AFRAUD.
Like most things that the republicans promise, is their plank in their State platform for local self-government. A hoary old piece of furniture that did service when this party was contending for the negro to hold office.
Endorsing Mr. Taft and this tariff is but another evidence that the rats of N. C. care naught for their state. The only decent plank in their platform is for free school books for the public schools. A good plank; one that the Southerner has urged and now takes off its title in recognition of the republicans having done something decent. It is a pleasure to be able to note something good in a party that having always done wrong and has given renewed evidence that it still on the down grade by becoming again cheek by jove with such a dirty dog and thick hide jackel as Marion Butler.

ENGLISH SPARROWS.
For a long time there have been threats against the English sparrow and time and again a crusade of extermination has been advocated, but the pugnacious bird has continued to thrive and perpetuate its relentless war upon the song birds of the country. An exchange says:
"Ever since an English railroad conductor brought the first pair to this country, a couple of generations ago, on account of their insipidious propensities, they have been steadily making enemies. From the tip of their impudent beak to the loss of their insolent tail they have assumed an attitude of defiance. For them the highway was a dust-bath and the gutter their natatorium. They have multiplied and increased until they have overrun the continent. Perhaps they may have had, originally, a certain fondness for insects, but a record goes to show that in recent years they have spent their time in chasing away the song birds, in till now the robin and the bluebird are, in certain sections, practically extinct.

"If the English sparrow goes he can at least have the satisfaction of knowing that nothing short of an organized movement was necessary for his extermination. John Davy, of Kent, Ohio, has taken the initiative in such a movement. He is a lover of birds—and therefore hates the English sparrow. That is to say, he wants to protect the song bird, and therefore has called up, on the world at large to join in the crusade against the street gamin of orthology. The details of his plans have not been given out. Perhaps Pittsburg has furnished that solution. The English sparrow is being served up as a "rice bird," and found to be very delicate. As soon as a commercial value is placed upon his head the English sparrow will know that his end is near."

THE EXPENSE OF A WIFE.
A wife is a decided addition to the demands upon one's purse. In that sense, however sensible and managing she may be, she is expensive. But everything worth having has its price of one sort or another, and there are some things which cost much without which life is hardly worth living.
Said Thiers: "Most men contemplate making some self denial when they marry." They think they will give up such and such expensive pleasures. Later on, when they discover that they cannot do so, and at the same time they lack the means to indulge, they complain that it is extravagant of their wives which causes the inconvenience."
Which wise saying is applicable to men in other countries besides that of France.—New York American.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE
A Large Attendance and Conductors Pleased.
An Institute for the teachers of the county is being held this week in the old High School building conducted by Prof. W. R. Mills, of Lenoir County Schools and Miss B. V. Walston, of Henderson. Both are easy talkers and good lecturers.
Prof. Mills lectures on U. S. and N. C. History; hygiene; pedagogy; the general attitude of teachers towards their work and the community.
Miss Walston tells of phonics, writing and drawing; school organization and etc.
On the first day 49 teachers enrolled their names. Before the Institute is over at least 60 are expected.
Prof. Mills and Miss Walston have each expressed themselves pleased with their audience and the intelligent and prompt manner in which questions are answered and asked.
They also say that it is the best looking body of teachers they have met.

THE FEW LUCKY CHAPS AT GAMBLING.
Men Who Have Broken The Bank At Monte Carlo.
After a 15-year trial of a system which practically consist of betting high enough and long enough, Huntly Walker, an Englishman, has left Monte Carlo $300,000 the richer. He won $300,000 one day, and next day in a little over two hours won $600,000 more, which necessitated the table at which he was playing suspending operations for a few minutes while further funds were obtained. This is technically called "breaking the bank," and recalls the feat of "Monte Carlo" Wells the first man to break the bank at the famous gambling resort, who a few years ago won $200,000 from the Casino, says Tid-Bits.
Wells played by a system, and after ward explained how, starting with a certain capital, he bet on "red" or "black" staking $100 or $2,400—the minimum or maximum bets.
Five years ago an immensely wealthy American, Col. Powers, the owner of mines in Mexico, won $350,000 at the Casino. His first day's play, which lasted less than an hour, brought him in $18,800, and each succeeding day was a same story. Crowds dogged his footsteps wherever he entered the Casino, some of the habitués touching his shoulder or surreptitiously touching the hem of his coat for luck while the more rational followed his play. The Colonel did not plunge, but continued to stake the maximum of $2,400 each time.
One of the most remarkable incidents which ever happened at Monte Carlo was when a Mr. Jagger won $400,000. He kept a close watch over the roulette wheels at the various tables, and discovered that each one had some small defect which resulted in one number winning more frequently than any other. These numbers he backed, winning $600,000. The bank, however discovered his secret and had new wheels made, and Mr. Jagger was losing rapidly when he wisely desisted and returned home with $400,000.

One of the distinctions enjoyed by the late Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, the uncle of the Czar, who died in November last, was that of being among the men who had broken the bank at Monte Carlo. He won something like $200,000 in a couple of days.
In spite of these huge sums which have been won, the bank holds its own against all systems, plungers and purveyors gamblers, and a witty poet invented in the days of M. Blanc, the founder of the Casino, true it says: "The black often loses, and red often loses, but white (Blanc) always wins." His winnings range from $5,000,000 to $7,500,000 every year.

$100 Reward.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

DISAPPEARING CONFEDERATES.
They Pass Out of Public Life in the South Sooner Than Union Veterans Do in the North.
We called attention not long ago to the practical disappearance of the "Confederate brigades" from the roster of Senators and Representatives elected from the Southern States. Within the last month the number of Senators who served under the Stars and Bars has been reduced by the deaths of Samuel D. McEnery of Louisiana and John W. Daniel of Virginia. Only six Confederates are now left in the upper house of Congress—John H. Bankhead and Joseph P. Johnston of Alabama, James P. Taliaferro, of Florida; Augustus O. Bacon of Georgia, Hernandez de Soto Money of Mississippi and Thomas S. Martin of Virginia. Mr. Money is to retire to private life next March and his successor, John Sharp Williams, was not born until July 20, 1854. Mr. Taliaferro has been defeated for renomination in the Democratic primary in Florida and his successor Napoleon Bonaparte Broward despite his name, also never had a chance to distinguish himself on the battlefield. There are left in the present House of Representatives only six Confederate soldiers, George W. Taylor and William Richardson were elected from Alabama, Leonard F. Livingston from Georgia and George W. Gordon from Tennessee. The other two represent States not in the Confederacy—J. F. C. Talbot coming from Maryland and A. W. Rucker from Colorado.

Commenting on the nomination of Major Charles M. Stedman as the Democratic candidate for Congress in the 10th district of North Carolina. The Charlotte Observer recently made this interesting statement:
"If elected, Major Stedman will be come the only Confederate veteran whom North Carolina Democrats have had in either House of Congress for fifteen years. Populists-Republicans excepted. North Carolina has sent no Confederate veterans to Congress since Senator Hanson's forced removal, unless Governor Russell (very much a U. S. Democrat) should be counted nominally a Confederate, none of the last four Governors come under this category. In offices of State and the Legislature Confederate veterans have for years been almost completely absent."
It cannot be that the Southern Democrats have ever intentionally discriminated against Confederate veterans. The men who fought and rose to leadership in the Confederate cause became natural leaders in politics in their States after the war ended and reconstruction began. It must be that the newer generation is displacing the older a little more completely in the South than in the North. There are also members of the Senate who fought in the Union armies and sixteen Union veterans in the House of Representatives. Yet in the South service under the Confederacy was much more of a title to political preferment than service in the Union forces was at the North, the South being more one-sided politically and more single minded in its devotion to the cause of the past. The submergence of the Confederate veteran by the politicians of a later generation only proves that in politics as in every other line of activity the nation is rapidly losing touch with heroes and actors in the soul stirring period of the civil war.—New York Tribune.

THE OLDEST WOMAN
Baba-Vasilka Was Born in a Little Bulgarian Town in 1784.
The claim of Frau Dufkowitz, of Posen, born on February 21, 1785 to be the oldest woman in the world, is now contested by Mrs. Baba Vasilka who was born in May, 1784, in the little Bulgarian village of Bavelisko, where she has lived ever since. The record of her birth is preserved in a neighboring monastery of the Orthodox Greek faith. Baba Vasilka is daughter of a peasant, and worked herself as peasant up till a comparatively recent date. For more than a hundred years she regularly worked in the fields, according to the custom of her country, where women are employed in all sorts of manual labor. When she was born Bulgaria was merely a province of the Turkish empire and entire population groaned under the tyranny of their Turkish rulers.
She has seen innumerable wars and rebellions, massacres and atrocities, political crimes and political tragedies. She recollects with perfect distinctness events that happened at the end of the eighteenth century and the beginning of the nineteenth century; in fact, by events of her earlier life up to the time when she obtained the age of eighty are far more distinctly impressed on her mind than the happenings of the last forty-six years. Baba Vasilka lived through all the crises of her nation, and now rejoices to know that Bulgaria is an independent kingdom.
Herr von Tordor, following the family tradition, has also worked in the field as peasant nearly all his life but he has also taken part in various wars and rebellions in the Balkan Peninsula. He is not quite so fresh and vigorous as his mother, although he is still capable of doing a good day's work. The "oldest woman in the world" is said to enjoy fairly good eyesight and good hearing, and she is able to walk without support.
She lives on a pension paid her by many of her descendants who number more than one hundred. She is naturally quite a celebrity in her own land, and people come great distances to get a glimpse of this wonderful woman who has defied the ravages of time for a century and a quarter.—From the London Standard.

THE HEIGHT OF LUXURY
It is Reached in Modern First-Class American Hotels.
Modern hotels have reached the zenith of luxury and are adopted to the long paces of the multi-millionaire, who requires, as a matter of course, luxuries which the most powerful monarch in the world might long for in vain. He can live in royal apartments with all the princely appointments and spread with the most costly rugs of the Orient. He can bathe his tired body in perfumed waters, and refresh the inner man with the rarest of a $20,000 a year outfit. He can sleep in a bed of carved tulip wood—an art treasure, an heirloom from an old French castle, hung with silk after the ancient style and worth a little over $10,000; and last, but not least, he can be attended by a retinue of servants who will anticipate his every wish.
His bedroom chamber is regulated for him by Washington observatory, and his business may be carried on in the seclusion of his own apartments over a private or long-distance telephone. At one of the new and beautiful hotels, which employ 1,000 people for its 745 rooms, he may even sleep on real ice in midsummer, for during the hot weather the grillroom is turned into a skating rink, a coat of ice being placed at great expense over the tiled floor. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that scores of American millionaires, who could well afford palaces of their own, have made their homes permanently in these great and marvelous Aladdin's palaces. Many of them, in fact, have deserted magnificent private homes and taken up their abode in a hotel in order to escape the servant problem.—From Literary Digest.

A MERCILESS SLAUGHTER.
One of the Bloodiest Massacres in Russia's Military History.
One of the bloodiest massacres in the history of Russia is that which occurred under the famous General Skobelev in the conquest of Central Asia. It happened in the winter of 1881, when the Tekkes, one of the strongest of the Turcoman tribes, had made a decided stand at Gok-Tepe where they expected to annihilate the Russian invaders of their country.
Gok-Tepe was the site of an enormous mud fortress which the Turcomans had erected; and instead of scattering in the mountains, where they might have carried on a guerilla warfare, they concentrated their force behind the mud walls of their fort.
With extraordinary confidence in their ability to resist the advance of Russians they assembled 35,000 persons, including 19,000 mounted warriors, with as many horses and 8,000 camels, in this fortress.
During the fall of 1880 General Skobelev "felt" the Turcoman position, and then retired to the Caspian to complete his plans and preparations. In January he returned with 7,000 men and 60 guns and pitched his camp about a mile from the fortress. On January 20 he divided the attacking force into three divisions, one of which was under the command of Colonel Kouroupatkin, since famous as commander in chief of the Russian army in Japan, and at daylight a combined attack was made.
The fort had been completely undermined by the Russians. At the moment of attack the mines were sprung and a large gap was torn in the mud walls, through which the Russians entered with bands playing the national anthem. They were promptly engaged by the Turcomans in a hand to hand fight with bayonets and swords. The Tekkes fought with amazing courage, but their pride and confidence were destroyed by the ease with which the Russians battered down their defense. Three hours after the attack thousands of fugitives crowded the plain with Russia's cavalry pursuing them and cutting them down.
After the attack and pursuit 5,000 bodies of both sexes and all ages were lying dead upon the plain. In the fort 6,000 warriors were slaughtered.

CONSUMPTION INSTITUTE
Dr. Routsahn Delivers Interesting Lecture. County Association to be Formed.
Both sessions of the Tuberculosis Institute in the Graded School building Tuesday and at night were well attended and the interest manifested by those persons was very marked.
The afternoon work was in the nature of a lecture by Dr. Routsahn and the evening sessions both a lecture and picture work.
Dr. Routsahn gave a short history of consumption and showed many erroneous views that people have concerning this disease. The object of the campaign is not to cure consumption so much as it is to teach people how to avoid it. He expounded the old theory that consumption was inherited. This was a fallacy. His appeal was not to get people well, but to keep them well.
The night lectures were exceedingly interesting and made particularly so by the illustrations. The many facts and figures showed in these pictures were alarming. The fact that 150,000 people die each year in the U. S. of consumption should put our people thinking.
Dr. Routsahn in his lecture spoke flatteringly of the Local Civic League and the work that was possible for it to do. His references to the County Health Officer, Dr. S. P. Bass were very pleasing, and he called upon the people to hold up his hands in his official work.
Dr. Routsahn is thoroughly posted in his work and has a vast amount of information and knowledge at his tongue's end. He is a very pleasant speaker and his appearance before our people was greatly appreciated.
The town and community at large are to be congratulated upon his visit here and the good that will result from it will be great.
At the conclusion of the lecture, Dr. Bass made the announcement that on next Tuesday evening at the Opera House, there would be a meeting to which everybody was invited, to organize a County Tuberculosis Association. Men, women, children and all are invited to come.
