People who were born and bred n the country and who still live there are as a rule curiously afraid After thinking over the repubof fresh air. From the living rooms, especially the "parlor," they rigidly exclude every approach of outdoor air except at housecleaning time and they are more cautious still as to sleeping rooms. The farmers, in spite of their outdoor employment, seffer not a little from consumption. It seems a pity when these country dwellers might have their lungs filled with pure, fresh air day and night, sleeping or waking, that the poisoned air they breathe at night should be allowed to offset the zood effects obtained through the day's work in the field. If the enlightened visitors paying guests and summer boarders who have learned that one's manner of life than one's place of living may be depended upon to prevent consumption would but zirculate their knowledge in a practical way in country places their vacations would accomplish something besides a refreshing of their own health .- Boston Transcript.
