 tor not long ago if he knew of a big league ball player from Demorest, Ga., where the writer lived for several years. Mr. Mc. couldn't think of the player's name at the moment, but the editor read about Johnny Mize the other day and remembered playing tennis with him and acting as his Scoutmaster when Mize was a barefoot boy. You never can tell how famous some of the little barefoot boys we know will become. Frequently we see articles in the Atlantic Monthly by Prof. Brooks Phillips, a former neighbor from the same town. We miss something when we fail to keep contact with past friends and associates, which reminds me that I owe a letter now to a classmate who is now president of a college in Alabama. He is Ross Ensminger, son of the Rev. F. P. Ensminger who has often visited Tryon and preached at the Congregational church. The Rev. Mr. Ensminger was a collegemate of Dr. Missildine at Rollins in Winter Park, Florida.
