NEW ERA FOR HOOKERTON.
Citizens Honor Henry Clark Bridges Upon Completion of E. C. Railway.
April 1st, 1908, will long be remembered by the citizens of Hookerton, as it marks the beginning of a new era of industrial growth in this beautiful town, located on a bluff overlooking the Moccasin river and at the junction of the two Contentnea creeks. On the opening pages of this new epoch in the history of this town, the celebration in honor of Henry Clark Bridges, on the completion of the extension of the East Carolina Railway from Farmville to Hookerton, will stand pre-eminent. It was a gala day for the commemoration of uniting Hookerton with the outside world by rail. The weather was ideal and a crowd of more than 1,000 visitors were present to welcome the excursion train, which added 400 guests to the list.
Upon the arrival of the excursion train, R. J. Matlock, principal of the graded school, delivered the address of welcome. He stated: "That for the last hundred years, transportation has been the means of industrial growth to every town and section. We are a member of one brotherhood. What injures one, injures all. What is good for one, is good for all. We know the benefits of a railroad, and after waiting many years for the completion of this, our first road, we extend to you a most hearty welcome upon this occasion."
In reply, J. Paul Frizzle, of Snow Hill, said: "I wish to thank you for the privilege of addressing this crowd upon such an occasion. The dream and hope of our many years, has at last resolved into deeds. Although we may have many unpleasant memories of this arduous undertaking, we certainly are amply repaid today, when we are able to compete with our sister towns upon an equal footing. For 30 years, we have been fighting a losing contest with our neighboring towns, notwithstanding your courage and heroism, transportation facilities have been against you. You have suffered a terrible drain upon your citizenship. Young men have gone to other towns, which had the necessary transportation facilities and have become identified with the leading business and industrial firms in Greene county. A new era has dawned. Our industrial enterprises will rapidly multiply, we will have better farming facilities, better stores and more thrifty churches. Many of our young men will return to their native heath and soil. The splendid town will respond to the call and all the citizens will pull together for the upbuilding and industrial growth of their native place. The river, which flowed unused to the sea, will now be harnessed. This is an auspicious day for Hookerton and the county at large, and is the beginning of a marvelous development."
Henry Clark Bridges was then called upon for an address, and said: "I am a man of action, and my work is for itself." He was heartily applauded.
In the afternoon, Rev. E. B. King, of Winterville, delivered an address on Prohibition. He stated that the citizens of North Carolina would have an opportunity on the 26th of May to go to the polls and register a vote against the terrible liquor traffic, an opportunity not often offered to the citizens of any State. It is not only an opportunity but a duty. All the poverty, crime and shame of our country is due to whiskey. It is the ruin of the home, community, State and church. If you go north, east, south or west, the people will say you come from a poor State, but one noted for its religious principles. Are you going to uphold these principles? Last year $20,000,000 of whiskey went down the throats of the people of North Carolina, to the detriment of its drinkers. Is it now time we arose in our might to wipe this disgrace off our map? Whether it is sold from a dispensary, blind tiger or saloon, it is the same evil. The only method to curtail this rapidly increasing traffic, is by prohibition. We should pride our selves on the educational, moral and religious standards of our State, but we will be unable to maintain this standard with the devil tempting us on all sides through the evils of whiskey. Now citizens, take advantage of this opportunity and do your duty. I speak to you not as a political aspirant, but as a fellow citizen. Do not fail to do your duty on May 26th.

The East Carolina Railway, the extension of which was recently completed from Farmville to Hookerton, passes through one of the most fertile farming sections of the State. The industrial growth of the towns along this road has been wonderful. The new station of BeNUM is located where marl was first discovered to be valuable as a fertilizer. Maury, the other new station between Farmville and Hookerton is surrounded by

IMPROVED JOB OFFICE.
C. F. Clayton, for some time, has been making improvement at after improvement to his job office. The latest is gasolene power to run all his presses. There are five offices of its size better equipped and not one turns out better work.

SYRIANS SECURE LICENSE.
Two Syrians, who undoubtedly have been peddling goods in Edgecombe county for some time, were compelled to secure license Wednesday by Chief of Police E. B. Pulley. Although there is no doubt that these men have been doing business without a license, absolute proof could not be obtained.

FOR MAYOR.
EDITOR SOUTHERNER:
We wish to suggest the name of Capt. Paul Jones as a candidate for the office of mayor. Capt. Jones has always taken an active interest in the Edgecombe Guards, the Tarboro fire department, and every project pertaining to the upbuilding of Tarboro.

PLENTY OF TROUBLE
is caused by stagnation of the liver and bowels. To get rid of it and headache and biliousness and the poison that brings jaundice, take Dr. King's New Life Pills, the reliable purifier that do the work without grinding or griping. 25c at all druggists.

CANT LIMIT QUANTITY.
In the case of State Chemist Williams from Burke county to the Supreme court holds, that the statute making it a misdemeanor for any one to bring into that county one half of a gallon of whiskey or brandy is unconstitutional. Chief Justice Clark filed a dissenting opinion and Justice Hoke concurred with him.

EDGECOMBE INSURANCE CO.
The stockholders of the Edgecombe Insurance Co., held their annual meeting here today. The report of the secretary showed that at present there was $345,000 of insurance in force in this county which is a small decrease over last year. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. R. H. Speight; Vice-president, J. A. Davis; Secretary and treasurer, R. G. Hart.

POSTOFFICE RECEIPTS INCREASING.
The postoffice receipts for Tarboro for the fiscal year ending March 31st, amounted to more than $9,000 a marked increase over the previous year. The receipts for Rocky Mount for the same period amounted to $17,000 an increase of $2,500 over the previous year.
* These are remarkable records, considering that six months of the fiscal year, business was unusually dull owing to the panic.

HE GOT WHAT HE NEEDED.
"Nine years ago it looked as if my time had come," says Mr. G. Farthing, of Mill Creek, Ind. Ter. "I was run down that life hung on a very slender thread. It was then my druggist recommended Electric Bitters. I bought a bottle and I got what I needed, strength. I had one foot in the grave, but the Electric Bitters put it back on the turf again, and I've been well ever since." Sold under guarantee by all druggists. 50c.

SHIPPED 433 CARS OF FERTILIZER.
The Royster Guano Co., shipped four hundred and thirty-three cars of fertilizer from this point during the month of March. For the same month last year three hundred and twenty-three cars were shipped from Tarboro.
The number of cars handled by the Atlantic Coast Line at this place, during the month of March, greatly exceeded the number handled during the same month the previous year. This is due to the fact that cars are not so heavily loaded this season as in 1907.

ROCKY MOUNT GROWING.
When Rocky Mount offered her bonds for sale the statement that the place was a city of 7,000 was questioned. The authorities in stead of rebutting the intimations with hot air assertions ordered a census taken. This has just been done with the result that the enrolled citizenry is over 7,800.
The financial stringency and the cutting down of the number of employees on the trains, in the yards and in the shops has probably lost Rocky Mount more than 300 citizens. In other words, had the conditions that prevailed a year ago continued, Rocky Mount would today have a population within its corporate limits of 11,000.

A BUSINESS REGULATION.
President Finley of the Southern Railway, replying to Governor Glenn's protest against the new regulation requiring mileage tickets to be exchanged for tickets at railway stations, says the regulation is proper and will stand, but that if after trial it is found troublesome he will gladly take up the question with patrons. Mr. Finley says that a railroad conductor taking up the mileage out of a book sold by another road has nothing to show for it save this strip, which if lost the railroad loses all chance for pay.
Governor Glenn replied to this letter, again asking Finley to revoke the order, saying he knows it will cause very bitter feeling against railways.

EXECUTIVE ENCROACHMENTS.
Senator Bacon has called the attention of the Senate to the evident intention of President Roosevelt to dictate legislation. He told of the reported conference at the White House of republican leaders and railroad men to consider legislation amending the anti-trust law by permitting railroads to pool and corporations to combine and exempting labor organizations from the operations of the Sherman anti-trust law.
"As I have not seen this statement disputed," continued Mr. Bacon. "I have no doubt that the President has decided for you that you shall not adjourn this Congress until you have passed the measure he has mapped out for you."
Senator Bacon did not appear to disapprove of legislation proposed by the White House Conference, but thinks that Executive encroachment upon the power of the legislative branch of the government should be limited to recommendations as provided in the constitution. As no republican Senator defended these White House conferences the inference is held all agreed with Senator Bacon. Senator Tillman joined in the debate by inquiring:
"Doesn't the Senator think the conference at the White House, at which the captains of industry were invited to be present, was intended to line these captains up for the renomination of the President or his pet candidate, in view of the approach of the Chicago convention?"
"I have no right to express an opinion."
The feeling in the House of Representatives of the republican leaders is said to be similar about Executive dictation, as in the Senate, but no one yet has the pluck to express his opinion.

DEATH WAS ON HIS HEELS.
Jesse P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the Spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declared 'consumption' had me, and death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles, I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee by all druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

some of the finest farms in the State.
The residents of Hookerton vied with the surrounding towns in greeting the guests upon this occasion. A barbecue dinner was served on a table three hundred and thirty three feet in length.
This celebration showed conclusively in what high esteem the citizens of this section regard Henry Clark Bridges, and the wonderful progress he is making in the development of this section of the State.

DIED.
At the ripe age of 78, Ethelred M. Bryan, of Lawrence, was joined to his fathers Friday evening. Thursday he was stricken with paralysis and became unconscious, in which condition he remained until the end. A man with kindler instincts than Dred Bryan never lived. The hardest trial he ever endured was refusing aid because of his inability to grant it. He was buried this afternoon at the old family homestead, opposite the Strabane farm.

MIGNONETTE DRIVES AWAY FLIES.
Mignonette, it has been discovered, is abhorred of flies, and in a room where pots of the flower are set no fly will linger for a moment. Now is the time to sow the seeds and for early blooming the pots must be subjected to gentle heat. Instead of hypaners and horrible sticky brown mixtures left about a room in glass dishes, what a blessed resource as a deterrent to the irritating fly is the sweet, wholesome flower of mignonette!—Gentlewoman.

THE TWO SIDES OF LOVE.
"You're young, an' I reckon you've got the idea that true love is all butter an' sugar an' summer weather. Ef you have, you may as well wake up 'n' look around you. Love, like the moon, is first one thing an' then another. You never ketch it right whar it lives at, an' no two pictur's on it look alike. That's a place in it for passies an' buttercup's an' all the other little flowers that fit through your dreams. In fact, love is sech a big thing that thar's room in it for a good deal of 'ashin' an' scrubbin' an' cookin'." It's like a big house on a hill; you kin see what's on the outside, but you never could guess what's on the inside. Love is like a country hotel; it's got to have chambers for a good many strange guests, an' it's got to git use 'n' em, no matter what time of night or day they come an' go. An' thar's got to be a work room an' a play room, an' a room for to cry in, an' a room for to be happy in. It's just like I tell you; love is a lots bigger than young people think it is. You fellers show the syllabub side all right, but you oughter fix it so the youngsters could git a glimpse of the real thing. You may think that this would drive 'em off from one another, but don't you believe it. They've got sense enough for to know that ef it was all sugar an' sweet things, it'd soon turn their stomachs, but it's a fact that they have got the idea that love is somethin' different from what old folks know it to be. Maybe they'll find it out soon enough for themselves, but I've seen 'ases whar a timely word would 'a' hold things powerful."—Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine for April.

A BLOW TO CALHOUNISM.
The Supreme court has made shreds of the whole Calhounite argument. It says that the Constitution empowers the Federal courts to assume jurisdiction in any case in which complaint is made that a State seeks to infringe on personal or property rights "without due process of law." The Federal courts can suspend State laws, enjoin State officials, and nullify any State proceedings whatever which defy any complainant of a full and fair hearing in an equity court or tend to abridge his recognized personal and property rights. The Federal tribunals, in short, are open to the fullest extent to any one who feels that the State is dealing with him harshly or unfairly, and Federal justice stands ever ready to repair the defects and shortcomings of State justice. This view completely traverses the old theory of the State's more or less complete sovereignty in legal administration. Yet there is no getting away from the logic of the situation. The fourteenth amendment, as now universally construed by the Federal courts, contains the most radically Federalistic grant in the whole Constitution. If the Federal courts can upset any State legislation when it deprives a citizen of personal and property rights "without due process of law," and can themselves define what "due process of law" means, their verdicts are the only ones which will hold in crucial cases affecting great property interests. Calhounism with its dream of fortysix sovereign States and fortysix different legal jurisdictions, has passed into "innocuous desuetude." As the Federal legislative power has been enlarged to control agencies which had outgrown State restraint, so the Federal judicial power is being enlarged to insure universal protection and justice.—New York Tribune

BOMB SENATOR SENTENCED.
Hardin Germany, twenty-one years was sentenced by Judge Webb in Guilford county Superior court Friday to serve years in the penitentiary for sending an "infernal machine" to Caesar Cone, a wealthy manufacturer, of Greensboro on March 26th last. Germany was convicted of "secret assault with intent to kill."
This is said to be the first case of the kind in the history of North Carolina courts.

WAY TO DETECT SMOKELESS POWDER.
German military authorities are experimenting with a device by which the location of troops using smokeless powder may be easily discovered. By this device it is proposed to survey the landscape through pale red glasses.
The flash of smokeless powder appears strong in red light, while ordinary objects are dimmed. By furnishing field glasses with the device in question, which is provided with screens of the proper tint, the position of concealed marksmen can be detected. Washington Herald.

THE TRAVELS OF A FLOUR BARREL.
"The Flour Barrel," by Herbert Vanderhof, which is announced for the May number of the Metropolitan Magazine, is said by those who have read the proofs to be one of the most remarkable industrial articles of recent years. It describes the Peace River country, where wheat is grown and flour made, four hundred miles south of the Arctic Circle, and shows how every inch of this great land, once considered barren and worthless, is being made to blossom for the benefit and profit of mankind. Washington Herald.

COTTON NOTES.
The world's supply of cotton to April 2nd was 4,294,000 bales against 5,315,000 last year. This supply if the mills were running on full time, would barely meet demand, but so many mills are shut down or running on short time that the decreased consumption offsets the small crop.
There is one hope only of better prices for a short time. A number of New England mills have closed for a definite time. If these start up on full time they may create such a demand for the raw cotton as to advance prices, but this probably will be only temporary unless conditions point to a short crop next fall.

TELLING AGE BY COLORS.
There is a candor about Japanese women to which few Englishwomen would have courage to aspire, and such a custom as that of a girl representing in fact a "walking census" by limiting herself to a particular range of colors according to her age would be considered a preposterous idea in this country. And yet such is said to be the fashion in Japan, a girl's attire merging like the colors, in a prism from one shade to the other as the years speed on.
Midway between the early twenties and the next decade purple, chestnut, pink, where the kimono is concerned, are made to take the place of the pale shades of silver gray or blue ciel which up till then have represented her color card. White, in addition, is relinquished practically at 25, a ruling which would seem arbitrary in England in these days when white toilettes are regarded as almost grandmotherly.
When in her twenty seventh year, a Japanese woman acquires a new dignity when she takes her first step into the important realm of striped fabrics, which give such an added status to their wearer. As the years go on the wide stripes which proclaimed her initial plunge into a different category to that of her younger friends and companions narrow with each succeeding year, until the finest hair line annunces with almost offensive honesty that she has reached the age of thirty.
Pale mauve shades, as well as cinnamon and blue, are her choices as regards color until she is five years older, when without sign or prof she leaves all bright tones to her younger sisters, and is seen thenceforward in the dull, drab tints, of brown and dark gray, until her striped kimono is changed for a checked brown or gray as fortive. This change finally a few years later for black or very dull gray, in which sober garb a Japanese woman continues until the end of her life.—London Standard.

Mrs. N. Constantine has returned from a visit to her mother in Norfolk.
