LIKES FRANKNESS.

An Adherence to Principle is the Making of All.

The Southerner reproducing the following extracts from a private letter one not written for publication; but it says so many nice things about the Southerner that we publish it, hoping that the rare good sense contained therein will be the excuse for so doing.

102 W. 136 Street, New York
July 10, 1910.

Mr. Frank Powell,
Tarboro N. C.

Dear Sir: I am reading your paper with increasing interest every day and I am writing this to let you know how much I appreciate your editorial of July 6. I feel more like saying one paper now. I have shown the editorial to several persons and it was very gratifying to all.

I showed it to one of the editors of "The Literary Digest" and he said that he would have been pleased to use a line or two from it in next week's issue of that paper but I was too late in bringing it to him yesterday as he had already prepared his article.

I had a heated argument this morning about what constitutes a principle, brought on by my speaking against the desecration of Sunday.

Besides the fact that I won and it turned out that the young man did not desecrate the day as he had planned and made arrangements to do, the most important thing in the discussion was the thought which came to me that the only way a person race or nation can rise and accomplish things beneficial and imperishable is to think, speak and act uncompromisingly upon principle.

Such expression as your editorial of the 6th inst and other similar broad-minded things you have said and done will amount to incalculable good in establishing confidence rather than distrust in the dealings between your people and my race.

Even through such expressions better appreciate the value of principles from the white man's viewpoint.

Life means more and more to me because the more I learn and the older I grow the heavier does the responsibility of my brother's welfare seem to weigh upon me. And something tells me too, that the more his responsibility is felt and fulfilled by all, the longer will we have peace. It is pleasing to think of the peace which prevails in Tarboro.

Heaven grant that it will ever thus exist! Your editorials show that you feel your responsibility. Long live "The Tarboro Southerner," may it even continue to teach the right idea of liberty!

Cordially yours,
WM. AUGUSTINE PERRY,

Prof. Perry is now taking a special course in carpentry. All who attended the Princetown school closing know about the debt work in back-sawed waste basket, made of Princetown pine, which is in the town.

So successful was Prof. Perry in ornate basket work that he has determined to still further instruct his pupils, especially the boys hence he is studying carpentry.

He is doing more than this. A graduate of Yale he wishes not the "flesh pots of Egypt" but the betterment of his race where his father has cast his lot. He has done so with compensation far less than he could have had for the asking elsewhere.

He is a true Missionary and what a Missionary should be like—Charity beginning at home.

Let no mistake be made the white man cannot live himself without an equal of the colored race. Prof. Perry is trying to learn the boys of his race skilled hands so that they will be useful at the start.

He would teach them agriculture and horticulture if he had the ground.

THE MERASSIM KIOSK.

It is One of The Many Palaces in Yildiz.

The Merasim Kiosk, one of the many palaces of Yildiz Kiosk, is prepared as lodging for King Ferdinand of Bulgaria and King Peter of Serbia successively during their visit to Constantinople.

Yildiz is not a palace in our style, but like the palaces of Persia and China is really a small town, which includes several palaces a number of large and small residences, a village of stables a theatre; a museum; numerous workshops and offices of all kinds. It is so spacious that it is said to be equal to a village containing within a gigantic wall, which was built by the Sultan Hamid strictly for defense and protection and looked very formidable when viewed from a vessel on the Bosphorus.

The actual palace which was usually occupied by Abdul Hamid is now a public show place, and for a small payment the public can see the dining room where he used to entertain the Foreign Ambassadors and the council chamber where he received his Ministers. The other palaces however, are not exhibited and it is one of those which is to be the guesthouse. Yildiz is about three miles from Pera, the Christian quarter of Constantinople, where the foreign embassies and legations are.

SIZE OF LAWYER'S FEES.

Legal Charges Have Kept Pace With Cost of Living.

According to the news reports, the amount of the lawyers fees in the long will contest over the Russell estate in Boston has reduced its value from $750,000 to $100,000 and in Camden N. J. Chancellor Piley in chambers, rebuked a firm for charging a total fee of $75,000 in a case involving $40,000 with interest.

In the old frugal days great lawyers were more modest. Rufus Choate was accustomed to taking cases for a fee of $50 and Aaron Burr a most successful practitioner, did not come to his fortune because he asked less.

Whether in the greatest period of his career never earned more than $20,000 a year. Abraham Lincoln amassed $5,000 in money and a small cottage in Springfield, Ill. before he became President, hoping to increase it to $20,000 and that, he said, is as much as any man ought to want.

The cost of living to lawyers has advanced since then. Still we are not at all sure that the two cases of relatively high legal fees recorded above are typical of modern practice.

Mr. William D. Guthrie is said to have received upward of $1,000,000 for winning the Plant will case and $300,000 in the proceedings to test the constitutionality of the income tax. Elshin Root gave up a lucrative practice to accept $300,000 in President Roosevelt's Cabinet. Governor Hughes received $25,000 for his work as counsel for the Armstrong committee. But in all the cases it might be shown that the fees represented but a small part of the vast interests at stake. A just comparison might show that the old time lawyers really charged more than the successful practitioners of today.

GIRL SWIMS SEVEN MILES.

Alsie Aykroyd of Boston Out does Male Companion.

Alsie Aykroyd, the 16-year old girl swimmer of East Boston, recently swam across the bay from Roxbury Beach to Nahant and return without stopping, a distance of a little more than seven miles, in the remarkable time of 6 hours and 21 minutes, outswimming a strong male swimmer who accompanied her part of the way.

"I knew I could do it!" she exclaimed when she had finished. "It was rough all the way and I was forced to swim away out of the course as I neared Nahant because a steamer was about to make the same point wharf and crossed before me."

"When I just touched the rocks near Bass Point a great crowd of persons ran down to the shore and shouted to me that I ought to rest. I was not a bit tired, but could see that Mr. Everett was weakening."

"I feel fine now and I was surprised when the people at Nahant thought I needed assistance."

"I leave for England, August 1. I am going there to enter the 10 mile contest on the Thames river near London, to be held on August 30. I have never considered the contest Light swim and I think my race in London will be the end of my swimming career at least as far as public efforts are concerned." —Boston Post.

BREAD OF LIFE STUDIES

MOUNT TABOR'S PARABOLIC VISION.

Matthew 17:1-8, 19-20—July 24.

"This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."

SIX days after our Lord's words concluding our last study, he took Peter, James and John, three of his favorites among the disciples, into a high mountain. There he was transfigured before them; that is to say, his appearance changed, his face shone like the sun, his garments were white like the light. Then the vision grew and Moses and Elijah appeared by holding conversation with the transfigured Jesus. The impulsive St. Peter, anxious to serve, inquired whether or not it was the Master's will that they build three tabernacles; one for him, one for Moses and one for Elijah, on the top of the mountain. One of the evangelists says, "He knew not what he said." Another account shows that these three disciples were for a time overwhelmed by something like drowsiness, but later became fully aware.

It was on this occasion that they heard a voice from the heavens, saying, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him." It required our Lord's kind words and touch to relieve the Apostles of their fright, and looking up they saw no one but Jesus. His transfiguration had vanished, and it was the Master, just as before. If, momentarily, they thought that Jesus had entered into glory, they were mistaken. Another account tells us that as they were coming down the mountain side Jesus charged them that they should not tell the vision to any one until after his resurrection from the dead. He thus explained to them that the whole matter was a vision, an apparition. This was a fulfillment of what he had told them in his last words of our lesson of a week ago. "There be some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the Son of man coming in his Kingdom." These three disciples had been standing in his presence at the time those words were uttered, and now they had seen the Son of man in his Kingdom glory—as vision. The reality of that vision has not yet come to pass, although it is surely sign, even at the door.

St. Peter himself declares that they accepted the vision as a corroboration of our Lord's assurance of his coming Kingdom. In his Epistle he says, "We have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus, but were eye-witnesses of his majesty [his kingdom], when we were with him in the holy mount." (II Peter 1:16, 18). Yet the Apostle proceeds to tell us that this vision, helpful as it was at the time, became secondary as he came to a better understanding of the prophecy which more particularly describes our Lord's second coming and Kingdom. He says, "We have a more sure word of prophecy [a more sure evidence than the vision] to which we do well to take heed, as unto a lamp that shines in a dark place until the day dawn"—until the Millennial morning dawn—II Peter 1:19.

Before leaving the story of the transfiguration, which symbolized our Lord's Kingdom glory, we note his gracious words to the astonished disciples, "Arise, and be not afraid." On several occasions he thus addressed them. It would appear that by saying many of us have a consciousness of our own imperfections and a realization of our unworthiness of Divine favor and grace are likely to grasp us and torture us. This is because we do not know our heavenly Father. The more we learn of him the more does the love of God cast out fear from our hearts, and assure us that he who created us is sympathetic towards all who are striving for righteousness. He is a great God, not a little one. True, he will not give his greatest blessings to any except those who come into harmony with him, but, so the other hand, he is not a demon that he should be feared or hated. He takes no pleasure in the suffering of his creatures and will not permit that any should suffer eternally, therefore his provision that all shall have, through Christ, an opportunity for regaining perfection and eternal life, and that whoever will not avail himself of this great privilege must die the second death—must be annihilated.

While Jesus and the three favored Apostles were in the mount of transfiguration, supposed to have been Mount Tabor, at the foot of the mountain there was a man whose son was a demon, whom he had brought that the Lord might expel the demon. The Apostle had already been out, as the Lord's representatives, in various parts of the country of Palestine, curing the sick and expelling demons in his name; so they assayed to cast out this demon but could not. The Reverend Swanson speaks of the sufferer as an epileptic. Indeed, all higher critics dispute the pleasure in the casting out of evil spirits. It is a common saying today among the Higher Critics that what our Lord and the Apostles mistook for demon possession was merely insanity, epilepsy, etc. Of course the word disease is broad enough to cover any kind of ailment, whether it be a direct affection from the adversary, or an indirect one through heredity. In either case there is loss of sanity, the case is different. We, however, have more confidence in the wisdom of the Lord and his chosen Apostles and prophets than we have in all the Doctors of theology and Doctors of medicine in the whole earth. We therefore accept this narrative just as it reads, that Jesus rebuked the "devil" and cast him out of the boy, who was cured from that very hour.

The disciples who had been unsuccessful in casting out this demon, called the Master away from the hearing of the multitude and asked him why they failed. He answered them that they were lacking in faith. "Because of your little faith." Another account says that he stated, "If ye had faith not to doubt except by fasting and prayer." In other words, the lesson to the Apostles was that their greatest power would result from their living very near to God, living lives of self-denial and prayer. Of course, fasting to be seen of men is not here indicated, nor do we suggest that the works of penance on the part of disciples would cast out the demon; rather the more scientific in the understanding of the Lord's mystery; rather the thought is, the nearer one draws to God the more of the Divine power may be exercised by and through him.

It is perhaps difficult for us to understand our Lord's reference to their having little faith, for they surely exercised considerable faith in making an attempt to cast out the demon. Faith, to be successful, must be backed by spiritual power; and our Lord assures us that even with a small amount of faith, if we are in harmony with God, we have the power to do the impossible. We are not to suppose that our Lord meant that his followers should try to remove mountains as a diversion, nor as a proof of their faith, for by so doing they would be seriously interfering with the interests of others who would be more inconvenienced by having the mountains remain. This they would have no right to do. We assume therefore that the thought must be that if in the fulfillment of the Divine command it should be necessary to have a mountain removed, and if the commission had been given to one of the Lord's followers to remove the mountain, and if he could exercise the faith to obey the command, the result would correspond to the faith exercised. All that the majority of us could do would be to exercise as much faith as possible and ask the Lord for more, and also seek to cultivate a greater degree of faith.

BECOMING DANGEROUS.

An Eye Sees Now About to Become a Menace.

The blackened walls of the Sherford building 202 and 208 Main St. skeletons of stone that two years ago had their occupants as airy.

Immediately after the fire, the rear end of the side wall on the alley had to be braced to prevent falling. Now the front wall displays evidence of a tendency to come forward, to leave the side wall. Wide cracks in the upper part show this. The town authorities should make a thorough examination and if the walls are unsafe the owners should be required to have them pulled down.

WILL WRITTEN IN ACCIDENT.

One Line on Back of Card Probed in Pittsburgh.

Written on the back of a card of the Pittsburgh yards, one of the shortest walls on record has been filed for probes in the office of Register of Wills, Fred W. Edwards. It was written by Robert J. McElroy, deceased after he was fatally injured and reads:

"Mary, all that is mine is thine. The will leaves real estate worth $5,300 to the testator's wife Mary J. McElroy. The witnesses were Thomas Whitaker and George L. Martin. After writing the will McElroy signed the name, but was unable to finish the signature and it was completed by Martin at the injured man's request. McElroy died June 12th.

Favorable Crop Weather.

The hot, humid days are most favorable to crops and they are showing it too.

While it is true that the cotton crop is late, it is better than it was at this time last year, when Mr. Farmer if he remembers, was quite pessimistic.

With favorable seasons from now on there is no apparent reason why the country should not make a good crop of cotton, peanuts and even an average of corn.

CONGRESS IN 1881.

Outstanding Purpose and Also Were Office and Patronage.

Most of the members of Congress who go home or abroad on excursions free of expense, a popular way of travelling recently introduced by free passes and passages. It is a weak and factions Congress, the most as of any I have ever known. There is less statesmanship, less principle, less honest legislation than usual. There is favoritism, "demagoguery," recklessness; the radicals who appropriate more than three fourths the money and controlled by selfishness who have no regard for the Constitution that for the old classes and the remaining fourth are mostly party men, not patriots. There are but few who have a right comprehension of the organic law and our government system. There are a few good, conscientious men but no great, marked mind comes up in either House. It seems to be taken for granted that Congress is omnipotent, and without limitation of power. A proposition introduced by Thad Stone, for reducing the old State of North Carolina to a Territory was quietly received as proper and a matter of course legislation. By what authority on by what process this is to be brought about is not stated, nor asked. To break down the checks, to take all power from the executive to cripple the judiciary and reconstruct the Supreme Court are among the principal objects of the radical leaders at this time. Four-fifths of the members are small party men, creatures of corrupt gerrymandering without knowledge of the science of government or our constitution. With them all the great overpowering purpose and aim are office and patronage. Most of their legislation remains to office and their highest conception of legislative duty lies in view of office and how to get it.—"Waller's Diary," in the Atlantic.

Depth of the Sea.

The variations of depth of the seas are remarkable. From recent soundings we learn from a Paris contemporary that in certain parts of the Pacific Ocean the depth is 3,800 meters that is about the distance from Treadler Square to New Cross Gate. Other great depths recorded are the North Atlantic, 5,321 meters; South Pacific, 4,300; South Atlantic 7,460; Indian Ocean, 5,200; Caribbean Sea, 6,370. The water is 28 inches. On the other hand the Baltic is comparatively shallow not quite 600 meters. In clear water when the sun is shining, a diver can easily see to work at a depth of 200 meters. At 300 meters very little can be distinguished. Beyond that depth it is as dark as night.—London Globe.

Good Water!

There are some cases of typhoid fever in town but one is due to low water. The monthly analysis of the town water has shown all the time that it was free from the colon bacillus or the typhoid germ.

Clark Weddell is in receipt of analysis of water drawn the first of the month. The conditions are good given; it is also stated that no other localities were found and made his report with the comprehensive statement, "Good water."

Useful Hint.

Dipping the tips of the fingers in warm olive oil every night is the best method for keeping the nails in good condition.

Raw eggs rubbed into the hair and scalp before washing are excellent and tend to prevent the hair from turning gray.

To clean rug by their straight and scrub with a stiff dry scrubbing brush. This is much better than shaking or beating them.

Though it is extravagant the substitution of cream or milk in the making of pumpkin pie will result in a most delicate dessert.

In making cranberry jelly or jam, much less sugar will be required if the sugar is not added until the fruit has been well cooked.
