CAST BREAD UPON WATERS.
Former Assistant Doorkeeper of Senate Relates A Sermon.

When the boarders at a certain establishment in this city were gathered at the dinner table last Sunday the subjects of the sermons that the churchgoers of the house had listened to during the forenoon and the texts upon which the various discourses had been based.

This led to a general talk upon texts the boarders had remembered in their times.

An old gentleman, who in his young days had been one of the assistant doorkeepers of the United States Senate, remarked that while he had never heard a sermon preached from the text, "Cast your bread upon the waters, for ye shall find it after many days," he was, he said, a passage of the Scriptures that owing to certain circumstances had always impressed him with much favor, and he related an incident of some-bellum days in his youth thereof.

"It was in the year 1858, and I was at my post, which was on the Senate floor of the Capitol, when I was approached by a very old man. He told me that he was over 80 years of age, and he certainly did look worn and weary. I got up from my chair and invited him to take my seat.

"He was here as he told me on business of great importance to himself and his consumption would benefit him greatly, but he could find none of the kind in the city. He was discouraged. The old man said he was from New England and he thought if he could get a few minutes talk with a congressman from that section he could have his affairs adjusted.

"Just then," said the former deputy doorkeeper, "Senator Hale came out of the Senate and passed across the hall into the office of the secretary of the Senate. 'Who is that gentleman?' the old man said to me, and I told him that it was Senator Hale, of Maine. 'Oh,' he said, 'if I could only talk with him a few minutes, I know I could interest him in my affairs.'

"Now, I had a friendly acquaintance with Mr. Hale, and I told the old gentleman I thought I could get him an interview, at which he seemed anxious about to collapse with mingled joy and trepidation.

"So when the Senator came back from the secretary's office, I said to him, 'that old gentleman in my chair was in some trouble and begged to have a short talk with him. Mr. Hale willingly listened to him, and to my surprise, led the old fellow to the marble room and I saw no more of either of them that day.

"Next day, however, the old man came to me at my door and overwhelmed me with thanks. He said that he said that the senator listened patiently to him and even went to the trouble of going to the department in which his case had been pigeon-holed and secured an adjournment without any delay. He told me he could not think of going home without calling on me and letting me know how much he appreciated the little part I had taken in the matter had brought him, and tears of gladness were in his old eyes while he talked to me.

"That's all interesting enough," said the young boarder who never goes to church, "but where does the cast bread upon the waters play a part in our yarn?"

"The former doorkeeper smiled. 'It has returned to me never and over again,' he said. 'It comes to me in the old knowledge that I once made an aged man very happy and the memory of it never lingers with me.'

Not This Year.

The Southerner, some months ago, stated that certain enterprises would be started here this year. One of them, it was stated that the nature and projects could not be stated. That particular enterprise will not be started this year.

We are not sure that we can state the nature of the project even now. The confidence reposed, still we presume, is existing.

It would have meant very much to both town and county and next year, the same may be ventured by persons who were not interested.

However, with the enterprises inaugurated this year, the people of the town should feel encouraged and get themselves together for a further industrial uplift.

Tarboro does not need of capital to develop, we have it right here, if those who have it will only invest.

If ever the Congress passes an income tax law and it stands before the courts, such investments will be so much more profitable than tax-dodging now and income tax-paying then, that the rose will be a poor blossom compared to this community.

In the meantime, it is much better to get together and build up the town. The people in other towns are doing so, why not we?

Three industrial plants have been organized and put in operation this year, but why not more?

Did anybody notice?

On Monday in the heat,
That summer, sunny Summer,
Had got here with both feet?

Did anybody notice
That it was scorching hot
For something that had happened—
Or just as likely not?

What ever got its mad up?
Has anybody done
A thing to this new Summer
To call for such a sun?

Have we not kept all season,
Beginning with the Spring,
And anxious to remain so,
As cool as anything?

We certainly are blameless,
And thus far we have not
Discovered why the Summer
Should get so ugly hot?

As to its first appearance!
Well, all we've got to say
Is, if I don't like us,
Why don't I stay away?

CATCH OF 600 WHALES.

Norwegians Making a Good Thing in the Antarctic.

Six hundred whales have been taken in the Antarctic by the Norwegian whalers who went to South Georgia, taking three steamers, the Edda, Samson and Hercules, together with a floating station. The catch was made in four months. The shore whaling station has taken home 14,000 barrels of oil, valued at $220,000. Each of the steam whalers was of 50 tons register and carried ten men, and there was a crew of fifty on the shore whaler.

The island of South Georgia, where the Norwegian whalers work, is 50 miles east-southeast of the Falkland Islands. It is a British colony about 1,000 square miles in size, governed by Capt. C. A. Larson, a whaler, who was in command of Dr. Otto Nordenkjold's exploring ship Antarctic, in addition to the floating whaling station which went from Norway there to a land depot on South Georgia, and the colony, comprising sixty men ashore and forty men afloat, means a fleet of three whaling steamers.

"There is only one woman on the island, the wife of Captain Larson's broker, with the exception of a few weeks in each year, when the captain's wife goes there to pay a visit. Mrs. Larsen has in the house a piano, an organ, and a gramophone, besides books and plenty of fancy work. A majority of the men on the island and steamers are related in some way in addition to his monthly wages every man receives a bonus of half a cent on every cask of oil.

In those waters there are narwhals or unicorn whales, right whale and humpbacks, and recently one blue whale was taken that measured 90 feet. The oil is sent to Buenos Ayres, whence it is transported to Europe and to some extent to New Bedford. The plant of South Georgia has been established three years. It turns out 200 barrels a day. Whales come from the right whale brings about $750 a ton and from the narwhal $250. The product of oil for this year will be 20,000 barrels.

These are the rarest. There are so many narwhals and humpbacks that only one steamer is sent after them, while the two others go to the north end to shoot right whales for whalebone. No steamer is allowed to bring in more than six whales at once.

The Norwegians talked of annexing South Georgia, but this made the Argentinians jealous, and Great Britain set the first year by sending a warship the first year and planting the British flag. The British government made Captain Larsen resilient against war with strict orders not to allow the seals, sea lions, sea leopards, sea elephants or other animals to be killed until a seal may be killed only for food.

The mean temperature of South Georgia is about 34 degrees and on the whole island there is not enough grass to cover the deck of a vessel. The wind blows at the rate of 70 miles an hour—Victoria, B. C. Dispatch to New York Sun.

Stupendous Cost of Little Pest.

In the State of Texas alone prairie dogs eat enough grass annually to support 1,562,500 cows. Utterly useless, the little animal is a pest so dreaded that the forestry service has undertaken his extermination. Poison is killing him wherever he now abounds, and another recourse of the farmer is safeguarding. Who would think that the little pest, the shy and amusing little rodent that we like to watch before the door of his burrow at the "noon" would ever become the subject of the government intervention on endanger the success of stock raising. Yet such is the fact. Out on the national forests which Uncle Sam is guarding for the use of public expert hunters have gone after the prairie dog with zeal, ingenuity and poison, and literally exterminated the pest.

HOW BIG IS THE UNIVERSE?

Leaned Men Have Made Three Answers to Perplexing Question.

If one could start away from the earth and travel steadily in a straight line, what would he find? The answers have been made to this question. According to the first, the traveler might go on forever and always find stars, although he might cross great void spaces between systems. According to the second, he might keep on forever, but he would finally pass the outer limit of the material universe and then he would never meet no more stars.

According to the third, if he traveled on forever, no matter in how perfect a straight line, he would keep coming back to the point of starting. The first answer supposes an infinite universe in infinite space; the second supposes a limited universe but infinite space; the third means that space itself is limited. This last answer, which is given by persons who cannot admit the possibility of infinity, has no evidence for or against it. It is the result of pure speculation.

It is possible however to argue about the other two. Those who believe in a limited universe, as probably most astronomers do, say that otherwise the sky would be one uniform blaze of light, for an infinite number of stars would send us an infinite number of light waves.

The matter how distant they might be, this assumes that there is no general absorbing medium in space.

A recent contributor to an astronomical magazine, W. H. S. Monck, believes it is more logical to suppose that much light would be absorbed in the first place. He says, the stars would ultimately be in one another's way. Then we know that there are many dark celestial bodies, like our own moon, for instance, which would cast shadows, and lastly, the ether, it may absorb radiations. He pronounces in favor of infinite universes, which many students of the subject seem so anxious to avoid.

Married.

Wednesday, June 30th, Miss Sallie Barlow and Paul Bernhardt, of Salisbury, Rev. Bertrand E. Brown, in Salisbury church.

The above chronicles the event, which was accentuated by some little ceremony that Wm. Speight, Mabrey W. D. Bryan, Spencer Hart and Elsie Howell as ushers, displayed in their Chesterfield manner in seeing the large audience, while Mrs. R. W. Alexander filled the handsome temple to God with appropriate music.

While these sweet strains of harmony were being evoked, the bride and groom entered. The bride came in the arm of her father, W. L. Barlow. Charming as she never looked better, nor half so winsome. She wore a gown creation of white satin and had in her hand a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Preceding her, was her little sister, Annie Lewis, with more flowers, but the queen of the roses and the princess of lilies was the bonnie bride. She was followed by the Dame of Honor, her sister, Mrs. W. D. Bryan in blue messaline, with a bouquet of white roses; and then her maid of honor, her cousin, Miss Josephine Speight, with a brother of the groom, Clarence Bernhardt.

From the vestry room at the chancel they were met by the groom and his best man, Paul Palmer.

The groom is one of the foremost men in Salisbury, esteemed, respected and honored. The bride—well, she is the one of the prettiest that we have, delightful, charming and altogether agreeable. One of our sweetest and best.

Prior to the nuptials a luncheon was served at the home of the bride where the gracious hospitality of the groom and his charming wife was never more in evidence. After the ceremony, the bridal party were entertained by Mrs. W. A. Hart. A more gracious hostess never welcomed a guest nor had such meaning to her words of cordial greeting.

The 7.30 train took away one of the most winsome girls of the county. Blessed be the tie that she assumed.

May or June Weather.

June was probably the wettest June since 1867 if it did not surpass that very year.

Some farmers are comparing this year with 1889 when our record short crop was made.

There is not so much similarity. In that year 8.30 inches of rain fell in 8 days in May and only 3.87 inches in June in 11 days. The May rains this year amounted to 3.70 in 8 days; June 9.2 in 14 days. The normal for May is 5.58, for June, 4.50.

In 1889 the heavy rains of July, August and September wrought the greatest damage to crops. Last year the rainfall for both May, 4.31 and June 3.27 was below the averages.

The crops are not yet ruined by "a large majority." With favorable weather for the next 90 days, an average crop will be made.

ADVANCE GUARD OF ISLAM.

Englishmen Said to Be Becoming Converts to Moslem.

It suggests some curious possibilities to endeavor to realize what would be the opinion of Christ if He should appear in Europe or America as he was when He preached His gospel to the people of Judea. Nothing less than the splendor and state of a king of kings, with a vast and brilliant following, would satisfy the requirements of the average christian. Nevertheless, it is claimed that in India many Englishmen of education and position have become Moslems.

The following expression is charged to the Mosulmans, a religious paper published in India, and devoted to propagating the doctrines of the "Propheet."

"The great number of conversions from among Europeans which have lately taken place convince the Moslems of the movement that the Moslem is at hand when Islam, in accordance with the law of its development, will number another great community in the millions of divers races which are gathered under its standard. Not many years will pass before a community of Angreiss, or English Moslems, will arise to join the Turk, Pathan and Mongol. They will remain what they have always been—Englishmen, but they will be second to none in single-heartedness and devotion to the cause of the One True God and the last of His prophets. Among the many different battalions which go to form the army of God, they may be destined to form the advance guard of Islam and of Ahmad."

It seems impossible that in this material and wealth-worshipping age there could be great religious wars carried on for the purpose of propagating some faith and doctrines but if such a thing could occur, it would only be the followers of the "Camel Driver of Mecca" that could do it.

SAPPING PURE FOOD LAW.

Public Will Return to Legalized Fraud.

Loading food concerns which have been large users of preservatives are said to be back of an attempt to Green-horn the pure food law through a suit in the District of Columbia courts.

No doubt the pure food law has interfered with the freedom of concerns that formerly found it profitable to sell adulterated and fraudulent food products. It has raised a bar various mild forms of poisoning, it has made it expedient for manufacturers to practice honesty and straight dealing and to that extent has served as a safeguard to consumers' pockets and health.

Moral considerations ought to be sufficient to persuade any legitimate manufacturer of food articles that the old fraudulent system was dead. It put a premium on crookedness of which honest dealers, especially of the public were bound to be the sufferers. But, if only for business reasons, leading food concerns should desire to see the pure food law upheld in all its vigor. It has taught people to have confidence in the purity of what they offer for sale and its nullification would be at their expense.

The announcement by the courts that the beef trust was permitted to use boric acid and other chemical preservatives in its meats and food preparations would immediately mean an immense loss of trade. The public has had its eyes opened to abuses of which it was ignorant a few years ago. It would resent a return to legalized fraud and deception in the shop and on the table and would demand forms of restriction more severe than any now in force. The public can be careless of its health, but it is not easily reconciled to being cheated.

In The Superior Court,
Joe Cherry and wife, George Cherry; A. R. Savage and wife, Bertha Savage; A. L. Savage and wife, Annie White; W. A. Savage and wife, Gattie Savage; Lillian P. Savage and wife, Ophelia Savage, vs. S. B. Savage and wife, Lucy Savage; and Austin Savage.

You will take notice that an action entitled as above has been commenced in the Superior Court of Edgecombe County to make partition of the lands of the late W. R. Savage, lying in No. 3 Township, said County and State, among his heirs at law; and the said defendants will further take notice that they are required to appear at the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court for the County of Edgecombe on the 26th day of July, 1909, and answer or demur to the petition of the plaintiffs in said action, or the Court for the relief demanded in said petition.

This June 19th, 1909.

A. T. WALSTON,
C. S. C.

Life 100,000 Years Ago.

Scientists have found in a cave in Switzerland bones of men, who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger from wild beasts. Today the danger, as shown by A. W. Brown, of Alexandria, Me., is largely from deadly diseases, "if I had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me, I could not have lived," he writes, "suffering as I did from a severe lung trouble and stubborn cough." To Cure Sore Throats, obstinate Coughs and prevent pneumonia, its best medicine on earth, 50c. and $1.00. Guaranteed by W. H. Macnair.

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared I had. They said that if I followed a friend's advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it has made me a strong and well woman, and I shall recommend it as long as I live.—Mrs. MAY FAY, Lindley, Ind.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's bread enemy—tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

FOR SALE.
I HAVE FOR SALE TWO HUNDRED bushels of red ripper field peas, also nice lot of hay and fodder. Those that are in need of such can secure it by calling on or writing, J. C. R. Davenport, Speed, N. C. 24-66.

TWO FARMS FOR SALE.—I offer for sale my two farms, The Killbuck place 225 acres and Tarboro place adjoining corporate limits of town, 22 acres. Terms to suit purchaser. J. D. Brown, 7744w.
