A. D. Shelnutt Dies in Athens, Ga.

A. D. Shelnutt, 62, father of H. L. Shelnutt of Tryon, died Monday morning in Athens, Ga., after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Shelnutt was a visitor this summer in Tryon at the home of his son. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Shelnutt and daughter, Miss Betty, are in Athens now and no information was available concerning the funeral plans.

HENRY

Henry D. Shankle, Jr., who made a trip alone across the continent to Portland, Ore., in an old Ford car, has entered the night classes of the Oregon State College of Technology and will thus be able to hold his job in the day time while attending college at night. Henry has a short article for this week's Polk County News in which he tells about hiking and camping on the beautiful mountains near Portland.

The little short brown delegate from Ethiopia stood before the head men in Geneva and explained his grievance as follows: "We Ethiopians were all setting around and loafing in the drug stores and street corners minding our own business when all of a sudden a big stiff come marching down the street proclaiming that he could lick every durn one of us, and my old man saunt me here to tell the league that we think he took in too much territory and when he starts sumpen hitz agona be a durn sight harder to stop than it wuz to start.—Static, in The News.
