increased enormously. At the same time the supply is failing. Yearly the lumberman leaves vast "barrens" behind him, and yearly the fire that follows him eats up billions of feet of valuable timber. As the stumpage price—the value of stanning timber—rises, and the consumer pays proportionately, a wiser policy must obtain and the forester begin his needed work. In Europe this stage when demand far exceeded supply, and this outcome, are long since past. In America, however, forestry has but recently risen from the position of an unaccepted theory to the dignity of a profession."

Learn Your Business. If one attempted to tell some people who had succeeded in life but indifferently that the reason they did not do better was that they didn't know their business, they would be justified. But the fact remains, just the same, that a large proportion of failures in life are due to ignorance of business, each was engaged in.

Why is it that one man does better in a given line than another? The last man to say it is luck. Some believe it to be due to a superior mental equipment, but that cannot be invariably true when sometimes the failures are infinitely brighter mentally than some of the successes. Many men are well equipped mentally who take the really profitable business to use. There are a few more important than these that some men only turn to business more closely and carefully than others, and act upon what they learn.

Given two men, of equal opportunity and equal brain value, engaged in the same line of work. One is in it because he happened to land there somehow, he takes no particular interest in it beyond the fact that it gives him his living, and his ambitions scatter themselves in a vague, dreaming about falling into something that will make him quickly rich. The other is in it because he likes it, and his ambition takes the definite form of being a success in it, and doing it better than others do. He studies that business from A to Z, and after he has its rudiments learned, he studies its details one by one. Perhaps in one of these he sees a chance to specialise, and by giving to that detail his whole energy and intellect he is able to do that particular feat.

Don't Borrow Trouble

It is a bad habit to borrow anything, but the worst thing you can possibly borrow, is trouble. When sick, sore, heavy, weary and worn out by the pains and poisons of dyspepsia, biliousness, Bright's disease, and similar internal disorders, don't sit down and be lulled by Electric Litters. Here you will find sure and permanent forgetfulness of all your troubles, and your body will not be burdened by a load of debility. At Station & Zoeller's drug store. Price 50c. Guaranteed.

A Misleading Comparison.

If Edgecombe and this section of the State is a fair sample of the cotton ginners' report of the belt, the ginners' report of the cotton ginned up to Oct. 15th compared with last year will be misleading. Cotton opened so much more rapidly and earlier this year than last, that it should surprise no one if the report shows as much ginned this year as there was last year for the same time.

Yet it is indisputable that not as much has been made. Already receipts at the gineries are being made of the total for the year. With rare exceptions every ginners will show a fall off from 50 to 15 per cent.

When the ginners' report for Oct. 15th is made public, it is quite probable that the effect will be to depress prices, but we believe that this will be only temporary, and a reaction will set in as soon as the cotton world appreciates the situation and conditions. The November ginners' report, in all likelihood, will show a marked falling off from 1904. Should this decline set in, the farmers should be slow to sell, but wait for the reaction.

are of it better than anybody else has done it before him. Or, perhaps, by giving himself a deeper knowledge of all its details than others have, he becomes one of its generals, and is able to assume a position of command.

The first man fails in that business, as a matter of course. He deserves failure. He has wasted his talents and his opportunities. If that was not his business, he should have found out what was and in his chosen line have done the second man did. The second man, equally as a matter of course, has succeeded. He succeeded because he deserved to succeed and because he earned success. Luck? There was no more luck about it than there would have been had the choice between success and failure been plain before them; and one had chosen success and the other failure. That is what they chose, and that is what thousands of young men are choosing every day.

An generally the failures are expounding to their friends how only the success have been, a stroke of good luck had led to have hounded their own footsteps. Most men make their own luck.—Danah Herald.
