Vestry Tonight

An important meeting of the Vestry of The Church of the Holy Cross has been called for tonight at 8 o'clock at the Rector's study. All members urged to be present.

E. P. Henson

E. P. Henson, aged resident of the Gowansville section of Greenville county, died at a local hospital at an early hour Wednesday morning of a gunshot wound which he suffered Tuesday morning.

Henson, who was said to be between 75 and 80 years old, was brought to a Spartanburg hospital at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and attending surgeons said he apparently was shot about an hour earlier.

The charge entered his abdomen and punctured the stomach and lung, according to hospital attaches who said it appeared to have been inflicted with a shotgun.

The shooting was said to have occurred near Henson's home between Landrum and Gowansville, in Greenville county, but local officers last night had not been informed of details of the affair.

Mr. Henson formerly made his home in the Saxon section. His two sons were disabled in the World War, friends said last night.—Spartanburg Herald.

LUNCHEON PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Vanderhoef, Jr., are giving a luncheon on Thursday for Mr. H. B. Vanderhoef of Greenwich, Conn., and Mr. Noah Slee of New York, who are on their way to Mexico. Mr. Slee is the husband of Margaret Sanger, famous birth-control advocate.

Burglars Enter

Landrum Depot

The Southern Railway depot at Landrum was broken early yesterday morning and two men suspected of being implicated in the break escaped in a waiting automobile after exchanging a fusillade of shots with a Landrum officer, it was learned here last night.

Night Policeman Orr of the Landrum police, discovered the break about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning while making his rounds. He reported that he saw a man coming out of the depot, and halted him.

As he halted the man, the Landrum officer said, another man shot at him with a pistol from around a corner of the depot building. Orr said he returned the fire and that four or five shots were exchanged between him and the bandits.

In the exchange of shots, both men fled and made their getaway in a V-8 model Ford automobile which had been left parked beside the depot. They sped away in the direction of Tryon, N. C.

The Landrum officer called Rural Officer C. E. Carrut, about 2 a. m., who came to the scene and made an investigation.

Officer Carruth said the burglars had entered the depot by breaking a window glass on the front side and reaching through to remove nails by which the window was bolted.

Although the bandits ransacked a number of money drawers, it is believed the only loot they obtain-
