

To A Fallen Arch

Ah! would I were a mermaid fair,
With lissome form and flowing hair—

(And ditto tail);

For then I'd slide,
And gleam and glide,
And sway and swerve
In graceful curve,
By moonlight pale.

No fallen arch in that tail,
No corn or callous could assail
My nether end;

For, having ne'er a foot to show,
I should not feel the direful woe
Or bunion, arch of Morton's toe,
(And such a save on shoes, you know!—)

A real godsend!

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner and children, little Miss Leila and Master Charles, Jr., of Combahee Plantation, S. C., are guests at Circle Inn.

The Ponce de Leon Beauty Salon invites the friends and patrons of Polk County to come in and visit its Salon with the two experienced and courteous operators, Miss Ruth Williams, who has returned from a short brush-up course in Cosmetic Art, and Miss Gwendolyn Edwards, who has completed a course at the Asheville Beauty Academy, has accepted a position here. We hope that you will continue to come in as you have before, as you will be given special attention and will be well pleased.—Adv.
