Ever Been to Prison?

If you had a boy between 16 and 21 years of age who got into serious trouble for the first time, a boy who had lots of good qualities, and he would have, if he were your boy, but a boy who made a big mistake and was being sentenced to prison, would you want him sent to a place where he would have to associate with the worst criminals — murderers, thieves, hardboiled men who would influence him to follow in their footsteps? Would you want your boy to have that kind of association?

If your boy should be caught in a mess that would involve a prison sentence wouldn't you rather send him to a Junior Prison Camp, where only young men under 21 are sent for their first offense, a prison where he would be under the direction of higher type of men who would seek to redeem your boy so that he could live a better life when he should get out of prison. Judge Will Pless thinks that a Junior Prison Camp properly supervised for first offenders, will go far toward reducing crime and redeeming young criminals before they become of age. If you have any ideas on the subject, go to the Parish House on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock and attend a public meeting to discuss plans to start a movement to persuade the prison officials to make the necessary changes that will segregate hardened criminals from the first offenders.

The public is invited to this meeting which is being sponsored by the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs.
