Fire Prevention Week

This is fire prevention week. Last year we ran that statement nearly every day during fire prevention week. It happened that one day during that week the old Shields place burned down and the local fire truck couldn't get up the hill near the Bulletin office. Some one coupled the two statements together and mailed them to the Literary Digest.

Tryon has an excellent volunteer fire department and the loss to property from fire here has been very small in comparison with other towns. Chief Wilson put out posters this morning showing that North Carolina has a yearly loss from fire of $20,000,000. Regular inspection has done much to keep down fires in Tryon. Chief Wilson says prevention is better than the cure and that people should be careful in burning rubbish or putting ashes in wooden boxes.
