Texas Exposition To Feature North Carolina Daisies

Dallas, Texas, Sept. 26. (Special to The Bulletin).—The pine tree and the colorful Oxeye Daisy, official tree and flower of North Carolina, will be featured in the $200,000 landscaping plan of the Texas Centennial Exposition which opens here next June.

Sections of the Exposition grounds will be landscaped with trees and flowers which have been adopted as emblems by the states of the Union. In the North Carolina section the Pine Tree and the Oxeye Daisy will predominate.

Centennial Park will be made one of the nation's beauty spots with more than one hundred varieties of native Texas trees and shrubs included in the landscaping plan. The only exception to the use of native flora will be the official state trees and flowers.

TELEGRAPHIC ANNIVERSARY

A Tryon school class was asked by the teacher, "Who invented the telephone?" One student, eager to show his knowledge, replied immediately, "George Bell." The student was slightly mistaken, but it is interesting to know that George E. Bell of Tryon opened up his Postal Telegraph office in Tryon just 12 years ago today, Sept. 26, 1923. He had only an old kitchen table for an operating desk and did business in the Hester building in the lobby of the old Bank of Tryon at the head of the basement stairs. A native of Buncombe county, Mr. Bell got his first job as a telegraph operator at Newton, N. C., in the spring of 1889, and during the past 44 years he has operated telegraph instruments for 16 different systems that sent him to all parts of the United States including California and the South West. Since coming to Tryon he has taken an active part in community affairs. He is a Trustee of the Congregational church, a Shriner, District Deputy of the Masonic Lodge, and a member of the County School Board and of the County Democratic Executive Committee. He has also assisted in many local enterprises for the development of Tryon.

Dr. and Mrs. George F. Taylor have leased Mrs. Andrew H. Green's house on Payne St., and will move from the F. J. McDonald home about the middle of October. Dr. Taylor has been appointed on the faculty of Converse college and will teach Bible three days a week in Spartanburg, and assist in the chapel services.
