FILLERS

An interesting trip to Shelby Tuesday night with Nelson Jackson, Jr., vice-president of the Piedmont Boy Scout Council. Scout executives from all over the district from Hickory, Marion, Morganton, Gastonia and other places met at the Hotel Charles to discuss plans for the year's work in Scouting. The organization is doing wonderful work in training the young boys of this section. As one looked over the room full of business men, educators, bankers, mill presidents, etc., and watched the enthusiastic interest they took in doing things to build manhood in other people's children in order that they might become better citizens, it made you feel that the nation was safe as long as such men hold a n active interest in the future generations.

Judge Bismark Capps of Gastonia presided with all the enthusiasm of a Boy Scout, and Bud Schiele, the Executive, gave an outline of the objectives for this year. They were adopted. Editor Arval Alcock of Forest City was made chairman of publicity for the council. It will be his job to say many a good word for the Scout camp at Lake Lanier and Tryon. Mr. Jackson gave a report that said all was well with Scouting here. F. P. Bacon is vice-president for Polk county, Major B. Sharp is head of the Camping committee and Dr. A. J. Jervey heads the health work. It is hard for an outsider to realize the amount of work, time and money and sacrifices from other things that many of the civic leaders of this section are giving to the Boy Scout work. They enjoy the work immensely but a lot more good could be done if more men joined them.
